TUESDAY morning our Treasure Hunt commenced as per announcement appearing in the newspapers, and we weren't long under weigh before the first article—a Silk Blouse—was claimed. The second, a pair of Ladies' Shoes, followed a few minutes later. In quick succession a Dress Length, an Item of Furniture, and a Suit of Men's Pyjamas paid forfeit. Thereafter the chase got so warm that it was with some difficulty we kept the clues, but never at any point did the windows fail to show their half-dozen, as in the bond.

For the Rules of the Hunt see Window Slips.

Departments represented in "The Treasure Hunt" include—General Drapery Dept., Men's and Boys' Wear Dept., Costumes and Mantles Dept., Boot and Shoe Dept., Furniture Dept., Hardware Dept., Dress Dept., Silk Dept., Millinery Dept., Underclothing and Blouse Dept., Children's Outfitting Dept., Toilet and Drugs Dept.

¶ The Hunt is continued to-day. If you missed yesterday you can still make up for it. We shall vary the articles, but the goods are there for the claiming within the conditions stated.

WOMAN AND HER HOME.

AN IRISHWOMAN IN SPAIN.

IT was after thirteen hours of nearly incessant going over misleading goat tracks up and down two ranges of mountains that we stumbled foot-sore and weary into the mountain village of Oseja. We asked for the inn. As a late loiterer guided us there we heard midnight striking. The inn was in darkness, but we could distinguish crooked vine-covered balconies clinging to its sides. A wrinkled, bent old woman — we wondered where her broomstick was—came in answer to our hammerings, opened the door a few inches and peered at us. A grimy, claw-like hand held a candle. English accents reassured her and she let us in.

The hall resembled a cow-shed. Miscellaneous tools hobnobbed with broken bottles. Half-opened wine cases made nesting places for chickens. A dirty white cat streaked past. A filthy slop pail oozed its contents over the broken stone floor. The flickering candlelight revealed some odd bits of timber and firewood strewn about ready to trip up an unwary visitor.

Our desire for food was turned to nausea when some cold, oily concoctions in dirty dishes were brought to us. A powerful, shaggy shepherd boy, quiet and mysterious, entered the room and silently ate up what was there.

One bedroom between three of us, a small shut window with a broken pane letting in the odour of a doubtful piece of meat hanging immediately outside, and a total lack of all sanitation did not encourage sleep. Morning found us haggard and weary. When we came down stairs breakfast was finished. The old woman was busy fetching and carrying water. The kitchen fire was out. We searched the village for food — even a drink of milk. "There is no milk to-day," we were told, "but to-morrow. . . . . ."

The pleasant sunlit exterior of our little balconied inn almost convinced us its interior was only a nightmare. Tied to the doorway a small pony, nearly enveloped in a large Mexican saddle, was stamping impatiently. His owner was gesticulating to a muscular youth who later led out a grey horse, vaulted on its back, and galloped full tilt down the main street of Oseja.

"That is the best bull-fighter in Spain," said the owner of the pony to us, "well, if not in Spain, in this province, and if not in this province, for many miles round. This province, senores, is the most beautiful in Spain. The people are the wildest and most uncivilised, but the cows, ah! the cows are the prettiest in the world."

A few hours afterwards we saw him roping a live and almost full-grown calf—with as little concern as though it already was dead meat—on the top of the motor 'bus, which was to carry us into civilisation.

We left Oseja without regrets. Experience had shattered the promised romance of a night in a Spanish inn.

WINDOW DRESSING.

AMONG the many interesting occupations open to women window-dressing must take an important place, since it provides scope for artistic ideas and brain waves and individuality such as cannot be found in more everyday lines of business. The would-be professional window-dresser requires certain qualifications, plus a thorough training in the art.

The natural plus the cultivated qualifications required are an expert knowledge of psychology, design, colour schemes, etc. All these attributes are essential if really first-class work is to result, and it is only the highly skilled woman who has a chance of success.

The window-dresser who has been thoroughly trained has two possibilities before her, and her choice will depend upon individual likings and circumstances. She can either obtain a salaried appointment in a big shop or work up a connection of her own as a visiting expert. While the former is, perhaps, the most sure, the latter will, nevertheless, appeal strongly to an enterprising girl, and her chances of getting together a good business connection are many. Most modern stores depend upon window display very largely for trade.

There are many retail establishments that do not feel justified in keeping a window-dresser of their own, but who are only too glad of expert services once or twice a week. In order to get in touch with possible clients the would-be window-dresser should choose a district and make a tour of it, taking careful note of the shops whose windows are obviously not dressed to the best advantage.

Where it can be obtained an introduction to the owner or manager provides a means of approach, but, failing this, a letter enclosing a business circular and asking to be allowed to give a free display of skilled window-dressing for his benefit will generally have the desired effect. If the trial display is a success the first client is obtained. In this way a good connection, as large or small as is desired, can be obtained.

That this opening for the enterprising and artistic woman is worth considering is proved by the fact that many women window-dressers are finding it a very successful financial venture, and one at least is earning £1,000 a year by this freelance work.

It is now possible to take correspondence lessons in the art of window-dressing, by means of which all the essential points may be mastered and a thorough knowledge of the technique obtained. Such a course includes, amongst many more interesting points, instruction upon the functions of a shop window, the passer-by and his habits, arresting attention, the psychology of window-dressing applied, selling force versus more cleverness, representative and specialised displays; background and colour schemes, the effects of lighting, etc.

The study of the prospectus of a business college which includes a course of window-dressing in its curriculum brings to notice the many essential, but little realised, points which are necessary knowledge in an expert. A complete course of training, consisting of twelve lessons, costs about £5 5s.

MARY GWYNNE HOWELL.

BELLBROID.

A NEW IRISH INDUSTRY.

ONE of the most prosperous industries in Monaghan is that of the Belgembroid Lingerie Co. At the recently revived county show the company had a most attractive display of Belbroid lingerie in a variety of charming designs, all the handwork of skilled embroiderers. Most of the deft needlewomen employed by the company exhibited for competition specimens of their embroidery, and they won all the prizes.

A visit to the factory discloses the excellent conditions in which this lingerie is produced. When Belgian refugees brought their art to Ireland the work became so popular that our needlewomen, young and old, soon adapted themselves to the new vogue. To-day Irish ladies are offered the art of some of the world's most famous needleworkers. Much of the white material chosen for Belbroid is tarantulle, famed for its softness and long service, while for winter wear the material used is wincey.

Belbroid lingerie at present provides employment for 150 workers in Monaghan. By means of an electrical machine 250 garments can be cut out at once. Each has then to be stamped with the design for embroidering, which work is done by hand.

A suction gas plant provides all the power required, and the illuminant at night is electric. The lighting during the day time is good, and the general conditions are comfortable.

FOR THE COOK.

WHEN BLACKBERRIES ARE RIPE.

Try making them into a fruit cheese with apples. It is delicious. Use an equal quantity of freshly-picked blackberries and sour cooking apples. Wash the apples and cut them in slices without removing the skin and core. Put them into a preserving pan with enough water to keep them from burning, and cook them to a pulp, stirring frequently.

Meanwhile pick the blackberries, discarding any that are not sound. Add them to the apples, and cook both together until the blackberries are soft. Then rub through a sieve to keep back skins and seeds. Measure the pulp and return it to a clean preserving pan, with one pound of sugar to each pint.

Stir the mixture constantly and boil until it will set. Pour into small pots and cover down. When wanted, turn out in shape. This is very good served with blancmange or cream.

BLACKBERRY ROLY POLY.

Make some light suet pastry and roll out to half an inch thick. In this put a good layer of ripe blackberries. Scatter brown sugar over and roll up the paste. Wet edges and pinch together, wrap in a floured cloth and boil for two and a half hours.

JURYMEN'S DEPUTIES.

CORONER REFUSES TO SWEAR THEM.

Owing to the non-attendance of jurors who were summoned to serve on a coroner's jury at Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital yesterday, the inquest on the body of Mrs. Jane Hart, who was knocked down and fatally injured by a motor car on Monday, was adjourned until to-day.

In announcing the adjournment, Dr. Louis Byrne said that the case was of great importance, and, as some of the jurors had sent representatives, he could not accept them. Another jury of householders would be summoned for the adjourned inquest, and those who did not attend would be fined.

In this case, he said, a woman had been knocked down by a motor car and left on the road, the parties driving off. Up to the present they had not been heard of. It was a most callous proceeding on the part of those people in the motor car.

Inquiries which were made in Dublin yesterday go to show that on Monday night at about 9.15 Mrs. Hart (68), a widow, of 17 Mark street, was crossing Pearse street, opposite St. Mark's Church, when a Ford motor car, without lights, came from the direction of Westland row at a fast rate, knocked her down and passed on towards Tara street. The woman appears to have been struck by the front axle of the car, but its occupants never slackened speed and were not identified by anyone in the vicinity at the time.

When taken to Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital the woman was dead, and examination showed that she had sustained fractures of the base of the skull and left thigh bone and other injuries.

FALSE PRETENCE CHARGE.

A £40 APPRENTICE FEE.

In the Dublin District Court yesterday, a man whose name was given as Dr. John D. Doyle, Mountain Villa, Ballybrack, Killiney, was charged on remand with obtaining the sum of £20 by false pretences from Mr. Gavan, Granly row, Carlow.

The allegation against the defendant was that he advertised in the Dublin papers for an apprentice, stipulating that a fee of £40 should be paid—£20 in advance. He stated that he was starting a factory in Talbot street, Dublin, called the "Irish Radio Manufacturing Company, Limited." Mr. Gavan saw the advertisement, and forwarded £20 on behalf of his son. He gave evidence to this effect yesterday.

An official of the Company Registration Department, at Dublin Castle, said that there was no such company registered, as was stated in the advertisement.

Detective T. J. Durkan said that he asked the defendant when he arrested him if he was a qualified doctor of science, and he received an affirmative reply. The defendant said that he "got his qualifications in Germany and Russia," but was not able to produce documentary proof. He said that he had been seven years in Germany in the British Army as a sapper.

Mr. J. V. Brady, for the defence, said that the money would be refunded to Mr. Gavan. The defendant had passed through very severe experiences during the War, and the case was really not one for a criminal prosecution.

The defendant was remanded for another week. Bail was allowed.

Mr. George Herbert Lock, of Durnovaria, Kingsland, Shrewsbury, mathematics master at Shrewsbury School from 1875-1904, who died on June 20 in his 74th year, left £20,603 gross, with net personalty £20,058.

A new opera house is to be built at Nymphenburg, a suburb of Munich, at a cost of £50,000.

GROWS NEW HAIR—IT DARE NOT FAIL!

So "light" and spirity, it seems to evaporate within a few moments of being applied to the hair; so safe that it cannot do harm in any form; yet so cleverly contrived as to be positively certain of making your hair richer, more abundant, and more luxuriantly beautiful—that, Madame, is Lavona Hair Tonic! Knowing that the word "wonderful" has lost much of its old-time force, we content ourselves by saying that those who have tried this tonic say it is supremely good for dull, poor hair. As, of course, it must be, for, with years of experiment and a considerable experience, we willed that it should be the only hair tonic on the market worth while by comparison of results. Is it? Well ... you can have your money back in full (it costs 2/11 at any chemist's) unless you are satisfied that it has improved your hair far more than you had hoped. You simply must try it!

The next meeting was fixed for Monday, 6th inst.

RAID FOR POTEEN.

FIGHT IN A PUBLIC-HOUSE.

A free fight in a publichouse at Bushy Park, following a raid for poteen by Civic Guards from Galway, was described during the prosecution of Peter Kellaghan at Galway yesterday for being in possession of illicit spirits and for keeping his licensed premises open during prohibited hours on the night of Saturday, September 13. Defendant, his two sons, Peter M. and Thomas Kellaghan, and John Murphy were charged also with assaulting the Civic Guards and obstructing them in the discharge of their duty. John Murphy, during the hearing of a cross-summons for assault, brought serious charges against the Civic Guards.

Superintendent Gilroy prosecuted, and Mr. L. E. O'Dea appeared for the defendants.

Sergeant Liddane's evidence was to the effect that at 10.50 on the night of September 13, with Sergeant O'Neill and three Civic Guards, he went to Peter Kellaghan's premises at Bushy Park. He saw Kellaghan standing in the kitchen with a cup in his hand. A five-naggin bottle lay beside him. Kellaghan made a dash from the room with the bottle. When witness barred his way and demanded the bottle Kellaghan struck him with it on the knuckles. Witness caught the bottle, but some person knocked him to the ground. He pulled Kellaghan down with him and both struggled for the bottle. While he was on the ground he received several kicks. The defendant Murphy was on top of him. Kellaghan's two sons also took part in the struggle. Sergeant O'Neill pulled his assailants away and secured the bottle, but Peter Michael Kellaghan snatched the bottle and broke it on the ground. Its contents had the smell of poteen.

In cross-examination, witness said that defendant's wife, who had been delivered of a child the day before the raid, was taken from her bed and placed in a passage in order to obstruct the Guards.

For the defence it was urged that some friends had called to see Mrs. Kellaghan. A bottle of port wine had been sent for, and it was the bottle of port wine that was smashed on the floor. There was no poteen in the house.

The summonses for having the premises open during prohibited hours and for being in possession of poteen were dismissed.

A charge of assaulting and obstructing the Civic Guards was heard next, and the defendants were returned for trial on the charge of obstruction.

On John Murphy's charge against Sergeant O'Neill and Guards Boyle, Crowley and O'Reilly, evidence was given to the effect that the Guards struck Murphy on the head with a baton, and also struck him under the eye. He was knocked almost unconscious. Then he was dragged out to the road and struck once more. For the defence it was urged that Murphy's wounds were caused by his falling near the spot where the bottle was broken.

The District Justice said that he was satisfied that Murphy's wounds were not caused by a baton, but he was also satisfied that more than necessary violence had been used to Murphy after his arrest. He, however, dismissed the case against the Civic Guards.

RAID ON A WIDOW'S HOUSE.

TWO KILKENNY MEN PUNISHED.

At the Kilkenny District Court yesterday, two young men named John Purcell and Thomas Cherry, of Greenhill, Kilkenny, were found guilty of armed robbery, and Purcell was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour, and Cherry to six months', with hard labour.

It was alleged that Purcell and Cherry were two of a party of young men who raided the house of Mrs. Sarah Burke, a widow, who lives at Dunmore, near Kilkenny. Two of them carried rifles. She handed them thirty shillings, and when they left they carried away meat, bread, butter, eggs, and a shotgun. The woman told the Court that the fright that she got nearly caused her death.

Mr. Molloy, the District Justice, said that nobody with a spark of manhood could have any sympathy with the action of these young men. Even savage tribes respected their women kind, but it would appear that in this unfortunate country all respect for everybody seemed to be absent in some people. It was hard to understand how young fellows calling themselves Irish could in cold blood raid the house of a widow, knock her up from her sleep, and take away her property at the point of the rifle.

Cherry was also found guilty of armed robbery at the house of Denis McEvoy, a farmer, of Dunmore, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, to run concurrently with the other sentence, and was also ordered to pay a fine of £5 within one month from now.

Three other young men, named Fitzpatrick, Dunne, and Brien, who were charged with Cherry and Purcell, were discharged.

WORKERS AND THE COUNTRY.

EVILS OF DISSENSION.

"It was only when capitalists and labour realised their true positions that the economic position of the country would be settled," said Mr. Sean Lyons, T.D., at a meeting of the Independent Co-operative Workers' Union, at Athenry on Sunday. Monied people, he said, were not prepared to invest money in Irish industries to-day, owing to dissensions in the country. Even the present Government could not agree, and they learned from the newspapers every day that a split was threatened which might cause another revolution.

Another reason for the refusal of people to finance industries was that the moment such industries began to pay, the workers were called out on strike for the political and selfish purposes of officials. When such strikers returned to work they invariably found that the industry was gone for the want of orders and finance. As soon as the country was free from unnecessary strikes, and that the questions arising between workers and employers were settled by arbitration, the country would be safe for the investment of capital, with beneficial effects for the worker.

He had nothing to say to the present Government. It was in power by the free vote of the people, and sincerely worked for the good of the country. The workers' representatives in the Dail were led astray by politicians who were out for no other purpose than to cut the throat of the nation. Do not mind criticising the Government, he said. The worker had no room for the rifle, or the hand grenade, or the revolver. They did not want to destroy the country, and anyone out to destroy, even one pennyworth of the country's property, was not wanted in the Workers' Co-operative Union. The majority of the people of Ireland were for peace, in order to improve the country, and not to throw the nation back to war.

ST. ANN'S LECTURES.

The St. Ann's lectures, which were so popular last year, will be resumed in the Molesworth Hall, Molesworth street, Dublin, on Wednesday, October 29 next. Lectures are delivered every fortnight by well-known men. RAID ON A POLICE STATION.

At Tralee, before District Justice Johnson, John Cahill, Anthony Courtney, and Daniel Garvey were sent for trial, charged with having, while armed, entered the Civic Guard station at Ballyferriter in July, 1923, and taken away three bicycles.

The evidence of the Guards was to the effect that the accused were armd with a shot gun, a revolver and a rifle, and said that they were Irish Republican soldiers.

SALE OF MOUNT ERROL, DONNYBROOK.

Considerable interest was taken in the auction by Messrs. Holden, yesterday of the residence, Mount Errol, Stillorgan road, Donnybrook. A large assembly of buyers competed, and the premises were knocked down at £3,750 and fees. Messrs. Eugene F. Collins and Son, solicitors, Eustace street, bought the premises in trust. Messrs. J. H. Walsh and Co., solicitors for the executor of the late Mrs. Sims, had carriage of the sale.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

CONNAUGHT.

CATTLE IN DWELLING ROOMS.—During the hearing of a case at Mullaghroe, Co. Sligo, in which the Coolavin Rural District Council sought an order against Michael Towly, Clogher, directing him to abate a nuisance and put his dwellinghouse in a sanitary condition, it was stated that Towly wore very little clothing, portion of his roof was gone, there was a foot of water on the floor, and a cow and a calf were found in one of the rooms occupied by the man. There was no bed, no fire, and no food in the house. The neighbours said that for the past three years Towly had lived mostly on grass. He would not go into the workhouse or leave the hovel. Though not right in the head, he was not a dangerous lunatic. The District Justice made the order sought.

LAWS OF EVIDENCE.—In the course of a case at Ballinasloe the judge commented on the questions that had been put to the prisoner by a Civic Guard prior to arrest. "It was not the business of a policeman to question this girl until he had cautioned her first. That is the law as laid down in England and in this country," said the judge. He directed the jury to find the prisoner "not guilty," and she was discharged.

LEINSTER.

KILKENNY ASYLUM APPOINTMENT.—The Local Government Department has informed the Kilkenny District Mental Hospital Committee that before the Minister's sanction was given to the proposed payments in money and kind to the assistant resident doctor an advertisement was issued stating that the salary would be £250 a year, with an increase of £50 on certain conditions being complied with, together with furnished apartments, rations, washing, fuel and light. This was irregular and an election must be held after the salary and emoluments have been approved. The Committee decided to make a temporary appointment and to issue advertisements in accordance with the Local Government Department's requirements.

LONGFORD LABOUR TROUBLES.—Transport Union workers picketed the house of an egg purveyor in Ballymahon street, Longford, last Monday because two of his employés refused to join the union. The employer states that he pays his men the Union wages, with which they are quite satisfied, and are not disposed to go on strike. Men employed by the Urban Council of Longford on road repairs went on strike last Tuesday as a protest against the dismissal of two ex-Service men, on the ground that they did not serve in the National Army. County Council employés on the roads also ceased work in sympathy with their fellow-workers.

BALLYBOGGAN MURDER.—A verdict of death from injuries inflicted by a person unknown was returned at an inquest in Navan into the death of Mrs. Kate Nugent, Ballyboggan, whose body was found in a field near her house on September 3. Thomas M'Garr, a labourer, has been remanded on a charge of being concerned in the matter.

CO. LONGFORD ROADS.—Ballymahon, Co. Longford, Roads' Improvement Association has passed a resolution "again protesting against the continued neglect of the roads in this district, and approving of the recommendation of the Local Government Board's Engineer that bye-roads should be made by contract."

CATTLE-LOADING AT THOMASTOWN.—Co. Kilkenny Farmers' Union has decided to complain to the Great Southern and Western Railway Company and the Department of Agriculture regarding the lack of facilities for loading cattle at Thomastown Railway Station. Farmers, it was said, were often kept at the station for hours, and could not get in to load their cattle.

BORN AND DIED IN WORKHOUSE.—James Wilkinson, aged 78 years, has died in the Cork County Home. He was born in Kinsale Workhouse in July, 1846, and four years ago re-entered the workhouse, where he remained until he was transferred to the Cork County Home, when Kinsale Workhouse was taken by the National Army for use as a military barracks.

4 MONTHS FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.—At Nenagh yesterday, Michael Meehan, of Kilkenny, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment from date of arrest, for embezzling £38 money received on behalf of Mr. J. W. Buggy, Sub-Sheriff, Clonmel.

ULSTER.

NIGHT RAMBLERS.—Michael M'Bride, Melmore, charged a number of men at Milford, Co. Donegal, with damaging his property. The complainant said that damage was done on the night of July 25, when the defendants were returning from a dance. He attributed the animosity to a complaint that he had made about poteen-making in a certain house. A police sergeant said that complaints had been made to him about the horseplay indulged in by gangs of young fellows returning from ramblings. He found a lot of loose stones lying about M'Bride's house. The defendants were ordered to pay 10s. compensation. John Logue, of the Carrigart district, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for stealing two tins of fruit from the hotel at Rosapenna. The defendant, who, it was stated, was returning from a dance, was found in his stockinged feet in the hotel at 4 o'clock in the morning.

The band of the Dublin Metropolitan Police will not perform in St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, to-day.

Twelve tons of hay, the property of John J. Blake, publican, Puckane, near Nenagh, were maliciously set on fire last Monday night.

William O'Neil, publican, Church square, Monaghan, was fined £4 and costs, or a month's imprisonment, at the local court, for permitting drunkenness on his premises at 11.30 a.m. on September 2, 1924.

Longford Branch of the Legion of ex-Service Men has passed a resolution tendering congratulations to its President, the Earl of Granard, on the occasion of his fiftieth birthday.

UNREGISTERED DENTIST FINED.—For practising dentistry without the licence of the Dental Board, Eugene M. Fitzgerald, of Castle street and Falls road, Belfast, was fined 30s. on each of two summonses at Belfast. Several female witnesses said that the defendant had extracted teeth and made artificial sets.

COOKSTOWN ELECTRICITY SCHEME.—A committee has been appointed by a public meeting, held at Cookstown last Monday, to open negotiations with the promoters of an electricity supply company for lighting the town.

CLOGHER CATHEDRAL CLOCK.—A new clock has been erected in the tower of Clogher Cathedral at a cost of £110. Most of the money was raised by public subscription.

HOUSE-BURNING IN KERRY.

FOUR MEN SENT FOR TRIAL.

Cornelius Sullivan, Thomas Kennelly, Patrick Curry, and Thomas Casey were returned for trial at Tralee by District Justice Johnson, charged with having, on the morning of June 6th, set fire to the dwellinghouse of James O'Sullivan, Shanavalla, Gortatlea.

Superintendent McNulty, who prosecuted, stated that claims for compensation amounting to over £3,000 had been lodged in respect of this burning.

Mr. Quinnell defended Kennelly, and Mr. King the other three men.

Mrs. Bridget O'Sullivan said that at half-past 2 o'clock on that morning there was a loud knocking at the hall door. She came down stairs with her husband, and saw four men outside, who were masked. One man, who had a gun, entered and asked her husband, "Is there a dispute about this farm?" Her husband replied, "Yes, between myself and Mr. Kennelly." The gunman said "The only way to settle the dispute is to burn the house." Two men then went upstairs, sprinkled oil or petrol over the furniture, and the house was burned. Afterwards she identified Casey as the man with the gun, Kennelly was the man with the revolver in the yard, and Curry and O'Sullivan were the men who sprinkled the petrol.

In cross-examination, she adhered to her direct evidence, and denied that she and her husband had set fire to the house themselves, because it was bought over by Mr. Kennelly, auctioneer, who had a mortgage on the farm.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

NURSE'S QUESTION TO THE BELFAST GUARDIANS.

When the Belfast Guardians yesterday appointed fifteen probationer nurses, the candidates appointed were then informed by the chairman that they would have to sign a declaration of allegiance to the King and the Government of Northern Ireland.

One of the candidates asked why they had to sign that declaration.

The Chairman replied that they were required to do so because it was a public appointment.

The candidate said that she was willing to sign, but she wanted to know why they were asked to sign.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

Attention is drawn to an advertisement in our columns of an open competitive examination for junior administrative posts in the Civil Service. These are the highest posts in the Civil Service, and the successful candidate will have a straight run to the head of the department which he enters. The age limits are 20-25, and the examination will be of Honours University Degree standard. Ex-Army candidates will have privileges in extension of age and marks for Army service, and established civil servants will have a privilege of extension of age. The scale of salary is £150 (15), £250 (20), £500, plus the usual cost of living bonus, and the position is established and pensionable. The date of the examination is 10th December next, and the latest date for entry is 8th November next.

"THE MERCHANT OF VENICE."

The performance last night of "The Merchant of Venice," at the Father Mathew Hall, Dublin, was most enjoyable. The mounting of the play and the costumes were irreproachable.

The personation of Shylock by Jack Stephenson impressed one mostly by the excellent way in which the lines were spoken. The acting, however, was rather short of what might have been expected. This was a fault also observable in Miss Gertie Quinn, who played Portia. Otherwise, in speech and presence, she was very good. Antonio was played successfully by John Buckley. The parts of old Gobo and Tubal were filled by Mr. Frank Fay, who was responsible also for the production. It is unnecessary to single out the other players for special mention, since all the parts were played with ability.

The next performance will take place to-morrow night.

THIRSTY CATTLE.

OWNER AWARDED £40 DAMAGES.

Before Mr. Lorcan Sherlock and a sheriff's jury in Green street Courthouse yesterday £40 damages were awarded to Matthew McCormack, farmer and auctioneer, Longford, against Anna Murtagh, Cloonard, Longford, for the deterioration of cattle which he had grazing on her lands. The claim was for £49.

Mr. George O'Connor (instructed by Mr. P. J. Hannon, solicitor, Longford) appeared for plaintiff. There was no appearance for the defendant.

Mr. Matthew McCormack said that he had taken grazing from Miss Murtagh from 14th February to 1st of May for a sum of £33. He put seventeen cattle on the place on 16th February and thirty more later. These were hardy Kerry cattle that did not require hay. In April he went to the place and found them confined to an eight-acre field. They were being driven to the river when he arrived, and he was told they were driven there every day. The cattle were in a bad condition and one was dead.

Mr. Douglas, V.S., Longford, said that on 14th April the cattle were pitiably calling, and a number of them were staggering. About the centre of the field he saw the carcase of one animal, which was found on post-mortem examination to have suffered from acute inflammation of the stomach and bowels. There was no sign of any liquid having been taken for some days. The beast was then dead for twenty-four hours. There were five or six gaps in the hedge, but all were sealed up. The field was in full sight of water, which was only forty yards away, and this seemed to madden the cattle.

Damages were assessed at £40 and a verdict given accordingly.

LAW REPORTS.

VACATION SITTINGS.

A SEAMAN'S INJURIES.

In the High Court yesterday, before Mr. Justice Johnston, sitting as Vacation Judge, in the matter of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, and in the matter of an arbitration between John Allen, seaman, of Main street, Kinsale, applicant, and the Town Line (London), Ltd., owners of the ss. Courtown, respondents,

Mr. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Norris Goddard and Davidson) applied ex parte on behalf of the respondents for a writ of prohibition addressed to the Circuit Judge of the East Riding of Cork prohibiting him from hearing or entertaining an application for arbitration to be made at the suit of the applicant under the Workmen's Compensation Act in respect of an accident alleged to have occurred at sea when the applicant was employed on board the respondents' ss. Courtown on the 13th February last during the voyage of the ship from the River Plate to Hull.

The Secretary of the Town Line made an affidavit setting out that the company, which had its registered office in Cardiff, was not within the jurisdiction of the Free State Courts. The respondents objected to the proposed arbitration, and said that they had a good defence to the action.

Counsel submitted that his clients were entitled to a conditional order for prohibition under the circumstances, pointing out that the proceedings under the new Courts Act were different from the proceedings in the old County Courts.

In reply to the Judge, he said that the question of jurisdiction could not be raised before the Circuit Judge and would not be entertained by him.

The Judge gave the shipping company leave to serve notice for a conditional order.

RIVAL ASSURANCE SOCIETIES.

INTERIM INJUNCTION GRANTED.

Mr. Martin Maguire (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) applied in the case of the Irish National Assurance Company, Ltd., against George W. Rudd, Frank W. Plewman and William McCarthy, trustees of the City of Dublin Assurance Collecting Society, whose offices are in Upper Sackville street, Dublin, and Michael Griffin, Cabra Park, and John Doyle, for an injunction to restrain the defendants, their agents and servants, from wrongfully interfering with the business of the plaintiff company, and from inducing, or attempting to induce, the policy-holders in the plaintiff company to transfer their policies to the defendants, or to surrender the policies and discontinue their business with the plaintiff company in order that they might take out new policies from the defendant society. The plaintiff company also sought an injunction against the defendants, their agents and servants, to prevent them from publishing statements injurious to the plaintiffs in their business. It appeared from an affidavit read by counsel that Michael Griffin and John Doyle had formerly been in the service of the plaintiff company, and that they were now agents for the defendants. It was sought to restrain these men from interfering with the plaintiff company's policy-holders and the plaintiff company's business. A great number of the policy-holders, it was alleged, had been induced to transfer their business to the defendant society.

Mr. Justice Johnston granted an interim injunction in the terms of the application, pending the hearing of a motion to be made to the Court next week.

DEBT DUE TO A BANK.

A GARNISHEE ORDER.

Mr. Geoghegan (instructed by Mr. John G. Reid), on behalf of the Belfast Banking Company, applied for an order of garnishee attaching a sum of £7,701, which lies on deposit in the Castleblayney branch of the Bank of Ireland in the joint names of the Rev. Canon McKenna, P.P., John J. Daly and William F. Loughead, under the following circumstances:—The bank recovered judgment against John McGeough and several other persons in the County Monaghan for the sum mentioned, being principal, interest and costs, due on foot of a joint and several promissory note, dated 23rd September, 1922, which guaranteed to the plaintiffs (the Banking Company) payment of all moneys which should from time to time become due for, or on account of, the Castleblayney Flax Growers' Co-operative Society, Ltd., to the extent of £7,000. The society became indebted to the bank in that sum, with overdue interest thereon. Judgment was given to the plaintiffs in June last. The defendants—John McGeough, Francis McElroy, Peter Boyle, William Bailey, Thomas S. McBride, Thomas Watters, John Comiskey, Robert Dickson and James Watters—or some of them, had, according to an affidavit made in the matter by Mr. Reid, solicitor, deposited certain sums of money, for the purpose of settling the judgment, in the hands of the Rev. Canon McKenna, J. J. Daly, publican and chairman of the Castleblayney Urban District Council, and William F. Loughead, of Annvale House, Castleblayney, and these sums, with other amounts contributed by the other defendants, had been lodged in the names of these three gentlemen in the local branch of the Bank of Ireland. Negotiations for a settlement of the account by agreeing to pay a smaller sum than the amount due had failed. The sums of money, it was believed, were still on deposit, and the Belfast Banking Company sought to attach them in part satisfaction of the debt due.

Mr. Justice Johnston made an order for a conditional order to garnishee the sums deposited by the three gentlemen named.

DUBLIN BANKRUPTCY CASE.

THE PURCHASE OF STOCK.

In the Bankruptcy Court, in the matter of William Field, a bankrupt, who was described as the agent in Dublin of the India and Ceylon Tea and Coffee Company, having offices in Middle Abbey street,

Mr. E. Kelly (instructed by Messrs. E. F. Collins and Son), for the assignees, mentioned that he proposed to further examine Richard Ford as to the disposal of some of the assets of the company. The case, he said, was a bad one. Ford, who was an ex-Royal Irish Constabularyman, had been examined before Mr. Justice Murnaghan a fortnight ago, and his story was that he had purchased the stock on the premises in Abbey street from Field for £175, and had the goods removed to his own shop in Lower Mount street. Ford looked upon Field as manager for the company, and he said that he also was a servant of the company under Field. He said that he had lent Field several sums of money, amounting to £180. The purchase was alleged to have been made a day or two before Field absconded. Ford also said that he had purchased, along with the stock, all the debts due to the company in and around Dublin, and these transactions Ford held to be in the nature of payment back to him of the money he had lent Field—in other words, Field's debt was paid with the property of the company.

Richard Ford was sworn, and, in reply to counsel, he said that he was not prepared to hand over the goods that were taken from Middle Abbey street, unless the Court ordered him to do so. He claimed them as his property.

On the application of counsel, the examination was again adjourned for a week, as the assignees took a serious view of the case, and there might be proceedings with regard to it in another court.

ORIGINAL WRIT SERVED ON A DEFENDANT.

On the application of Mr. J. Henry (Messrs. Porter, Morris and Co.), on behalf of plaintiffs, in the case of McCulloch and Co., Garston, against Patrick Donovan, Custom House quay, Wexford, Mr. Justice Johnston made an order giving leave to apply for final judgment for £32 18s. 8d. in default of appearance being entered, in spite of the fact that the original writ could not be produced. It appeared that the local civil bill officer had by accident served defendant with the original writ instead of a copy. The action was in respect of goods sold and delivered.

THE PRESBYTERY OF DUBLIN.

HANDBOOKS IN IRISH.

The stated meeting of the Presbytery of Dublin was held yesterday at the Church House, 16 St. Stephen's Green, at 11 o'clock. In the absence of the Moderator, Dr. Johnston was called to preside.

The Board of Education of the Presbytery, by instruction of the Presbytery, has purchased a house in Arklow as a manse for the Rev. J. T. Fleming, minister of Wicklow and Arklow. It was reported that compensation for injury done to the Duncannon Church had been received, and was in the hands of the Education Board.

Dr. Johnston, in the absence of the Rev. J. L. Morrow, submitted the report on students. Messrs. G. R. M'Dowell, J. Kennett, Blackwood, Duncan had been examined on the course prescribed for the third year, and Mr. John Worthington Johnston on the course for the first and second years, and Mr. W. Stuart Stewart on the course for the first year.

The simultaneous mission to be held in all congregations of the Presbytery will commence on Lord's Day, 16th November, not on the 23rd, as before arranged.

The congregation of Ormond quay has been regularly supplied with ordinances, and steps are being taken towards the selection of a minister.

Complaints were brought before the Presbytery regarding the handbooks in Irish appointed for the education of pupils in National schools. Extracts from these handbooks were submitted of a distinctly sectarian character, and it was pointed out that, as Irish was now compulsory, the children of our Presbyterian people were obliged to learn doctrines and practices inimical to their own Faith. The Presbytery referred the matter to the General Assembly's Committee for dealing with matters affecting Southern Ireland, with instructions to look into this matter at once.

The Rev. J. R. Crockett submitted the report of the Committee on the Corporation bursaries. Copies of the scheme were directed to be sent to all managers and head masters of National schools.

Kilkenny has been supplied with ordinances, and steps have been taken towards the settlement of a minister.

The Rev. J. R. Crockett was appointed Public Interests Agent, to communicate with the Clerk of the Assembly on all matters affecting the public interests of the Church.

Overtures regarding the eligibility of women for office in the Church and the appointment of two ministers to give their whole time to evangelistic work were referred to the Standing Committee to report on to the Presbytery.

The Rev. Dr. M'Kee submitted the report on social reform and temperance. The Presbytery of Dublin, representing the Presbyterian people of the Province of Leinster, again expresses its approval of the Intoxicating Liquor Bill, and expresses the hope that Section 12, which deals with mixed trading, will be retained.

The Presbytery appoint Lord's Day, November 30th (St. Andrew's Day), as a day of prayer on behalf of missions.

INTESTACY SUIT.

A COUNTY MONAGHAN FARM.

In the matter of the goods of Bernard McKenna, late of Coryarabeg, County Monaghan, deceased,

Mr. M. Maguire (instructed by Mr. Joseph Speer) applied on behalf of Mrs. Ellen McKenna, of Aughnacloy, Co. Tyrone, niece of Rose McKenna (Byrne), deceased wife of Bernard McKenna, deceased, for an order giving her liberty to extract a grant of letters of administration to the personal estate of Bernard McKenna, who died intestate on the 8th May, 1911, leaving his widow, Rose McKenna, surviving him, there being no issue of the marriage.

Bernard McKenna died possessed of a farm of land containing about 10 acres and 26 perches, held in fee-simple, subject to the annuity of £2 4s. 0d., payable to the Irish Land Commission. The purchase price of the farm was only £55, and its market value, it was estimated, would not now exceed £130. In addition to the farm, there were chattels and farming stock worth about £60, and the entire assets would not exceed £200. On the death of Bernard, Rose McKenna (Byrne), deceased, became entitled absolutely to all his estate, as it did not exceed £500 in value. She entered into possession and occupation of his estate, but she did not take out letters of administration, and she never had her title to the lands registered. She died intestate on 16th March last, leaving the applicant, her niece and sole next-of-kin, surviving.

The application was granted.

Healthy healing—and it soothes at a touch.

A splendid safeguard against poison and infection—immediate relief from smarting and pain. Rapid healing.

Mr. W. Lewis's Letter.

Mr. W. Lewis, a butcher's shop manager, writing from Fairfield House, Philip Street, Bedminster, Bristol, says: "Some weeks ago, whilst cutting up, I had the misfortune through the saw jumping, to cut across the forefinger of my left hand. The cut was so severe that I had to have stitches put in. It didn't heal, and I had the stitches taken out and hot fomentations applied. It then opened as bad as ever. This went on for some time until I was advised to try Germolene. I did so, and after a few dressings, my finger started to heal, and within a very short time the wound had closed up and soon got perfectly healed, only leaving a small scar. I strongly advise all in my trade to keep a tin of Germolene handy."

MEATH "BLACK HAND" CASE.

PROSECUTION FAILS.

Judge Doyle, sitting at the Trim Criminal Sessions, heard a remarkable case, in which eight young men were charged with assaulting two brothers, Hugh and Patrick Timmons, at Dunderry on February 11th, 1923.

The case, which was known as the "Black Hand" case, excited a good deal of interest in the locality.

Hugh Timmons said that at the time he was living in a cottage at Meadstown. At 2 o'clock in the morning he was called, and when he opened the door three or four men entered and ordered him to dress himself. Some of them carried revolvers, and they marched him to his father's house and brought his brother out. They were taken to a gate, to which they were tied with sheets and ropes, and were warned not to go near the cottage again. He recognised the defendants as his captors, who, before leaving, announced that they were the "Black Hand."

Patrick Timmons, brother of the last witness, also gave evidence.

The prisoners, who elected to give evidence, were sworn, and denied all knowledge of the assault, and witnesses were called on their behalf.

The jury returned a verdict of "Not guilty," and the prisoners were discharged.

POURED OIL ON WOMAN'S HAIR.

DUBLIN SHOPKEEPER FINED.

Remarking that it was a curious form of assault, Mr. Cooper, in the Dublin District Court yesterday, ordered Michael Duffy, a shopkeeper, to pay a fine of 5s. and 10s. compensation, for having poured a quantity of oil on the head of a customer.

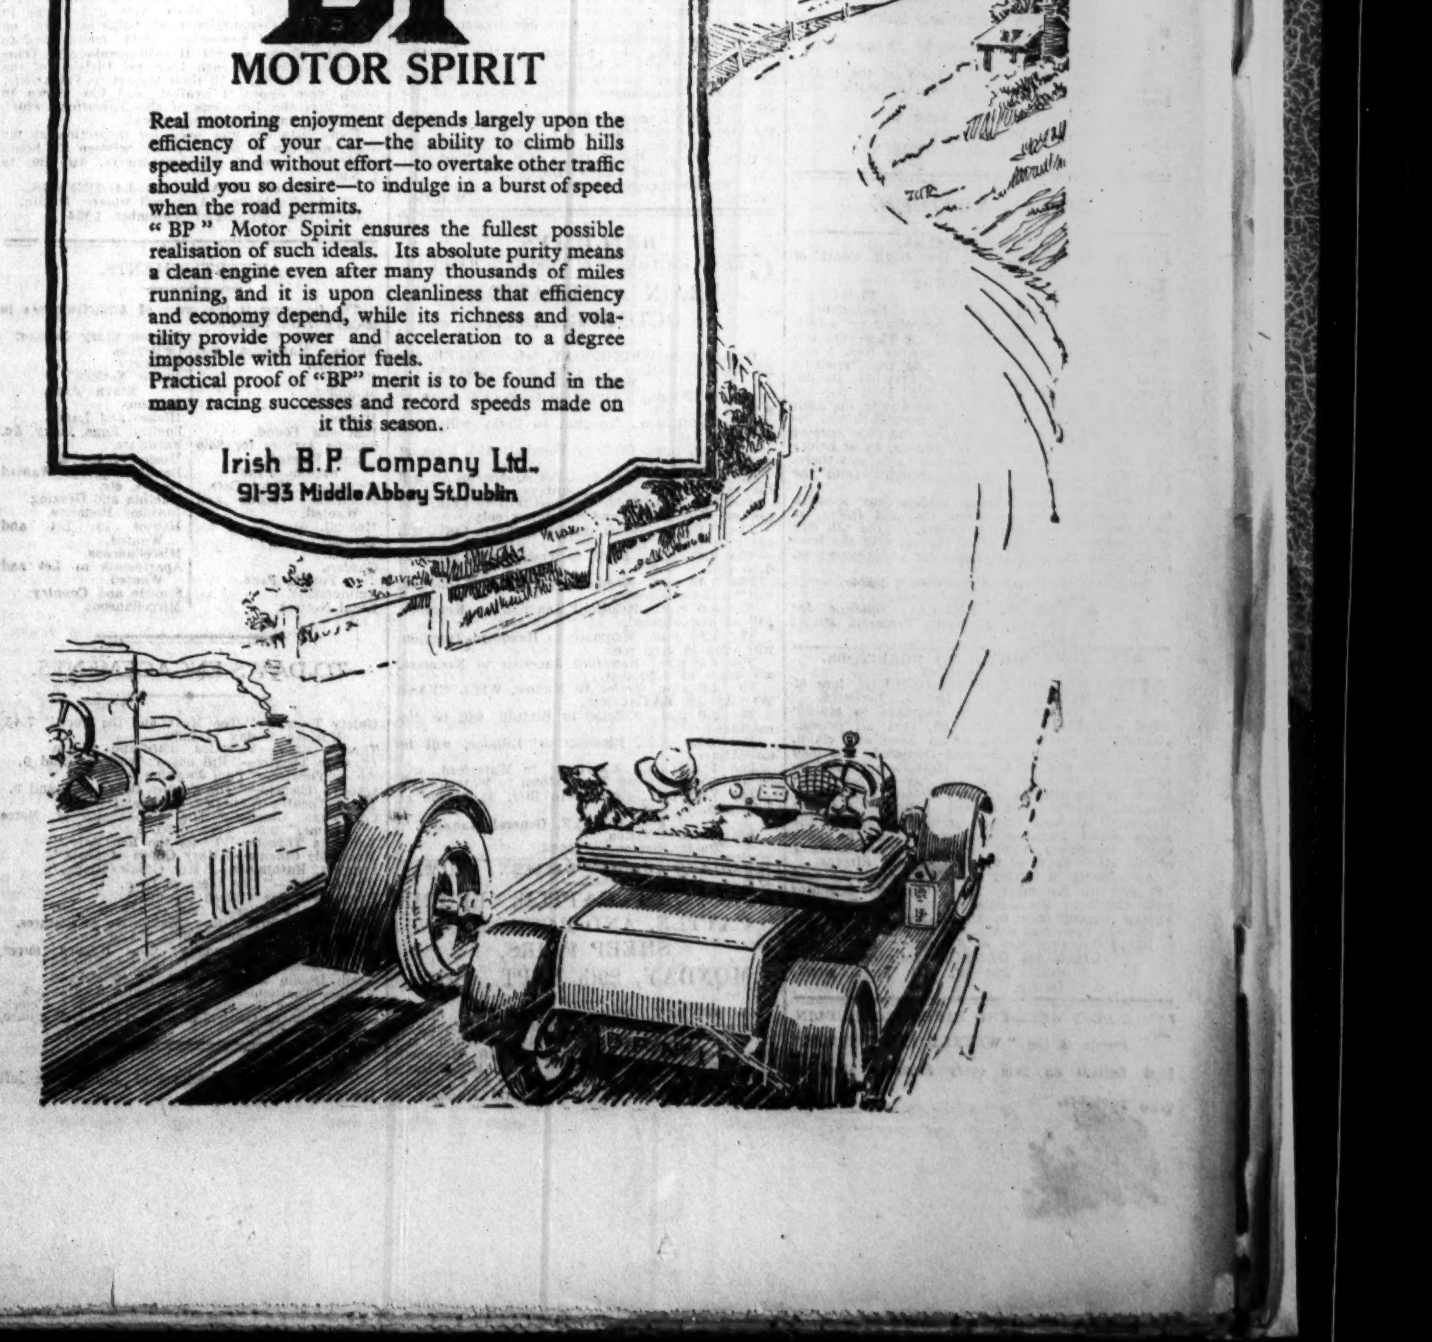

The woman, it appeared, disputed the measure of oil that she had purchased, and the defendant asked her would she like to have it poured on her head. She was alleged to have answered "Yes," and the defendant, thereupon, poured the oil on her head.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The Northern Government's attitude on the boundary question is supported in the report of the National Unionist Association, to be presented at the annual meeting at Newcastle next month.—(Page 5.)

At the eleventh annual Conference of the Association of Municipal Authorities in Ireland, in Dublin yesterday, Mr. P. A. Spalding, Dundalk, read a paper in which he discussed electricity supplies in Irish provincial towns. In the afternoon the delegates inspected the housing scheme which has been carried out recently by the Blackrock Urban Council.—(Page 5.)

Southern Ireland was again swept by wind and rain during Monday night and yesterday. The depression is expected to pass away to-day, but there will be squalls and a drop in the temperature.—(Page 5.)

A meeting of loyalists at Enniskillen yesterday passed a resolution protesting against any transference of Northern territory to the Free State "against the wishes" of Northern Ireland. An English member, Mr. Crawford Green, advised the people of Northern Ireland to "strike" if force were used against them.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Sir James Craig, who is in London, is to discuss the boundary problem with Mr. Ramsay Macdonald before Parliament meets next Tuesday.—(Page 5.)

ABROAD

A series of earthquake shocks has been experienced in Iceland, and the people are sleeping in the open air.—(Page 5.)

A concession for a £17,000,000 cotton-growing scheme in Iraq has been granted to Dr. Assar, the Syrian financier, who is turning it over to a syndicate.—(Page 5.)

A woman who handed a loaded revolver to the French police yesterday declared that she had intended to use it to kill M. Herriot, but at the last minute her courage failed her.—(Page 7.)

The inquiry into the United States oil scandals may be re-opened.—(Page 6.)

A report reached London this morning that King Boris of Bulgaria had been assassinated.—(Page 5.)

Zaghlul Pasha arrived in London yesterday, and was received with great enthusiasm by Egyptian students.—(Page 5.)

SPORTING

At Leicester yesterday Yellow Underwing won the Leicester County Three-Year-Old Handicap.—(Page 8.)

At Lanark Obliterate won the Silver Bell.—(Page 8.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets showed some irregularity. Tea and Oil Shares were active and higher.—(Page 9.)

The approaching end of the month and quarter is already influencing movements in the Money Market. Daily loans were obtainable at 3 per cent., but 3¼ per cent. was occasionally paid. The principal foreign exchanges depreciated.—(Page 9.)

The Dublin Stock Market feature was the sharp rise in Dublin and South-Eastern Ordinary to 19½, and in Great Southern and Western Preference Stock to 56⅞.—(Page 9.)

Business and the Boundary.

The development of the Free State's water-power was discussed yesterday at two conferences in Dublin. Soon after the State was established a long cherished ambition took shape in schemes for the harnessing of the Liffey to the needs of industry. Bills were promoted in the Dail; but then came the Government's negotiations with Messrs. Siemens, of Berlin, for a national scheme based on the development of the Shannon. Messrs. Siemens, it is understood, have prepared their plans, and will receive a contract for the work if these plans are ratified by the Government's independent experts. If the experts are doubtful or hostile, the Government will be committed to nothing and we shall be "as we were." In the meanwhile, however, the Shannon scheme seems, like Aaron's rod, to have swallowed its smaller rivals. At any rate, the Liffey plans, and, perhaps, other plans in other parts of the country, are being held in suspense until the Government has decided whether it will, or will not, entrust the main development of the Free State's water-power to German hands. Some of the Irish experts are dubious about the success of the Shannon scheme on technical grounds, and all seem to resent the obstacle which, in its present indeterminate condition, it offers to the exercise of their own initiative. At both of yesterday's conferences, however, Mr. P. A. Spalding, of Dundalk, suggested what may be described as a policy of economic reconciliation. He advised local authorities to "go ahead" with local schemes. A number of such schemes, undertaken simultaneously, would furnish what is hardly existent now—a profitable market for electricity. They would provide employment and would develop industry during the next few years; and, if and when the Shannon scheme came to fulfilment, they could be fitted into a national plan that would bring cheap power to the door of every householder in the Free State.

It is well that our engineers and other experts should have faith in their country's future and in the ability of Irish brains to keep her in the forefront of the world's progress. Nevertheless, facts cannot be flouted, and yesterday's conferences shirked or ignored the essential fact of the economic situation in the Free State. Security, political and social, is the first condition of success in every enterprise that is designed to promote either individual or national welfare. Without security industry cannot thrive; capital withdraws itself to safer surroundings; the whole body of the State is crippled and devitalised. There will be no real progress in this country until the two Irish Governments have reached a modus vivendi which will allow the citizens of both States to pursue the work of business-building and of nation-building with undisturbed minds. The present boundary crisis, with its increasing menace of civil strife, is an equal injury to peace and prosperity in Belfast and Dublin, in Londonderry and Cork. It is as bad for the North's shipbuilding and linen trades as it is for the Southern industries which are the raison d'être of the Liffey and Shannon power schemes. We are utterly convinced that the business men of both States would welcome with eager hearts any settlement that would eliminate or shelve the boundary question, and would allow the normal processes of time and the normal compulsion of common interests to establish political and economic unity. Yet at this crisis the business men are dumb. Ireland is hastening, with no protest from them, towards a doom which they foresee and are by no means powerless to avert. If the two conferences in Dublin yesterday had appealed, in the name of industry, for new negotiations between the two Irish Governments, their members would have proved themselves to be practical patriots. If the Northern and Southern Chambers of Commerce will unite in such an appeal even now, they will teach the politicians a lesson in statesmanship that may save Ireland.

The Claims of Egypt.

After nearly three months of refusals, denials and prevarications Saad Pasha Zaghlul, the Egyptian Prime Minister, finds himself in London. To-morrow morning he will meet Mr. Ramsay Macdonald in Downing street, but the meeting will be quite informal. Nothing will be decided. Neither side will be bound to accept, or even to consider, the suggestions of the other. Mr. Macdonald and Zaghlul Pasha merely will discuss the many outstanding problems of Egyptian affairs with a view to a general clearing of the ground in anticipation of a more formal conference at some future date. Zaghlul Pasha has been granted carte blanche by the Cairo Parliament in his negotiations with the British Government, but his mandate is based on the assumption that his policy will be "Egypt for the Egyptians," and "Sudan for the Egyptians" into the bargain. The Nationalist movement has spread like wildfire during the last few years. Zaghlul Pasha, who was considered by many Egyptians to be a dangerous extremist at the time when first he was deported from the country, enjoys now the complete confidence of his people; and his success constituted another proof of the fact that "extremism" is the best passport to political power in these times of violent attacks on old traditions. The Egyptian people have very little political wisdom; the great majority of them knows nothing about politics at all. Yet they have learned to mouth the parrot cries of that truculent nationalism which is rampant throughout the world to-day; and they believe that Zaghlul Pasha will gain for them not only complete political independence of the British Empire, but also complete political control of the Sudan.

Zaghlul Pasha is aware that no British Government ever could contemplate the surrender of the Sudan to the Egyptians; but he has committed himself to pledges which his fanatical followers expect him to fulfil. Egypt lies athwart the principal lines of communication of the British Empire, and, from the point of view of Imperial strategy, abandonment of the Sudan would be lunacy. Everybody knows that if to-morrow Britain should abandon her position in North-Eastern Africa, another European Power would replace her immediately. The loss of the Sudan would involve ultimately the loss of the Suez Canal, which was described once by the ex-Kaiser as "the jugular vein of the British Empire." Mr. Ramsay Macdonald may be an idealist, but he recognises that the concession of Egypt's fantastic claim to the Sudan would endanger the whole security of the Commonwealth. Besides, the Sudanese have no desire to come under Egyptian rule. Since Britain defeated the Mahdi and afterwards the Khalifa a quarter of a century ago, the Sudan has flourished exceedingly. British brains gave it of their best, and the wise expenditure of British money caused the desert almost to blossom like the rose. Egyptian rule would mean inefficiency, sloth, corruption and cruelty; and probably it would give the signal to the slave traders of Abyssinia to resume the nefarious traffic which the British Government has outlawed. So far as Egypt itself is concerned, Zaghlul Pasha can have virtually anything that he wants. In fact, if not in name, the Egyptians already have complete autonomy; and a very sorry mess they are making of it. Mr. Macdonald may find little difficulty in meeting the sentimental demands of Zaghlul Pasha in regard to details, but he cannot yield an inch in the matter of the Sudan.

A Modern Magician.

Mr. Nevil Maskelyne, son of the founder of "Maskelyne's Mysteries," has died; but what is now almost a national institution is to be carried on by his children. When all but the most elderly among us were young that glorified conjuring show was already so famous that every right-minded child visiting London expected to be taken to see it as soon as possible after the necessary visits to Westminster Abbey and the Tower. It is good news that there are still enough mystery-lovers to keep the Egyptian Hall filled twice daily all the year round; or are we to suspect that parents and uncles, conducting the "wiser youngsters of to-day" round the Metropolis, make their juvenile company an excuse for a visit to the old place of entertainment in hope to live again, for an evening, their own childhood? Now that natural forces have been so tamed that they will light lamps at the turn of a switch and bring voices and moving visions from the world's end into darkened halls—wonders beyond the fabled exploits of Arabian genii—we do not find the conjuror in such favour as of old at public and private entertainments. Little boys who have "wireless" receiving sets at home yawn at parties where persevering entertainers produce rabbits from borrowed hats; and even at the country fairs in backward places the "trick o' the loop man" has a diminished following. Even if the Egyptian Hall, a generation hence, should have to close its doors for ever, the Maskelyne family should be remembered among those who have added most to the lighter pleasures of three generations. Perhaps, too, they have done a national service in helping to destroy credulity and to foster a critical spirit. By reproducing on the stage the illusions which the Sludges have pretended to be of supernatural origin the Maskelynes have guarded the public against many charlatans. Recently the failure of an Indian magician at Wembley to reproduce the legendary "rope-trick" under Western eyes has confirmed the long-standing protest made by the Maskelynes against that preposterous Eastern pretension. The late Mr. Maskelyne produced his ingenious tricks by virtue of a remarkable gift which ran in the family. He invented many useful mechanical commodities, and during the war assisted the Government with certain valuable contrivances.

Constantinople.

Constantinople is now but the shadow of a great name. Efforts are being made to save the city from complete decay, and a commission has been established to inquire into the possibility of reconstruction by town-planning methods. It is significant of the loss of political and commercial importance that the Prefect of the city, as we learn from the correspondent of the Morning Post, declares that schemes must be considered for the attraction of "tourists and tourists' money." He recommends the building of modern hotels, theatres, "amusement palaces" and even "gambling casinos." He advises the demolition of the Byzantine sea-walls and the use of the material to build marine quays. It is to be hoped that the last recommendation will not be adopted; for to destroy the fragmentary relics of the works of Constantine would be to rob the city of a precious part of its interest for antiquaries. Constantinople contains in St. Sophia what many regard as the most beautiful building in the world; but when the Turks seized it, in 1453, they plastered over the mosaics which, if they could be restored to-day, would be the wonder and delight of the artistic world. When Constantine built his New Rome on the site of old Byzantium, sixteen hundred years ago, he founded an imperial city which dominated Eastern Christendom until it fell to Islam and became the capital of another faith. Its greatness has passed; but Constantinople will remain one of the most historical spots in Europe.

LONDON LETTER.

THE BOUNDARY PROBLEM.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

Sir James Craig, who was accompanied by Colonel Spender, the Secretary of the Northern Ireland Cabinet, paid a visit this morning to the Unionist Central Office for a conversation with some of the Conservative leaders, and subsequently carried out several other engagements on matters affecting Ulster. I understand that Sir James Craig is remaining in London until Parliament meets next week, and he probably will see Mr. Thomas on his arrival from South Africa and before he introduces the Amending Bill in the House of Commons. Sir James also will have a meeting in London with the Ulster Unionist members of the Imperial Parliament before the House meets.

Mr. F. Loverseed, the Liberal member for Sudbury, who has returned from Ireland, where he was one of the Parliamentary representatives who visited President Cosgrave, states that the deputation urged with all its strength the bringing together of the representatives of the North and South in order to settle their own differences. He says that President Cosgrave, when asked if he and his Government would agree to the findings of a Boundary Commission whatever that might be, replied that they were willing to abide by the decision. The deputation found that the South desired to come to terms.

The Shadow Cabinet

A meeting of what is known as the "Shadow Cabinet" was held this morning, when a number of Conservative ex-Ministers were present. It is probable that, in addition to the boundary question, the arrangements for the conference of the National Unionist Association, to be held at Newcastle-on-Tyne on October 1st, were discussed. Viscount Cecil of Chelwood is to move a resolution urging that there shall be a modification of the powers and composition of the House of Lords to ensure that no far-reaching changes can be made without the consent of the electorate. Somewhat similar proposals will be put forward by other delegates, while a member of the Central Unionist Council will propose that the name of the National Unionist Association shall be changed to National Conservative Union.

Zaghlul Pasha.

Zaghlul Pasha, the Prime Minister of Egypt, arrived in London this evening, accompanied by several officials, including his Foreign Minister and Minister of Communications. He went to Claridge's Hotel, which will be his headquarters until Saturday, when he expects to leave London for Paris. He was met at Dover by the members of the Egyptian Legation, and at Victoria by many members of the Egyptian Colony in London. The Pasha is to meet the Prime Minister on Thursday, when what is described in official circles as an informal talk is to take place. It is understood that the British policy regarding the Sudan is unchanged in its broad lines, though there may be some slight rearrangement. It is regarded as probable that a more formal conference will result from the meeting.

Policewomen.

As soon as Mr. Arthur Henderson returns to London from Geneva he will confer with Home Office officials with regard to the recommendations of the departmental committee on the employment of policewomen. Sir Nevil Macready suggested two hundred as the number of policewomen for London, and this proposal will receive early consideration. Opinion in the House of Commons is by no means unanimous with regard to the employment of women police. Some members hold that as a war-time experiment the plan was not a success, but that, while so many men are unemployed, the scheme ought not to be revived at present. In the provinces the matter rests with the local police authorities, but so far there has been little inclination to raise any considerable body of women police.

Mr. Churchill.

The announcement that Mr. Churchill is to be the constitutional candidate for the Epping Division will make his speech at Edinburgh, on Thursday, all the more interesting. This speech is the result of much discussion; for when it was agreed that Sir Robert Horne and Mr. Churchill should speak from the same platform it was specially decided at the Conservative headquarters that the speech should be delivered in Scotland and not in England. Now that Mr. Churchill is a recognised constitutional candidate, if not exactly a declared Conservative, it is possible that a demand will be made upon his services for much public speaking in the South.

The Late Mr. J. Y. McPeake.

The funeral of the late Mr. J. Y. McPeake took place this morning at 11.30 o'clock at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cemetery, Kensal Green. It was attended only by the immediate members of the family, and, in obedience to the wish expressed, there were no wreaths with the exception of one from Mrs. McPeake and her two sons; one from Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hearst and fellow-workers in America, and another from the staff of Nash's Magazine and Good Housekeeping. At eleven o'clock the members of the staff of the two journals attended a short Service conducted by the Vicar at St. Bride's Church, Fleet street.

A Novel Street.

A street with two roadways, one above the other, is to be built in Chicago, and the work is to begin almost at once. Traffic congestion has made the old street almost useless, and it was decided that one roadway should be built for trucks and horse-drawn traffic and another for motors and pedestrians. It is estimated that the cost of construction will be about five million pounds, but the change will save about one million annually by eliminating the congestion. The street will be over a mile long, and the motor way will be eighty feet wide.

Excursions.

Although the winter time-tables are now in operation, the railway companies have decided to continue some of the summer excursions until the end of next month. This applies particularly to Ireland and Scotland, and to and from the principal seaside resorts. Week-end tickets are also to be issued at the same reduced fares as have been operative during the summer. So far as London is concerned, the railway companies have not this year been subjected to the same competition from motor coaches as last year. During the present season there has been a shortage of large motor vehicles, most of which for many miles round have been drawn to London for the purpose of conveying the many visitors to town to the principal sights.

Champagne

Champagne experts, who have been abroad to discover the prospects of the vintage this year, have returned with rather doleful stories, reporting that in many instances the champagne is more like vinegar than wine. The stocks of the 1914, 1917 and 1919 vintages have all been bought up, and consequently the indications are that there will be a considerable advance in the price of sparkling wines before long.

CLOGHER DIOCESAN SYNOD.

Clogher Diocesan Synod will meet in the Parochial Hall, Enniskillen, next Friday, at 11.30 a.m. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in St. Macartan's Cathedral at 10.15 a.m.

THE BOUNDARY PROBLEM.

PROTEST MEETING AT ENNISKILLEN.

MR. ANDREWS AND THE TREATY.

MR. CRAWFORD GREEN'S REMARKABLE SPEECH.

A meeting of loyalists at Enniskillen yesterday passed a resolution expressing determination to remain within the British Empire, and declaring that Britain's honour was involved in ke ping the pledges given to Northern Ireland in connection with the Act of 1920.

Mr. J. M. Andrews, Minister of Labour, appealed to the people of Southern Ireland to bury the past, "with its crimes and horrors and misery," and to make a new start, accepting Great Britain as a sister island, and "the Empire as the Empire of us all." If they should do this, he saw no reason why Ireland's two Governments should not go forward with mutual good-will. "But," he added, "our Parliament, our area, and our rights we are determined to maintain."

Mr. Crawford Green, Unionist member for Worcester, said that he had seen Mr. Cosgrave and Mr. Kevin O'Higgins, and heard what they had got to say, and now "he was convinced that Ulster's case was the right one." If force was used against them, then he would say "Strike!" Did they think that English politicians would be so mad as to ask the British Army to fire on loyalists who had the Union Jack over their heads and the words "God Save the King" in their mouths? If bad times came, "there were many Englishmen whose arms and bodies would be at their service, and who would help them financially as well as in the field."

From Our Reporter.

ENNISKILLEN, Tuesday.

A meeting of loyalists of the County Fermanagh was held at Enniskillen this afternoon to protest against territory being taken from Northern Ireland "against her wishes." The weather was cold and showery, but there was a very large attendance. Before the meeting a Union Jack and other British flags were prominent among the decorations.

On the motion of Sir Charles Falls, the Right Hon. E. M. Archdale, Minister for Agriculture, took the chair.

The Chairman said that they were met for the last time before the meeting of the Imperial Parliament to reiterate their determination to hold fast for the British Empire the six counties. (Cheers.) They took those six counties, unwillingly, at the special request of the British Ministers, on the understanding that it was a final settlement, and that it was for the good of the British Empire; and they were determined to hold fast to that promise. Why, then, all the talk about "honour?" Why, even His Majesty the King and Her Majesty the Queen came over and put the final solemn seal on that gift to them of the six counties. It was only because the Free State Government was pressing these gentlemen, who called themselves Ministers of the Crown in England, that they talked about "honour."

What were the temptations that they were giving to them to come in? Compulsory Irish! (Laughter.) Then they were pestering and bothering merchants in the Free State with increased taxation, with Customs duties and fiscal duties which were ruining trade. The Free State Exchequer was nearly bankrupt. (A voice: "They are done.") He believed that his friend was telling the truth. They had done away with the King's head on everything. They had done away with the King's name in their oaths and at their toasts, and, as a last resort, they had demobilised that grand force, the Royal Irish Constabulary, who, they said, were not in sympathy with the people.

THE BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

Mr. J. M. Andrews, Minister of Labour, said that it had been suggested, in view of Lord Birkenhead's recently published letter, which made clear the British signatories' intention that the Treaty should refer only to a rectification of the boundary, that they in Northern Ireland would have been justified at their recent Cabinet meeting in London in altering their previous decision, declining to appoint a representative of Northern Ireland on the Boundary Commission. Their Government had come definitely and finally to the conclusion that they could not safely respond to that appeal. "Rectification" was a plausible word. On the one hand, it might be considered by the Commission to imply very little alteration of the present boundary; on the other hand, it might possibly be taken to mean a great deal.

They felt that if they once recognised the Commission by appointing an Ulster member they would in reality be agreeing to submit to arbitration the fate of all their people along the frontier line. That, under no circumstance, would they do. They preferred to take their stand on the Act of 1920, which gave them their Parliament, their Six-County area, and those rights and powers which they enjoyed. They were not prepared to agree to allow these powers to be impaired, or that any loyal citizen of Northern Ireland should be forced without his consent to go under a flag other than the Union Jack with all that it had stood for through the centuries, and all that it still stood for to-day.

DESIRE FOR PEACE.

Ulster's leaders earnestly desired peace throughout the whole of Ireland. In his opinion real peace could never be obtained so long as those responsible for affairs in Southern Ireland kept nibbling at their boundary line. Legislative union, confined to Ireland, was unthinkable and impossible, and the only way in which union could be brought about was through the re-establishment of the Act of Union, and the restoration as the governing Parliament for the whole of the United Kingdom, the mother Parliament at Westminster. Until that day came, whether it might be soon or late, all that Ulster asked was to be left alone to develop within the United Kingdom, her industries and agriculture, and to pursue those ideals of social life and service which she held in common with her fellow citizens in Great Britain and throughout the Empire.

Let them be true to their great traditions, and rest satisfied that their Prime Minister and his colleagues would, in no circumstances, and under no conditions, now or in the future, agree to their being forced under the Free State and Republican flag. Lord Cave in a letter to The Times, of August 30, asserted that coercive legislation of the character now proposed by the British Government was definitely unconstitutional. Lord Grey was reported to have stated in Edinburgh, last week, that if a Commission was set up compulsorily to rectify the Ulster boundary in the Free State sense, such action would be inconsistent with the pledge which was made to Ulster.

He had ventured, apart from politics, to make a public appeal to the leaders in Southern Ireland on former occasions. In the same spirit he now did so again, because upon its acceptance he saw clearly that the fate of Southern Ireland depended. Let the people of the South bury the past, with its crimes, and horrors and misery. Let them make a new start. Let the leaders educate their people to develop a wider patriotism, accepting Great Britain as a sister island and the Empire as the Empire of them all. "If they do these things," he concluded, "I see no reason why Ireland's two Governments should not go forward with mutual good-will, and I can assure our fellow-countrymen in the South that every loyal man and woman in Ulster will wish them well. But when I say this I must add that our Parliament, our area, and our rights we are determined to maintain." (Cheers.)

RESOLUTION OF PROTEST.

Mr. D. D Reid, K.C., proposed the following resolution:—

"That we, the loyalists of the County of Fermanagh, in meeting assembled, hereby reiterate our allegiance to the Crown and Constitution as by law established. That we congratulate the Government of Northern Ireland on the complete restoration of law and order, and assure them of our hearty support in all their efforts to maintain peace within our borders, whereby alone prosperity, happiness and contentment can be secured.

"That we place on record our determination to remain part of the British Empire, to whose up-building countless Ulstermen have contributed, and in whose defence they have proved how nobly they can fight and die.

"That we hold that the Government of Ireland Act of 1920—whereby the six-county area was irrevocably granted to us, and which we only accepted on distinct and solemn pledges by the British Government that it was a final settlement—is binding and conclusive, and that Britain's honour is involved in keeping those pledges.

"We protest against territory being taken from Northern Ireland against her wishes, and we are determined to resist by every means in our power any attempt to drive loyal citizens from under the Union Jack without their consent."

Mr. Reid said that the first bout in this fight would begin next week, and the weight would fall upon the representatives of Northern Ireland. The assault that was being made now was an assault mainly on the Counties of Fermanagh and Tyrone, but the existence of the other Northern counties depended upon it. What struck him was the want of reason and argument on the part of the British Government at the present time. One reason was given by the Colonial Secretary—he said that it was a question of honour. They took their stand on the settlement that was embodied in the Act of 1920. There was a distinct pledge to them. It was useless for Mr. Thomas to talk about honour and the carrying out of the Treaty. The Treaty itself was a breach of honour, and there could be no honour in carrying out what in itself was an act of treachery. (Cheers.)

If the Commission sat to-morrow and gave its verdict there was no certainty that its result would be legal. It would set up conflicting jurisdictions in the Northern counties. Supposing that the Commission handed over portion of Northern Ireland to the Free State, how was it going to be carried out? Were they going to submit to it? ("Never.") Why was the Government bringing in this bill? They wanted to please contending sections in Southern Ireland. The Government said to themselves that there was a danger of the Republican Party in Southern Ireland getting the upper hand, and that if they handed over a sufficient number of loyalists to the Free State that they would be able to bribe the wobblers to the side of the Free State. He had no fear as to the future. Right and justice were on their side. His last word to them was—"Be strong, and of good courage." (Cheers.)

TWO PURPOSES.

Mr. Edward Murphy, K.C., seconded the resolution. He said that the meeting would effect two purposes. It would show that on this boundary question the loyalists of Fermanagh were determined and inflexible. (Cheers.) It would also demonstrate that there, and in the border counties, they had the whole of Ulster at their back.

They were on the eve of a meeting of Parliament. That was the beginning of a time of crisis, when this boundary question should be settled for good or evil. Had anything happened to change their views about the boundary question? ("No.") He thought that everything that had happened for the last three years had gone to show how right Ulster was about this boundary question, and that they had no reason to change their views about it. What had they seen in the

SUPPORT FOR THE NORTH.

RECTIFICATIONS OF THE BOUNDARY.

ATTITUDE OF BRITISH CONSERVATIVES.

The bill amending the Irish Treaty is referred to in the report of the Council of the National Unionist Association signed by Lord Selborne, which is to be presented to the annual conference at Newcastle on October 1st next. The report says:—

"The Unionist Party, closely associated for many years with the Unionists of Ulster, can give no support to the pretensions of the Sinn Fein and Republican Parties that large areas of the territory, which Parliament agreed by the Act of 1920 should form Northern Ireland, should be transferred to the Irish Free State. The Council welcomes the willingness of the Ulster Government to agree to such bona-fide rectifications of the boundary as may be desirable. It recalls, however, the discussion and terms of the resolution passed at the annual Conference at Liverpool in 1921, with especial reference to the position of Ulster."

The report also states that "everyone realises that the political situation is marked by extreme instability and that it is necessary to be prepared, as a general election may come at any time."

An interesting resolution in the name of Mrs. Mitchell, of Newcastle, states "that this Conference greatly desires to see more Conservative working men and women members of Parliament, and considers their absence a grave danger to the party and the State. It, therefore, urges the executives, national and provincial, to supply all facilities for the selection and nomination of suitable candidates for Parliament and their return as members of the House of Commons."

The proposal to drop the title of "Unionist" is revived in a motion to be moved by Mr. H. Crouch Batchelor, a member of the Central Council, who will move "that the name of the Association be changed to the National Conservative Union."

SIR J. CRAIG IN LONDON.

TO SEE MR. MACDONALD BEFORE PARLIAMENT SITS.

From A Political Correspondent.

LONDON, Tuesday.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald and Sir James Craig are to meet to discuss the Irish boundary problem before Parliament reassembles next Tuesday.

Departmental responsibility for Irish affairs is shared by Mr. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Home Secretary; but as both of these Ministers are out of the country at the present moment the Prime Minister is, so far as his other cares will permit, keeping in touch with developments in the Irish situation.

Sir James Craig arrived in London to-day, and it is understood that the Prime Minister has sought an opportunity of having a talk with him. Politicians do not anticipate such a development in the situation during the next few days as would relieve the Government from the obligation of proceeding with the Irish Boundary Bill, the second reading of which is fixed for next Tuesday.

Before Sir James returns to Belfast next week he will have a meeting in London with the Ulster Unionist members of the Imperial Parliament.

"MODERATE CONCLUSIONS."

SIR DONALD MACLEAN ON THE COMMISSION.

Referring to the Irish question at Manchester yesterday Sir Donald Maclean said that their duty was to see that the Boundary Commission was set up and operated within its defined limits. At the conclusion of its labours it would be for Ulster and the Free State to decide what action they should take on its findings. He felt sure they would be moderate findings, and that it would be all the worse for either the South or the North of Ireland if they refused and rejected moderate conclusions.

£17,000,000 COTTON SCHEME.

BIG PROJECT IN IRAQ.

From Our Special Correspondent.

LONDON, Tuesday.

A concession for a £17,000,000 cotton-growing scheme in Iraq has been granted to Dr. Assar, the Syrian financier, who is turning it over to a syndicate in which the Norton Griffiths Company is interested.

The project is regarded by the Iraq Government as one with enormous potentialities and as offering the assurance of prosperity for the country. The whole scheme is to be worked in a series of undertakings to be operated independently, with a concession in each case for sixty years and with the possibility of a renewal for another twenty years.

All the works erected on Government lands and all the lands placed at the concessionaire's disposal, with the constructions on them, are to be handed over to the Government at the end of sixty years.

The first scheme is to be embarked upon this year, and will involve less than £500,000. The Government, for the period of the concession, will be entitled to a percentage not to exceed 11 per cent., the figure to be definitely fixed after considering the financial aspect of each separate project.

It is expected that the development of the Iraq territory, where it has been proved that high-grade cotton can be raised, should benefit the Lancashire textile industry in view of the cotton scarcity. Save in the case of skilled or technical labour, the agricultural employés must be recruited from Arabic-speaking countries. It is probable that there will be a big migration of Egyptian fellaheen to Iraq.

The concession provides for the exemption of Custom dues on all material and agricultural machinery necessary for carrying out the project.

Dr. Assar, who is a friend of the King of Iraq, has a financial reputation in the East, and has previously obtained concessions from the Turkish Government for French and Belgian interests.

CAVAN WANTS A GRANT.

"FACED WITH FOOD AND FUEL FAMINE."

A food and fuel famine is threatened in County Cavan, according to a correspondent who states that the hay crop in the low lying lands is under water. A considerable amount of the turf crop is reported to be beyond redemption, and as large numbers of people in the remote villages have to depend on the turf crop for fuel, owing to the high price of coal, and the difficulty of obtaining delivery in the mountainous districts, the outlook is serious. The oats crop, in many districts is in danger of being lost, while potatoes are beginning to rot in the ground.

The County Board of Health has asked the Government to give a grant of £2,000 for home help in order to save the poor from utter starvation. It is suggested that the Government should send down an inspector to investigate the plight which faces the small farmers and labourers.

EXCHEQUER RETURNS.

IRISH FREE STATE FIGURES.

The Free State revenue during the week ending September 20th amounted to £712,048, as compared with £311,984 in the previous week, an increase of £400,064. To this total Customs contributed £142,000, as compared with £146,000 in the previous week; Excise, £580,000 (as compared with £65,000); income tax, £145,000, compared with £62,000; and estate duties, £17,000, as against £13,000. Other sources of revenue are almost unchanged. The total receipts into the Exchequer to date amount to £13,002,313, compared with the previous total of £12,285,265, an increase of £717,048, the revenue total being increased by an extra £5,000 from Savings Certificates.

On the expenditure side, the disbursements for supply and Central Fund services amounted to £46,294, compared with £51,065 in the previous week, the total to September 20 being £9,670,477, as compared with £9,623,183 up to September 13. Total issues out of the Exchequer have not been increased by "other issues," which remain the same, making the total £10,716,477. The balance in the Exchequer is rising, and now stands at £5,680,348, an increase of £669,954.

It is evident that the Minister of Finance is bent on dressing the window well at the close of the half-year next week. His estimate of tax and non-tax revenue for the year was £27,687,300, and of this sum he has already gathered in £11,273,500, and his "experimental tariffs" may be said to be only coming into operation.

MORE POWER WANTED.

MUNICIPAL SCHEMES ADVOCATED.

CONFERENCE IN DUBLIN.

CRITICISM OF SHANNON SCHEME.

That the present total output of electricity in Ireland should at least be doubled during the ensuing five years was the view expressed by Mr. P. A. Spalding, of Dundalk, at the eleventh annual meeting of the Association of Municipal Authorities of Ireland, which was held in Dublin yesterday. He stated that the present conditions were distinctly favourable for the promotion of supply schemes throughout the country, but he thought that they were distinctly unfavourable to the promotion of the Shannon scheme, which would take from ten to fifteen years to complete.

He advanced the view that in the future peat-driven electricity works might be introduced with the hydro-electric schemes. For the present he advocated local municipal schemes.

The Electrical Supply Association, which also held its annual conference in Dublin yesterday, also criticised the Shannon scheme in its report, and put forward the view that the power supply industry would be developed more naturally and economically by local schemes.

LOCAL ELECTRICITY SCHEMES.

DEMAND FOR POWER IN THE PROVINCES.

The eleventh annual conference of the Association of Municipal Authorities of Ireland was opened yesterday morning in the Council Chamber of the City Hall, Dublin, Dr. Walsh (Galway) presiding, in the absence of Alderman George Hadden, Wexford, who was to have occupied the chair.

Among the letters of apology for absence was one from President Cosgrave, who regretted that owing to previous engagements he could not attend the meeting.

The Chairman expressed his regret that Alderman Hadden had been unable to attend at the opening of the Conference.

The first business taken up was the reading of a paper entitled "Electricity Supply in the Provincial Towns of Ireland," by Mr. P. A. Spalding, Dundalk.

In the course of his paper he stated that if the first Labour Government considered it obligatory to foster schemes of electrical development in England, one was justified in looking to the Government of this country also to give due attention to the problem. The relative proportion of electrical undertakings in Great Britain and in Ireland and of their output was that there were two and a half times as many undertakings in Great Britain as in Ireland per million of population, having a combined output eight times as great. It was obvious from this comparison that the development of electricity in Ireland was very backward, and it was evident that a rapid improvement must be made if this country was to be capable of withstanding industrial competition from other nations. The present total output of electricity in Ireland should be at least doubled during the ensuing five years, but this could only be achieved by the various public bodies concerned speeding up the introduction of electricity into the several areas under their control.

Analysing the distribution of public electricity supply schemes in operation in Ireland, and recalling the expense necessary in the past for obtaining statutory powers for electricity undertakings, Mr. Spalding said that by facilities which were being arranged by the Free State Government it was anticipated that the cost of obtaining a special order in future would not exceed £25, and that Parliamentary sanction to the order would involve a short delay of only two or three months. Quoting Section 2 of the English Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, he said that it was essential that this proviso should be embodied in the proposed Electricity Bill for the Free State, as it would relieve local authorities who were launching electricity supply schemes of a heavy financial burden during the first year of operation of these schemes, when the receipts from the supply are usually insufficient to meet both the interest and the repayment charges on the borrowed capital. The suspension of the sinking fund charge during the first financial year would enable a surplus to be carried forward, so that by the end of the second year of operation the undertaking would be able to discharge all its liabilities and incur no charge on the local rates.

The public interests would be better served if the local authority owned the electricity supply undertaking. It might be stated with truth that present conditions were distinctly favourable for the promotion of electricity supply schemes throughout the country. One indisputable argument in favour of the promotion of electricity schemes, even at the smallest towns, was that the prices now charged for the gas in these towns is very high, in many cases exceeding 10s. per 1,000 cubic feet. Electricity could profitably be supplied at from 10d. to 1s. per unit, at which price the cost of lighting to the consumer would barely be one-half as much as it is now with gas.

THE SHANNON SCHEME.

"During the early part of this year," continued Mr. Spalding, "a considerable amount of interest was aroused by the publication of a Government White Paper referring to the report of a well-known German firm who suggested that the present and future electricity requirements of the entire Free State could be provided for by utilising the water power of the River Shannon. A definite scheme has since been formulated by this firm, which was submitted to the Government quite recently, and will be referred in due course to two well-known European experts for their opinion. Until the views of these experts are made known it would be premature to discuss the matter at any length now. One may, however, be excused making a brief reference to a few points that have an important bearing on such proposals as the Shannon scheme, because there is undoubtedly a feeling with some municipal bodies that they ought to "wait and see" what is going to happen with this big project.

"The carrying out of a hydro-electric scheme of this magnitude involves a very heavy initial capital expenditure, and it is therefore essential to the economical working of the scheme that a market will be available for the disposal of practically the whole output of electricity from the plant almost from the inauguration of the supply. The principal existing markets for the sale of this supply are the cities of Dublin and Cork, for each of which it would be necessary to erect a duplicate transmission line over 75 miles in length. It would be folly to suggest that it could be possible to negotiate within one year or even five years, all the legal and technical matters that would be involved before all the existing electricity users in these cities would commence taking a supply from the Shannon scheme. It is extremely doubtful whether these consumers all would consent to take this supply, unless they are quoted specially favourable terms.

Long transmission lines involve considerable expense in upkeep and maintenance, and the annual electrical losses will be of some magnitude. Having regard to these expenses of operation, and to the added charges of interest on capital and annual repayment, it is problematical whether the supply could possibly be offered on competitive terms at either of these cities. It is taking far too much for granted to assume, for the purpose of estimating the probable sources of revenue, that all the present users of electricity in Dublin and Cork would ever take their entire supply from the Shannon scheme. KING BORIS OF BULGARIA.

ASSASSINATION REPORT

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Wednesday.

Boris II., King of Bulgaria, who, according to unconfirmed reports received in London early this morning, has been assassinated at Belgrade, was the eldest son of Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha ("Foxy Ferdinand") and of the late Marie Louise (who died January, 1899).

Born in January, 1894, he succeeded to the Throne on the abdication of his father, October 3rd, 1918. He had one brother and two sisters—Prince Cyril (born November, 1895), Princess Eudoxia (born January, 1898) and Princess Nadejda (born January, 1899).

His father, who allied himself with the Kaiser, and was driven from the Throne by the Allies, was elected in 1877 by the unanimous vote of the Grand National Assembly. It is not clear whether the reported crime has any relation to the recent murder of Alexander, the Bulgarian revolutionary.

EARTHQUAKES IN ICELAND.

PEOPLE SLEEPING IN THE OPEN AIR.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ICELAND, Tuesday.

Severe earthquakes, accompanied by volcanic disturbances, have been creating havoc throughout South-West Iceland during the whole of this month. Villages in the vicinity of Krysivik have suffered extensive damage. The shocks have felled farm buildings and opened wide crevices brimming over with molten lava and giving off thick sulphur fumes. The people in this region are not daring to go to sleep in their houses, and are now spending the nights on and under haystacks in the open fields. If the disturbances do not cease before the bitter Northern winter sets in, a large part of the population will be forced to give up their homes.

Mount Hekla, a big volcano, whose activity kept Iceland in terror up to seventy-five years ago, is still wrapped in peaceful slumber, but the very idea that she may be wakened again is filling the Icelanders in the northern towns with dread. A great pall of heavy black smoke is now hanging over Krysivik.

ZAGHLUL IN LONDON.

EGYPTIAN DEMONSTRATION.

A picturesque reception awaited Zaghlul Pasha when he arrived at Victoria Station, London, yesterday afternoon from Paris to confer with Mr. Ramsay Macdonald on the future of Egypt and the Sudan. Cars decorated with Egyptian flags stood lined up by the platform. They were crowded with Egyptian and Sudanese students from the Universities of London, Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Bristol, Cardiff, Liverpool, Dundee, and Aberdeen. All wore rosettes surrounded by a small button portrait of Zaghlul, and each carried a green flag.

As the train drew up at the platform, a young man, apparently the leader of the students, shouted "Long live the King of Egypt and the Sudan," and the crowd repeated the sentence in chorus. "Long live Zaghlul Pasha," he cried, and the entire throng followed suit. A floral bouquet was presented to Mme. Zaghlul as she alighted by Egyptian girl students.

The Egyptian leader hurried across the platform into a motor car and drove to Claridge's Hotel, accompanied by various members of the Egyptian Cabinet. Among those greeting him were Mr. W. Selby, representing the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Sir Ronald Waterhouse, the Prime Minister's Private Secretary.

Zaghlul Pasha will see Mr. Macdonald at 10 Downing street at 10.30 on Thursday morning.

Zaghlul had a very rough and stormy crossing from France. He kept to his cabin throughout the trip and was suffering so much on arriving at Dover that for some time he was unable to leave the steamer. Eventually he was led to his saloon, and although still in distress stopped once or twice for the photographers. On reaching the train he rested on cushions.

MR. ART O'BRIEN AND IRELAND.

"NO BOUNDARY QUESTION."

Mr. Art O'Brien, President, and Mr. Sean McGrath, General Secretary, were given a reception in London last night by the Irish Self-Determination League of Great Britain, following their release last July from imprisonment on charges of seditious conspiracy.

Mr. O'Brien said that the pernicious document called the Treaty had brought civil war and discord to Ireland. It was founded and maintained on fraud. There was no boundary question in Ireland, which knew none but the boundaries of the four seas. Whatever the consequences, he and Mr. McGrath would continue to work for a complete, separate and independent Ireland, and would struggle for recognition of the Irish Republic.

THE MERSEY TUNNEL.

£7,000,000 SCHEME.

It is understood, says The Times, that owing to the decision of the Treasury to give substantial help towards the Mersey tunnel project the work will be put in hand shortly. The scheme is estimated to cost seven million pounds.

SOVIET NAVAL PROGRAMME

50 MILLION GOLD ROUBLES ALLOTTED.

RIGA, Tuesday.

According to a report published in the Latvian Press, the Soviet Government has already ratified the following programme of naval construction, to be completed within the next four years:—

The Baltic Fleet—Two light cruisers of 3,200 tons, and a speed of 23 knots; four torpedo boats of 1,400 tons, 36 knots, Parsons' turbines; seven submarines, 950 and 1,150 tons, with a surface speed of 13 knots and a submerged speed of 9 knots; three armoured anti-submarine cutters, 140 tons, 48 knots.

Black Sea Fleet—One light cruiser, eight torpedo boats, twelve armoured cutters, six mine-sweepers.

Pacific waters—Four gunboats.

Arctic waters—Two gunboats of 1,300 tons and a speed of 12 knots.

The Government allotted 50 million gold roubles for the 1924 Naval Budget, but the Navy Department has not yet received the sum.—(Reuter.)

DESTRUCTIVE STORM IN AMERICA.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Fifty dead, two hundred injured, and one and a half million dollars damage to property has been caused by a storm in Minnesota, Wisconsin. It is expected that communication with outlying towns will reveal greater losses.—(Reuter.)

Signor Mussolini arrived at Vicenza yesterday, and was received with much enthusiasm.

Three Moscow workmen left Moscow on September 15 on a motor cycle journey through Europe, with the idea of visiting Berlin, Paris and London.

FIGHTING IN GEORGIA.

"RED TERROR."

OVER 5,000 PERSONS EXECUTED.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TREBIZOND, Tuesday.

The Cheka has started a Red terror throughout Georgia as punishment for the uprising. The majority of the victims are peasants, shopkeepers and teachers. Many women have been massacred.

Reports reaching here state that at Tiflis nearly a thousand persons have been executed already, and in all Georgia more than five thousand.

New detachments of troops are reported to be arriving daily at Batoum, including many from the Red Army concentrations along the Rumanian Polish frontier.

In face of the assemblage of the estimated fifty thousand Bolshevik troops, the Turkish General Staff is being forced to concentrate more troops along the Georgian frontier.

The sporadic uprisings throughout Azeradjian, Armenia and Deghastan have all been localised by the Bolshevik authorities with little loss, except the destruction of the many oil wells at Baku, but desperate fighting is still going on in Georgia, it is reported here.

PARIS, Tuesday.

According to a statement issued by the Georgia Legation, a state of war has been declared throughout the whole country. Important Soviet forces, with heavy artillery, are operating between Soukhom and Otehanskirir.—(Reuter.)

£500,000 FOR SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY.

PLANS FOR A FACTORY IN NORTH CORK.

A scheme for the establishment of the sugar beet industry is being promoted by the North Cork Industrial Development Committee, of Buttevant, which states that a big financial house is willing to erect a factory at Buttevant and to invest £500,000. provided the landowners in that area are willing to place 4,000 acres under sugar beet during the first year and 8,000 in sixteen succeeding years.

Basing its calculations on the Department of Agriculture's experiments and the production costs in Great Britain, the Committee anticipates that the grower will receive £43 17s. 6d. per statute acre, or a net profit of £28 17s. 6d. This figure, it believes, could be considerably enhanced by good cultivation in the fertile lands of Munster.

To overcome the difficulties of inexperience, the company will employ experts, who will always be at hand from the time the ground is being prepared till the crop is being harvested, to advise and instruct growers. The cultivation is not difficult, and the Committee says that any land that can grow a good crop of mangolds will produce a good crop of sugar beet.

Seeds and manures, it is added, will be supplied at cost price, and need not be paid for till the crop is harvested, when the amount will be deducted from the price of roots, while advances on the crop will be without charging interest in July or August.

DUBLIN'S FISH SUPPLY.

CARTERS REFUSE TO TOUCH MARKET CONSIGNMENTS.

Some small supplies of fish which were consigned to the Dublin Fish Market from Balbriggan and other Irish fishing ports were held up at the Dublin railway stations yesterday, when a number of carters refused to accept the work of removal. The carters' action was not unexpected. When the strike at the Dublin Fish Market began, the Transport Workers' Union decided to instruct its members to stop handling fish which came through the Dublin Corporation Market, as a retaliatory measure against the Irish Workers' Union, for refusing to work with the only member of the Transport Union employed by the fish salesmen at the market.

Arrangements for delivery were made without loss of time, and a fair supply of fish, chiefly from Howth, Balbriggan, and the West of Ireland, got through in time for the daily market. The fish were auctioned by two salesmasters, and all lots were sold at good prices. Plaice fetched as much as 90s. a box, and soles 30s.

The poorer classes are affected most by the strike, there having been little or no fish available for the hawkers who plied from door to door daily in the tenement areas of the city.

The supplies of imported fish, so far, have been sufficient to meet the demand in Dublin. Larger consignments are expected on Friday. The imported fish come to Dublin by one route only, being sent by the various fishing centres in England and Scotland over the London, Midland, and Scottish Railway Company's system, and shipped at Holyhead.

RECORD VOTE PREDICTED.

"PRESIDENT COOLIDGE WILL BE RE-ELECTED."

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Tuesday.

More than thirty million votes will be cast in the American national elections on November 4, according to a forecast made by Chairman William Butler, of the Republican National Committee. This figure is four millions more than the total vote cast for the President of the United States in 1920, when Mr. Harding was elected with a seven million plurality.

Chairman Butler bases his prediction upon the unusually large vote in the main election, and in the primary elections of eight States, including Massachusetts, Michigan, Colorado, Washington and Vermont.

Mr. Butler says that he is confident that President Coolidge will be elected.

WIRELESS NAVIGATION.

DIRECTIONAL STATION IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Tuesday.

A new directional wireless station, now being completed by the General Post Office at Niton, Isle of Wight, will come into operation in a few weeks. It is designed to assist in the navigation of the Channel, particularly during fogs.

The matter of Channel navigation has been under consideration by the British Post Office and Board of Trade for some time, said a Post Office official to-day, and the new station is the first step towards improving the Channel wireless service.

It was stated that the payment of 5s. to the Post Office incurred by each shipmaster who wished to know his position was necessary, because so far the wireless service could not be provided free of charge.

BRITISH POLO DEFEAT.

COLONEL A. SCOTT DUFF'S TRIBUTE TO AMERICANS.

Colonel A. Scott Duff, manager of the Hurlingham Polo Club, who arrived at Southampton from New York yesterday, said that the defeat of the British Polo team at Meadowbrook was principally due to the magnificent hitting and combination of the American players, who were the best side that had ever represented that country.

On the British side, Lacey was brilliant, and Atkinson also played well.

Colonel Scott Duff has arranged for a polo team, representing the American Army, to visit England next summer, and oppose a side representing the British Army. Colonel Scott Duff added that Polo was becoming immensely popular in the United States, and the Government were laying out grounds at all military stations and colleges.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE BOUNDARY BILL:

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent writes:—In order that there shall be as full an attendance of Conservative Members as possible when Parliament reassembles next Tuesday instructions have been given by the Central Office of the Party to cancel all political speeches arranged by members in the country for that night. It is likely that the Boundary Commission Bill will be passed through the House of Commons by the end of next week, and in that event, in view of the decision that no other business shall be taken, the House will adjourn until it has been passed through the House of Lords. It is hoped that it may be possible to pass it through all its stages in nine Parliamentary days.

It is now generally agreed that little can be done by way of amendment in the House of Commons, but in the House of Lords an attempt will certainly be made to define the terms of reference to the Boundary Commission. It was rumoured yesterday that before the meeting of Parliament an interview may be arranged between the Prime Minister and Sir James Craig, but nothing has yet been decided on the point. Sir James Craig, however, is remaining in England at any rate until next Tuesday. He visited London yesterday and fulfilled various important engagement bearing on the subject of the boundary, and other outstanding matters affecting Ulster's interests, and before the reassembly of Parliament he is to have a meeting in London with the Ulster Unionist members of the Imperial Parliament. No step has yet been taken towards a direct meeting between Sir Jams Craig and Mr. Cosgrave, and it is not likely that anything in this direction will be done, at any rate until the Bill has been passed.

GERMANY AND THE LEAGUE.

THE QUESTION OF ADMISSION.

In an editorial article upon the decision of the German Government to endeavour to assure the speedy entry of Germany into the League of Nations, The Times observes:—It is, of course, pretty clear that the German Government did not decide to apply for admission until they had received assurances they could trust that their request would be considered with favour. Dr. Nansen is believed to have conveyed such assurances to Dr. Marx during his recent hurried excursion from Geneva to Heilingberg, and the memorandum which Lord D'Abernon handed to the German Foreign Minister on Monday night, however "strictly guarded" it may have been, doubtless did not discourage an application. But those who may have given assurances or encouraged their transmission may have failed themselves to appreciate the dominant facts of the situation. Some of those facts, it is notorious, have been entirely misunderstood or entirely ignored in influential circles at Geneva. This is notorious and obvious in the treatment of the all-important topic of security.

After what was on the face of it an emphatic repudiation of the Treaty of Mutual Assistance by the Prime Minister, Lord Parmoor and his colleagues seem to have allowed the French Delegation to build up, block by block, a very similar scheme, and to have given their assent to it. It is very hard to make out what the Lord President of the Council has or has not said or done in the maze of contradictions, qualifications and corrections which shroud his utterances. But the general impression produced by the language and attitude attributed to him is that he and his fellow delegates, somehow or other, and in as far as they can, have committed us to the use of the British Navy in certain events as "the big stick" of the League. The mere idea that our Navy should be placed in any contingencies at the disposition of an organisation of foreign lawyers and diplomatists would excite the whole nation to fury could they be persuaded to take it seriously. As a fact they do not take it seriously. They know it to be utterly impracticable, and they intend it to remain so. They are amused, at the same time, by observing the close similarity between the proceedings of Lord Parmoor and his associates at Geneva with those of Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Ponsonby during the Bolshevist Conference. They have observed that the whole of this elaborate work reared by the subcommittees, and so forth, is like the Bolshevist Treaty, altogether in futuro. It is equally contingent and speculative. No part of it is to come into operation until after the projected Disarmament Conference has been held, and has determined the very thorny subject reserved for it. That may be in the summer or at the Greek Kalends or in the Irish equivalent, "at Tibb's Eve."

THE SOVIET TREATY.

GENERAL SEELY'S COMMENT.

Major-General J. E. B. Seely, M.P., writes, in a letter to The Times:—You will permit me to express a view with regard to the proposed Treaty with the Soviet Government which has not yet found expression in your correspondence columns. The settled policy of this country before the war was to make no amicable arrangement with any European Government unless that Government adhered to two elementary principles of civilisation—one, the sanctity of contract; two the sanctity of human life, the second being regarded as even more important than the first. Mr. Gladstone strongly maintained the second principle, with the full assent of his fellow-countrymen. Nevertheless, on the present occasion, for the first time in our history, it is proposed to overlook the sanctity of life if we receive satisfactory assurances on the sanctity of contract. Everyone will remember Mr. Gladstone's passionate denunciation of the cruelties inflicted on political prisoners in the prisons of Naples in 1851. Perhaps, it is not so clearly remembered, but it is the fact that the then Foreign Secretary in the Conservative Ministry of the day, Lord Palmerston, sent copies of Mr. Gladstone's letters to the British representatives at all the Courts of Europe, with instructions to give a copy to each Government, that he warned the Neapolitan Government of the violent revolution that long continued, and widespread injustice would surely bring upon them, and that he urged them to set to work to correct the manifold and grave abuses to which their attention had been drawn. History records that the action of Mr. Gladstone and our Foreign Minister hastened the day of deliverance for the Neapolitans from a cruel tyranny.

Now, sir, it will not be denied that the present Soviet Government has been guilty of "manifold and grave abuses" on a scale immeasurably greater than that denounced by our Foreign Minister seventy-three years ago. Surely, it is our bounden duty, in the name of justice and of our own honourable tradition, to demand from the Soviet Government assurances that the imprisonment and execution of their subjects without fair trial should cease as a condition precedent to any agreement or understanding with them. To conclude a treaty with them in the absence of such assurance would be to condone their offences and to share in their guilt.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

INCREASING ACTIVITY.

There were signs at the opening of the new account yesterday of some slight awakening of professional interest in Stock Exchange Securities, states The Times. The chief excitement of the day occurred in the Oil market, where a demand sprang up for Mexican Eagles. The buying of these shares went on for some time in the "Street," where a price of 22s. was touched, or 5s. above Monday's closing level. It was reported that the company had been deepening some of the wells in its northern field, and that at the greater depth the geological indications were good.

Strength and activity again characterised the Tea market. Rubber Shares, too, had a better appearance on the reduction in stocks, though movements in prices were confined chiefly to a few of the leading companies. British Government and kindred securities were steady. A moderate rise occurred in Argentine and Brazilian Railway Stocks, but the Home Railway market remained under the shadow of the threatened agitation for a fresh increase in wages.

BAROMETER FALLS AGAIN.

WIND AND RAIN SWEPT THE COUNTRY.

SHIPS ASHORE ON IRISH COAST.

During last Monday night the barometer fell half an inch, and another severe gale developed from the South-South-West, veering to the South-West. This depression was more particularly felt during Monday night and yesterday in the South of Ireland and England. In the Midlands, while the wind did not attain gale force, there was heavy rain throughout the day, with a sharp fall of temperature.

Shipmasters whose vessels sought shelter in Irish ports said that the sea was running mountains high and that the sheets of rain made it impossible to see far ahead. Smaller vessels made for the nearest shelter. The weather off the Fastnet was reported to be particularly bad. Some minor casualties are reported, but no loss of life.

It is officially forecasted that the area of depression will move North-Eastwards to-day, and that the wind will veer to the West and North-West and moderate. Squalls, with bright intervals and a lower temperature, are to be expected.

SHIPS BLOWN ASHORE.

RESCUES OFF PASSAGE.

The schooner Clareen, 95 tons, owned by Mr. G. J. Murrow, Bridgwater, Somerset, has gone ashore near Passage, Co. Cork, while on a voyage from Kinsale to Newport, Monmouth, and is likely to become a wreck. The crew of three was saved.

The little vessel ran for shelter into Passage Harbour on Monday afternoon, but was caught by a particularly heavy squall before it could be made fast and grounded. At high tide at 8 p.m. the ship refloated and was anchored. The cables did not hold for long, however, and the vessel was blown on to the rocks. A motor boat put out and succeeded in rescuing the captain and two hands at midnight. They were taken to Passage village and given shelter by the inhabitants. The men were in a very exhausted condition, and the skipper, Mr. A. C. Lamey, was suffering from injuries to his back, sustained through being flung on to the deck by a sea which broke over the vessel after it had been blown on to the rocks.

The Clareen is firmly wedged and is high and dry at low water, but is partly submerged at high tide.

The cables of a four-master steel schooner, the Caledonia, 2,818 tons, of Christiania, which had anchored in Cork Harbour for shelter, snapped during last Monday's gale, and the vessel drifted on to a sand-bank, where it remains fast. When the weather moderates a tug will endeavour to tow the vessel clear.

The Burns-Laird steamer Thistle, which stranded on the North Wall, Heysham, during the gale last Sunday morning, is still fast. Harbour tugs attempted to tow the vessel into deep water at high tide yesterday without success; to-morrow's tide will be higher than usual, and it is expected that the vessel will be refloated. It is feared that it has sustained damage to its bottom, but it is not making water at present. The Thistle, Heysham for Londonderry, was unable to make headway against the gale last Saturday night and put back to Heysham. In attempting to re-enter the harbour it stranded. The passengers were taken off by the Brier, of the same line.

The Great Western Railway Company's Fishguard-Waterford steamer was delayed by yesterday's gale, and arrived at Waterford four hours late. The Holyhead-Kingstown mail steamer had to fight against a gale on the trip yesterday morning and was two hours late.

MATERIAL DAMAGE.

CHAOS ON THE FARM.

Telegraph services are still far from normal, but much has been done to repair the damage done by last Saturday night's gale.

From all over the country come reports of serious material damage, though few cases of personal injury are reported. Hay stacks were blown down, cut corn scattered, standing crops beaten down, and wide areas flooded. "Oldest inhabitants" in various places say that the wind blew harder than at any time since "the big wind." Farm buildings were unroofed in many places, especially in the Midlands, and farmers spent Sunday in trying to restore order out of the chaos of their yards and in arranging temporary shelter for their animals.

The crops of many men are beyond recovery, for heavy rain has continued almost without ceasing since the gale scattered the hay and corn. All hope of recovering the cut peat from the bogs has been abandoned.

Trees, which were still heavy with foliage, suffered severely and many country roads were blocked. The obstructions did not remain long, however, for cottagers, worried over the lack of peat for the winter fire, soon cut and carried the fallen trunks and branches. The Knight of Glin allowed the villagers to enter his demesne and carry away the many fine trees which were broken or uprooted by the wind.

Vast sheets of water mark the pastures and cultivated fields bordering the Shannon from King's County to Kerry. Some villages, ordinarily miles from the river, are isolated.

STORM CASUALTIES.

Daniel Horgan, Blackhill, Killorglin, Co. Kerry, died in Tralee yesterday afternoon from injuries sustained by being caught under a falling tree last Saturday night. He leaves a widow and nine children.

A galvanised sheet was blown sixty yards from a roof to a garden in Belclare, Tuam, and fell on a woman and her daughter, who were rather badly injured.

READY FOR AN ELECTION.

MR. CLYNES DEFENDS THE RUSSIAN TREATY.

The prospect of an immediate General Election had no terrors for the Government, declared Mr. Clynes at Bristol last night, referring to the opposition to the Russian Treaty. The risk of a General Election would not vary their policy. An election would still leave the same problem to be solved.

He predicted an increased strength for the Labour Party, and said that the success Labour had already achieved would be followed by a further success in the handling of the Russian problem.

THE BOUNDARY PROBLEM.

Free State? (A Voice—"Murder.") Yes; and sometimes it was said that they did not claim any territory. That was a lie. They had seen the maps, and they knew what the Free State claimed, and why they claimed it. They claimed Fermanagh and Tyrone, and they claimed the City of Derry. They claimed it because they thought it would be a level, or, as one of them called it, a fork, to drive Ulster into the Free State. (Cries of "Never.") Would Ulster sell her birthright and take down her flag and fly the Free State tricolour? ("Never.")

What did the Free State offer them? Increased taxation, compulsory Irish, and green paint everywhere—(laughter)—and the loss of that protection for life and property which they in Ulster enjoyed. How did they stand now? They stood well, and they had at their back the whole of loyal Ulster. They knew that they had also the Unionist Party in England at their back, and there were some Liberals who would support them. Let them look to history. They all knew what Derry and Enniskillen did in 1690. They did not want any aggression, and they did not want to threaten; but if the Free State threatened them with aggression, let them look to history, and let them remember that, as in the past, the border counties were peopled with an Imperial race, who would not easily be subjugated. (Cheers.)

"INDEFENSIBLE CLAIMS."

The Right Hon. T. Moles, M.P., said that it was eminently fitting that the first shot in this week's great campaign should be fired in the historic town of Enniskillen, a place thronged with stirring memories of mighty men, who in other days held high the beacon light of freedom. They met there in no spirit of aggression or challenge. They were met to lay no claim to territory given by statute to another State, but to resist illegal and indefensible claims to their territory. They were met to declare that they had kept their bargain with the Imperial Government, and to say in unmistakable language that they required the Imperial Government to keep their contract with them in the letter and in the spirit. They denied the right of any Government to drive loyal citizens from under the Union Jack without their consent, and to place them under a rule and flag which they loathed and feared.

Nothing but disaster would eventuate from their exclusion from the British connection, and their inclusion in the Free State, and it would mean disaster for Great Britain as well as for them. Had England so many admirers in Ireland that she could afford to fling away the only friends she had left in this country? Had she not seen the mad folly of seeking to placate enemies by the betrayal of friends? They were told that Britain's honour was involved in keeping the Treaty, but Britain's honour was no less involved in keeping faith with Ulster. (Cheers.)

They did not boast, but they did not fear. They would be unworthy of British citizenship and of the priceless heritages which was theirs if they were lightly to surrender to them. The sons and brothers of many of them had fought and died in England's service. They gloried in her greatness, and shared and rejoiced in her success, and helped to achieve them. They implored her people, in justice to them, for the sake of her national honour, which would be for ever tarnished if she deserted them, for the sake of her own safety, which would be imperilled if she deserted her friends, not to force this cruel injustice upon them, which no power except hers could ever put upon their necks. (Cheers.)

NO HOPE OF AGREEMENT.

Mr. Crawford Green, M.P., Worcestershire, said that he was a loyalist, and he sympathised with Ulster. He was one of the Members of Parliament who toured the border recently. At Enniskillen they received a deputation of Nationalists, led by Mr. Cahir Healy, and the result was that three Liberal Members of Parliament were converted into being loyal Ulstermen. (Cheers.) He had not yet heard any case for the Free State, or for Sinn Fein. There were no urgent reasons for a change. He went to Dublin and met Mr. Cosgrave, who called himself the "President" without a Republic. (Laughter.) He saw Mr. Kevin O'Higgins, and he heard what he had got to say, and he was now absolutely and entirely convinced that Ulster's case was the right one. (Cheers.)

His idea was that it would be delightful if Ireland was one united country, but his reason told him that at the present time it was impossible. He should like to see the Boundary Commission done away with, and an agreement reached if possible; but he was certain that that was now a vain hope. He clung to that hope until after his interview with Mr. Cosgrave, and now he had no hope.

IN CASE OF FORCE.

"My advice," he said, "is, if no amicable agreement is come to, then refuse to hand over a single thing unless you receive in return an equivalent. If they use force to you, I say strike, and I will add to that by saying—he who hits first hits last." (Cheers.)

You have nothing to fear, he continued. Who can harm you? You are better trained and better armed than the Irregulars; you are better trained and armed and more numerous than the Free State Army; and do you think that any politician will be so mad as to ask British soldiers to fire on people who have the Union Jack over their heads and "God Save the King" in their mouths? (Cheers.)

If the necessity does come, I can tell you that there will be many Englishmen whose arms and bodies will be at your service, and who will help you financially as well as in the field.

There are good members of Parliament and there are bad, he concluded, and there are members of Parliament who will not only fight your battle on the green benches of the House of Commons, but, if the necessity arises, on the green fields of Ulster. (Great cheering.)

The resolution was passed unanimously.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman and the singing of "God Save the King" concluded the proceedings.

QUARREL AT FOOTBALL MATCH.

A fatal quarrel among spectators at a Glasgow football match had a court sequel yesterday, when William Fleming was charged with causing the death of Joseph Baillie. Evidence was given that the accused man was shouting encouragement to one of the teams, and that Baillie cried out in support of the other side. Then followed an argument about the merits of the teams, after which, it was stated, Baillie adopted a somewhat threatening attitude. Fleming struck out at Baillie's face, but the blow was not severe. Baillie, however, fell, and attempted to rise, but fell again. He became unconscious, and died in a few minutes. The post-mortem examination showed no marks of violence, but there was hemorrhage of the brain and some measure of asphyxia. The accused man put forward a plea of self-defence, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty of simple assault, with a recommendation to mercy. The Sheriff, commenting upon the prevalence of assaults at football matches, imposed a modified penalty of £10.

BUSINESS MEN AND RUSSIAN TREATY.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Bradford Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Douglas Hamilton, President of the Textile Section, moved a resolution approving the Russian Treaty in principle. He said that Russia was blocking the way to trade relations between Europe and Asia. He believed that the fact that Russia's great population was outside the markets of the world was having more to do with the world's unrest than any other factor. He agreed that the Treaty needed amendment in certain directions, and also thought that if a loan were granted a large proportion of it should be spent in this country.

The Chamber resolved, with few dissentients, to disapprove of the agreement and loan.

THE JAPANESE STRIKE.

TOKIO.

The directors of the Nippon Yusen Haisha Line held a meeting to-day, to consider the situation. They issued a statement declaring that the eleven men whose dismissal caused the strike of officials all over the world were given notice because they attempted to interfere in the administrative affairs of the company. The company has decided to endeavour to reconcile the rebellious faction.—(Reuter.)

"TANGLING" AT FAIRS.

PROSECUTION AT ATHY.

"This thing is becoming a common nuisance at fairs all over the country," said Mr. H. K. Toomey, solicitor, at the Athy District Court, when Peter P. Doyle summoned Patrick Holmes, Main street, Portarlington, for intimidating him with a view to compelling him to abstain from doing an act that he had a right to do—namely, to sell ten cattle, which he valued at £135.

Mr. Toomey described Holmes as a "tangler"—that was, a man who attended fairs trying to interfere with the sale of cattle and pretending to buy them without having the means to do so.

In this case it was alleged that, owing to the defendant's interference by insisting that he had bought nine of the cattle for £100 from the complainant's nephew, the complainant had to bring the cattle home again from Athy fair, and he sold them the same evening to a Mr. Nolan for £12 apiece. He had instructed his nephew not to accept less than £14 or £14 10s. each for the cattle.

Gerald Doyle stated that the defendant met him coming in to the fair and followed him along. He offered to buy the nine cattle for £100, but the witness refused to sell them for that sum. His orders were not to sell the cattle for less than £14 apiece.

Martin Doyle, the complainant's brother, said that when a man came up to bid for the cattle the defendant said, "James, I bought these cattle," and the man turned away. This practice of the "tangler" was becoming intolerable.

The defendant, Patrick Holmes, said that when he offered £100 for the cattle the boy in charge asked £14 apiece. He offered him £100, and Mr. Dowling, who was standing by, said, "Give them to him." The witness went over to mark the cattle, and young Doyle said that his uncle had paid £11 each for them that day two months. When he was driving the cattle away he met Mr. Doyle, the complainant, and he said that he would not give the cattle for less than £14 a head. He (the defendant) told him that he had brought the cattle for £100. The defendant added that he had been dealing in cattle for thirty years and he had never been in court before in his life.

Messrs. Dowling, Kavanagh and Noonan, cattle dealers, stated in their evidence that the deal was a genuine one.

Mr. Toomey said that the prosecution was brought to try and put a stop to this practice. It was keeping away bona fide traders.

The Justice, in giving his decision, said that the defendant had committed a technical offence by following this boy with the cattle into the fair and sticking on to him while the fair was in progress. He believed that the defendant had tried to rush the sale, believing the boy was inexperienced. He believed that young Doyle, on the other hand, had not told his father or the Court everything that had occurred, because it was evident that he allowed himself to be rushed into the transaction. Under the circumstances he would convict the defendant of a technical offence and order him to enter into bail for a period of twelve months, himself in £20 and two sureties of £10 each, and to pay a fine of 20s. and costs.

Mr. Donnelly appeared for the defendant.

ARMY REFORM IN JAPAN.

WAR AUTHORITIES' PROPOSALS.

TOKIO (By Mail).

For several days past leading papers have been giving prominence to what they allege are authentic reports of deliberations that have been going on in Army circles concerning the proposed military reforms and curtailment of expenditure.

The proposals outlined by the War Department are, however, still under the consideration of a body of Military Councillors and Field-Marshals.

It is pointed out that the real struggle will come when the war authorities present their scheme to the Cabinet for approval, as the latter is pledged to the all-round reduction of expenses in order to lessen the public burdens, while the War Office does not propose that its reductions shall be used in any other way than for the promotion of military efficiency by the adoption of modern methods. According to the policy laid down by the Cabinet, each department is expected to curtail expenditure to the utmost limit, so that the productive capacity of the country may be increased and the economic situation remedied.

The War authorities, on the other hand, regard their proposals of such supreme importance to the State that they intend to do their best to convince the Cabinet of the correctness of their stand. It is hinted that, should the Cabinet prove hard to persuade, the war authorities may use their prerogative in that the reform plan will be separated from the ordinary expenditure of the Department and submitted to the Throne for approval in a separate bill, after the Military Council has passed upon it.

According to those who claim to know what is going on, the proposed plan calls for a reduction of the number of divisions by four, the removal of one division from the mainland to Korea, the abolition or amalgamation of certain military schools and other institutions, and the use of the money thus saved for the adoption of new weapons and the expansion of the air service.—(Reuter.)

JAPAN AND LABOUR DISPUTES.

SETTLEMENT WITH THE HELP OF THE PRESS.

TOKIO (By Mail).

Compulsory publication of the cause of any dispute, with a public hearing by properly appointed representatives of each side, assisted by officials and Press representatives, is the plan proposed under the terms of a suggested arbitration bill for the settlement of labour disputes.

Hitherto such differences have been solved by an appeal to the police authorities and to the courts, but it is now suggested that a more satisfactory method would be to make the whole matter publicly known, and let the public judge and decide the merits of the case.

It is stated that this Act will be proposed for legislation in the coming session of the Diet.—(Reuter.)

MINERS AND THE DAWES SCHEME.

The Westminster Gazette says:—There cannot be any doubt that the coal industry is in a parlous state, and it is only natural that the miners and the owners should regard the future with anxiety. But it is inaccurate to attribute the depression to the Dawes scheme, and absurd for the miners to go into heroics about the hard lot of the German miners, when they profited by the Ruhr occupation, which implied idle mines and starving miners. Mr. Cook, however, appears to be calling the tune, and he, at least, deserves the rebuff which the Prime Minister administered yesterday. We cannot protect the miners against foreign competition without encouraging the demand from other trades for similar treatment.

THE JEWS IN PALESTINE.

EXPENDITURE & PROGRESS

ROAD UP MOUNT CARMEL.

JERUSALEM (By Mail).

A summary of Karen Hayessod expenditure in Palestine, from April, 1921, to July, 1924, shows a definite tendency on the part of the Palestine Zionist Executive to finance permanent undertakings, such as agricultural colonisation, to the reduction, if need be, of such activities as education and health. To an increasing degree education is being taken over by Palestine Jewry itself, and the expenditure upon health is being largely shared by other bodies, the Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organisation of America, and the Joint Distribution Committee of New York.

Thus, in the ten months ending July, 1924, the Palestine Zionist Executive expended upon agriculture £111,540, as against £80,606 in the twelve months ending September, 1923, and against £111,199 in the twelve months ending September, 1922. In the six months ending September, 1921, only £18,362 was spent on agriculture.

The reduction in the expenditure upon education is seen in the ten months ended July, 1924, when £50,607 was spent—an average of about £5,000 a month, as against £70,607 in the year ended September, 1923—an average of little under £6,000 per month. In the year ended September, 1922, education claimed £100,607 an average of about £8,500 a month, which in turn represented a reduction compared to the expenditure on education in the six months ending September, 1921, when £55,985 was expended—an average of little over £9,000 per month. This was the time when the Zionist organisation financed practically the entire Hebrew educational system in Palestine, with no appreciable income from the Yishub.

The Keren Hayessod contributes over £2,000 a month towards health work. In the ten months ending July, 1924, the fund contributed £21,177 towards the Hadassah and Workers' Sick Fund, a considerable reduction when compared with over £35,000 spent in the year ending 1923, and a most sweeping reduction when compared with the year ending September, 1922, when £100,000 was contributed by the Keren Hayessod. In addition, the Keren Hayessod participates to the extent of £105,000 a year in the Budget of Kupath-Cholim, or the Labourers' Sick Fund.

Immigration claims an average of £2,600 a month, as against nearly £4,000 a month in 1923, and almost £6,000 in 1922. The sum expended on immigration from October, 1923, to June, 1924, was £26,326.

Labour, which covers the equipment of Chaluzim, loans to workers for tools, etc., claims little more than immigration, a total of £26,257 having been expended in the ten months ending July, 1924, a not inconsiderable increase over the previous year, when in twelve months ending September, 1923, only £22,804 was expended on labour.

The expenditure of the Keren Hayessod on the Agricultural Station in Tel-Aviv and the Experimental Fields at Ben-Shemen continues more or less the same, £10,072 having been spent on those stations between October, 1923-July, 1924.

On the other hand, it will be seen that new expenditures are being incurred on such activities as tobacco growing, which is thought to hold the key to Palestine's future prosperity, and upon the development of which the Keren Hayessod has expended in the last twelve months £2,584. The participation of Jewish Palestine in the maintenance of the Palestine Pavilion at the British Empire Exhibition has cost the Keren Hayessod £1,293.

By the end of June, 1924, there had been raised for the Keren Hayessod throughout the world £1,398,286, of which the Jews of America contributed about 60 per cent.

AREA OF JEWISH NATIONAL LAND INCREASED 50 PER CENT.

The head office in Jerusalem of the Jewish National Fund announces that as a result of considerable acquisition of land just made its total possessions have increased by 50 per cent. Previously the Fund owned areas totalling approximately 100,000 dunams. Together with the new land in the valley of Jezreel, this figure now reaches 150,000 dunams. This is an important share of the total Jewish land in Palestine, some 800,000 dunams, of which the I.C.A. possesses 300,000, and the J.N.F. 150,000, the Zion Commonwealth coming next with 40,000.

At the rate of one hundred dunams per family, at least another four hundred working agricultural families can be settled upon the new acquisitions. With the progress of intensive cultivation the population could be doubled.

THE ELECTRICAL STATION AT HAIFA.

The work for the erection of Mr. Rutenberg's electric station for the Haifa district has started. The work will take six months, during which time about one hundred persons will find employment. The cost of the building of this station is said to be £15,000.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION AT MOUNT CARMEL.

The construction of a road six kilometres in length and six metres in width is to be started shortly between the properties of the "Palestine Land Development Company," the "American Real Estate Company" and the "Rumanian Ahousah" on Mount Carmel. The construction of this road will require at least 200-250 labourers during a period of six months.—(Reuter.)

SUDAN SEDITION.

ARMY EMPLOYEE ARRESTED.

KHARTUM, Tuesday.

The authorities have arrested an Egyptian employed or the army staff as the alleged author and distributor of many seditious circulars.

As the seven cadets were taken to prison they kept up continuous cries of "Long live Fuad" and "Long live Zaghlul." The other cadets, who are awaiting trial, have been removed from the gunboat on which they were confined to Khartum Prison, and will be tried by the civilian court.—(Reuter.)

CAIRO, Tuesday.

A telegram from Port Sudan states that the Assize Court there has sentenced to six years' imprisonment Ali Malasi, a junior Sudan Government official, who was one of the leaders in the abortive attempt to raid the barracks by the men of an Egyptian Labour Battalion last month. Several other men who were associated with him were sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

RHINE ARMY MANŒUVRES.

ALL ARMS ENGAGED.

COLOGNE, Tuesday (in the field).

The culminating phase of the intensive training of the British Rhine Army, which has been proceeding without cessation since April, began at 9 o'clock this morning in the picturesque Eifel district, twenty-five miles south-east of Cologne. This district was invariably the scene of the German army manœuvres.

The operations are on a divisional scale, the general scheme being that the Blue Army has invaded Red land from beyond the Rhine and scored a great victory. The remnants of the Red Army are fighting a desperate delaying action in order to prevent the Blues breaking through, cutting communications and seizing material and supplies, which are coming via friendly Belgium. The successful outcome of these guerilla tactics enables the Reds to reform and reinforce their meagre forces and give battle again to the Blue invaders.

The ground is eminently suitable for such operations, consisting of a series of high ridges commanding extensive valleys. The Red Army consists of a purely skeleton force, which is opposed to the remainder of the Rhine Army, both sides having air reconnaissance and artillery. The Blues have also tanks and cavalry.

To-day the Reds were forced back from the first position that they had taken up to a position in the second line of defence, though the position is not clear at the moment of telegraphing, and night operations are probable. The Director-in-Chief is Lieut.-General Sir J. P. Ducane, Commanding the Rhine Army. The invading Commander of the Blues is Major-General H. D. de Pree. The chief umpire is Colonel Girdwood.—(Reuter.)

TROUBLE AMONG DUTCH TROOPS.

MILITARY POLICE ATTACKED.

AMSTERDAM, Tuesday.

The papers report discontent among the troops in Southern Holland engaged in autumn exercises. The reports are rather contradictory, but it does not appear as if what has taken place has been of much importance. There were some cases of drunkenness, and also some discontent owing to inadequate camping arrangements, many men suffering from the rain pouring into their tents. Owing to the complaints on this score the authorities promised that the men should be quartered in houses, which was done. There was no mutiny among the men.

Some friction also occurred at the Ede Camp, Geldalano, apparently owing to what was regarded by the men as high-handed action on the part of the military police, who arrested certain men for trifling deficiencies in dress, etc. As reprisals, a military policeman was attacked and beaten by the men, who also smashed up the furniture in one of the hutments of the police. A couple of ringleaders were arrested, and order was soon restored. The military police were reprimanded.—(Reuter.)

THE BRITISH IN EGYPT.

The Daily Chronicle says:—Zaghlul Pasha, the Egyptian Premier, is now in London, and will shortly be engaged in conversations with Mr. Macdonald. In the past he has not shown himself lacking in courage. Would it be imposing too severe a test on his courage to expect him to go and tell the real truth to his countrymen—that they have misjudged the British people; that the latter gave independence to Egypt because they believed in the justice of the action; that they are prepared to carry out the measures which will give reality to that independence, but equally that they adhere absolutely to their declared intention of safeguarding the British garrison and British communications through the Canal, and that they do not recognise any justice in the Egyptian claim to the Sudan and will not abandon their good work in that country?

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET EXCITED.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Following an early decline, cotton developed great strength and activity, owing to an unexpected bullish Government crop report, and prices advanced 196 to 200 points from the lowest, and closed 166 to 171 net points higher. Speculative shorts, trade houses and commission interests bought freely. The excited advance checked the textile business temporarily, but a broader buying movement is predicted, both in cotton and textiles.

OIL SCANDALS REVIVED.

U.S. INQUIRY MAY BE RE-OPENED.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The American oil scandals may come into the limelight again by a re-opening of the U.S. Senate Committee's investigations into the charges made against ex-Attorney-General Daugherty. Mr. Daugherty himself has revived the issue by publishing a letter said to have been written by Mr. Gaston Means, a former agent of the U.S. Department of Justice, who attained much notoriety by his testimony in the oil scandals.

This letter is said to accuse Senator Wheeler—who was responsible for the holding of the Senate investigation into the charges against Mr. Daugherty—of conspiracy with Mr. Gaston Means to give a false testimony before the Committee months ago.

In reply Senator Wheeler, from Bloomington, Illinois, makes the sensational statement that Mr. Gaston Means had informed him over the long-distance telephone that he had given the letter to ex-Attorney-General Daugherty, and that he (Means) wanted a new session of the Senate Investigating Commission called, in order to explain why he gave the statement. He also said that he wanted to give new testimony.

Senator Wheeler says that Mr. Gaston Means indicates that, in demanding an opportunity to be heard again, the story of corruption in ex-Attorney-General Daugherty's office would involve "people higher up" than Mr. Daugherty.

NO INTERFERENCE IN CHINA.

WAR LORDS SETTLING OWN AFFAIRS.

SHANGHAI, Tuesday.

Disclaimers issued by the British, American and Japanese authorities of any intention to intervene in the present civil war in China are welcomed by responsible foreigners, who regard anything in the nature of forcible interference, except for the protection of foreign lives and property, as futile. Conditions have changed since the Boxer year, and any discussion of possible intervention in England is followed by the prompt appearance of anti-foreigner leaflets, of which Sun Yat Sen's manifesto, when the British Consul issued a warning to prevent him bombarding Canton, is the mildest example.

That the feeling against foreign intervention has been steadily increasing in recent years is attested by missionaries, travellers and observers everywhere. In former days it was an invariable device of delinquent mandarins to deflect popular wrath from themselves against the foreigners. There is abundant proof that the politicians and bureaucrats, against whose incompetence and corruption the tide of popular anger is almost overflowing, are endeavouring to play the same game, and any ill-considered act by the Great Powers might have disastrous consequences in the Treaty ports, and also up-country, where foreigners are less protected than at Shanghai.—(The Times Correspondent.)

SUN YAT-SEN'S DIFFICULTY.

HONG KONG, Tuesday.

From a mass of sensational rumours, including an alleged mutiny and an attempt to assassinate Sun Yat-sen, the fact emerges that Sun is experiencing the greatest difficulty in organising his expedition to help Che-giang. Sun's Army officially numbers 30,000, but unofficially not more than 5,000. Attempts to raise sufficient money to persuade more troops to leave the fleshpots of Canton has hitherto been unsuccessful.

The commandants of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps have duly circulated declarations of allegiance required under the settlement of the arms dispute, and their confiscated private property is being restored, but the arms are still withheld. It is reported that these arms have been distributed among Sun Yat-sen's troops. The merchants, accordingly, are indisposed to finance the northern expedition.—(The Times Correspondent.)

DANGEROUS MOTOR DRIVING.

TWO LICENCES SUSPENDED.

Summoned at Salisbury yesterday for driving a motor car to the danger of the public on July 26, near Amesbury, the Hon. David Tennant, son of Viscountess Grey of Fallodon, was fined £20 and his licence was suspended for six months. It was alleged that his speed on approaching the village was between 40 and 50 miles an hour, and that he drove to the village at a speed of between 25 and 30 miles.

The defendant denied the speed alleged, and said that he had a clear road at the time.

It was stated that he had been fined three times previously.

For a similar offence the same Bench fined Captain John K. Cross, Lancashire Fusiliers, £10, and suspended his licence for three months. Near a crossing he collided with a motor combination, driven by Staff-Sergeant Horbury, whose wife and baby were in the sidecar. Horbury was killed, his wife was thrown out, and the baby's leg was broken.

FINLAND'S ARMY.

REORGANISATION SCHEME.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

HELSINGFORS,

Following the recent decision to reorganise the Finnish Army, Colonel Sihve, a distinguished "Jager" officer, who took a prominent part in Finland's war of liberation from Russia, has been offered the post of Chief of the new Finnish Military Academy, which will be opened in November.

Before assuming his new duties Colonel Sihve intends to visit England, France and other European countries to study the systems in use there.

The Government has under consideration a proposal by Colonel Sihve for a new scheme of reorganisation of the high military command of the Finnish Army. This plan leaves the President of the Republic the supreme Commander, as is the case now, but creates a General Inspector, who will direct military education and instruction in peace time, but who will automatically take command of all military forces in case of war.

MINERS' PRESIDENT ON DAWES SCHEME.

Speaking on the Dawes Report at Barnsley yesterday, Mr. Herbert Smith, President of the Miners' Federation, said that British miners had hardly a bare existence. Nothing should be done further to reduce wages. German workers should not be called upon to work longer hours, at disgraceful wages, to produce Reparation coal and put British miners out of work. Reparations meant reducing the standard of workmen in the country making them. The British miners' position was serious enough at present, and had to be revised from every standpoint.

MR. CHURCHILL'S DECISION.

The Daily Telegraph says:—Mr. Winston Churchill's re-appearance in the political field is an event of more than personal interest, although that aspect of it will make the more immediate appeal to the average citizen. The prospect of his return to the House of Commons is one to be welcomed on all accounts. Considered in relation to the state of politics at the present time, its significance is great. It represents a final act of severance from the party in which Mr. Churchill established his reputation, and as a member of which he entered upon an experience of Ministerial office which lasted without a break from 1906 until the fall of the Coalition Government two years ago.

The United States Federal Court has appointed receivers for the Hodgeman Rubber Company, one of the oldest manufacturing concerns in the American rubber industry.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE BOUNDARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Commission which has to decide the boundary as between the present Six County area and the rest of Ireland has, in arriving at its decision, to take three factors into consideration:—

(1.) The wishes of the inhabitants of the disputed areas;

(2.) The economic factor;

(3.) The geographical factor.

Hitherto it would appear to the average citizen that all attention and argument have been centred in No. 1. If that factor alone were to be the deciding one, the Free State claim would, I think, be incontrovertible; but the other two remain. A company may have two thousand shareholders on its books; but the fact that five hundred of these control two-thirds of the stock is sufficient to prevent the fifteen hundred from ruling the roost. Control is vested in those who possess the largest stake in the concern, provided that they vote together.

If the amount of revenue collected from the disputed areas be divided as from (a) those desiring to remain under the Northern Parliament, and (b) those desiring to enter the Free State fold, and if the land held in those areas be similarly considered, I am quite certain that a very decided majority of the revenue collected, and land held will be found to be obtained from, or to be in the hands of, those desiring to remain in Ulster. What, then, about No. 3, or the geographical factor? Surely that factor can only be considered in the light of "rectification."

The Commission will, therefore, have to weigh the first two factors. What weight they will attach to each I deprecate any attempt to forecast. I do not consider, however, that the scales are so heavily weighted on either side that unprejudiced opinion can support Ulster's refusal to nominate her representative.—Yours, etc.,

A. M. FARMER.

Dublin, September 23rd, 1924.

MR. BLYTHE ON THE TREATY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have carefully read Mr. Blythe's speech, reported in your issue of September 22, and I have carefully re-read the text of the Treaty, and am forced to the conclusion that Mr. Blythe does not fairly interpret the Treaty. It is true that the first part of the Treaty deals, in theory, with the whole of Ireland; but this theory is conditional, and is contingent upon the consent of Northern Ireland, which is treated as an existing political entity. If it does not elect to enter the Free State system, its complete independence is guaranteed. So far for Mr. Blythe's assertion that "there is no right whatever on the part of the Northern Government to hold any specific area." Its area is specified by the Act of 1920, as consisting of six counties mentioned by name.

A Commission was to be held under the Treaty to determine finally the boundary between Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State. That Commission was rendered abortive by the refusal of Northern Ireland to co-operate. It is now proposed so to alter the Treaty by a new identical Act of the Imperial Parliament and of the Free State Parliament that a new Commission can be formed. On Mr. Blythe's method of argument this should be described as "breaking the Treaty." It is certainly altering it.

The meaning of the Treaty is by no means as clear and simple as Mr. Blythe seems to think. The many and divergent speeches and correspondence on the subject make this manifest. Mr. Blythe lays down the law in the following off-hand manner—"Under the Treaty it will be the duty of Great Britain, which has armed the Specials, and paid for them, to deliver the territory. If Great Britain were to fail to deliver the territory which may be awarded by the Commission, then there would be a failure to carry out the Treaty obligations." In other words, the Crown forces are to be used to coerce Ulster, supposing that the Commission decides to transfer some of her present territory against her will. There is not a hint of such a thing in the words of the Treaty, and such a proposal is in direct opposition to the repeated pledges made to Northern Ireland by the Imperial Government. In a paper entitled "Correspondence relating to the Proposals of His Majesty's Government for an Irish Settlement," Mr. Lloyd George, then Prime Minister, writes (July 20th, 1921):—"It [the proposed settlement] must allow for the full recognition of the existing powers and privileges of the Parliament and Government of Northern Ireland, which cannot be abrogated except by their own consent."

As this pledge or promise to Northern Ireland is prior to any pledge or promise to Southern Ireland, it has a priority of obligation. Further on Mr. Lloyd George writes:—"In no condition can they [the British Government] consent to any proposals which would kindle civil war in Ireland." Mr. Blythe's interpretation of the Treaty—that the British Government is bound to use force to transfer territory from Northern Ireland to the Free State—would most certainly kindle civil war in Ireland; and does Mr. Blythe seriously believe that the British people would tolerate such a thing? Is it only Free Staters who feel it an obligation to stand by their friends?

I give one more quotation from Mr. Blythe. He says of all citizens of the Free State:—"If they were prepared to be good citizens and obey the law, then there would be no discrimination against anyone, no matter what his faith or political creed might be." I gratefully acknowledge the truth of this statement, and on the strength of it I hope to live and die where I am. But let me assure Mr. Blythe that his statement is just as true of the Northern State. Why, then, fight over the boundary? What matter does it make on which side you live, if you can be happy and prosperous on either side? What, after all, have we gained in Ireland after all our fighting? Just this—that one set of Irishmen has been put out of their jobs, and another set has been put in, while the rest of us have to pay for both sets.—Yours, etc.,

A WARNING TO FARMERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It may not be generally known that withered oak-leaves are poisonous to cattle. I once lost two beasts which had eaten some of them. I write to warn farmers who may have oak trees, blown down in Saturday's gale, of the risk they will incur if they leave the branches lying about in fields where there are cattle.—Yours, etc.,

SUGAR CHEMISTRY.

SCIENCE IMITATES THE GREEN LEAF.

ITHACA, NEW YORK.

Dr. Baly, Senior Professor of Chemistry in the University of Liverpool, has achieved one of the greatest scientific triumphs of modern times in making sugar in a way similar to that in which the green leaves of plants have been yielding it for ages. Dr. Baly demonstrated at a meeting of the American Chemical Society at Cornell University that he had made formaldehyde from carbon dioxide and water, and from this formaldehyde, with the aid of ultra-violet light, had made sugar.

Principal Irvine, of the University of St. Andrews, has borne out, by independent investigation, the claim that the product evolved by Professor Baly is glucose sugar.

It has been long believed that the first reaction which occurs in a green leaf is the uniting of carbon dioxide and water to form formaldehyde. Professor Baly, therefore, exposed carbon dioxide and water to the intensely active ultra-violet light from a quartz mercury vapour light. He was then able to form slight traces of formaldehyde.

The formaldehyde immediately formed sugar, and the sugar at the same time was retransformed into formaldehyde. The cycle was complete, and he had actually formed sugar without the intervention of living force. The amount of energy required is many hundred times greater than that for any reaction which has so far been commercialised.—(Reuter.)

EXHUMATION OF REPUBLICANS.

The Standing Committee of Sinn Féin has passed the following resolution:—"That we protest against the reported exhumation and removal to unknown destinations, by the Free State military, of the remains of Republican soldiers, as, for example, at Drumboe Castle, Stranorlar; Tuam, Roscrea, Beggar's Bush, Keogh Barracks, and Mountjoy Prison, Dublin; and we demand that the remains in each case be handed over to the relatives of the deceased for Christian burial."

COTTON opened barely steady, 2 to 6 points lower, on favourable weather being forecasted, a bearish interior movement and selling by spot and foreign interests, but when the Government condition report was published prices shot up owing to shorts becoming scared, also on better conditions of the cotton goods trade and an improved public inquiry. The rise was assisted by trade buying, Wall street support, improvement in the spot situation, heavier exports and better bidding by Southern spinners. The market closed firm, 171 to 165 points up. COTTON GINNING REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

American cotton of the growth of 1924 ginned prior to September 16th totalled 2,663,000 running bales, counting round as half-bales. The Bureau of the Census Department of Commerce announced to-day in its fourth ginning report of the season that comparative statistics for cotton ginned prior to September 16th are not available, inasmuch as this is the first year in which a report for the ginnings to that date has been compiled. Statistics for previous years showing cotton ginned to September 24 are as follow:—3,215,000 bales last year, 3,886,000 in 1922, and 2,920,000 bales in 1921. The next report will be issued on October 8th.

COTTON CONDITION REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The Crop Reporting Board of the United States Department of Agriculture in its seventh crop report, issued to-day, estimates that the condition of cotton on September 15th was 53.4 per cent. of a normal. No comparative figures for that date are available, inasmuch as a recent law changed the dates of issuance of cotton condition reports as of the 1st and 15th of each month during the growing season. The nearest date for which condition report comparative statistics are available is September 25th when the condition was 49.5 per cent. of a normal, last year 50.0 per cent. of a normal, two years ago 42.2 per cent. of a normal, and three years ago 56.1 per cent. The condition at the time of the last report was 59.3 per cent. on September 1st. The next condition report will be issued October 8th. The Board announced forecasts—A total production of 12,596,000 equivalent 500lb. bales. Production was 10,128,478 equivalent 500lb. bales in 1923, 9,762,069 bales in 1922, 7,953,641 bales in 1921, 13,439,603 bales in 1920, and 11,420,763 bales in 1919, the average production for the five years being 10,540,100 bales.

CHICAGO, Tuesday.

WHEAT opened steady, ⅛c. to ⅛c. higher on adverse European news, bullish Liverpool cables and foreign buying; then eased off owing to large Canadian receipts, the decline in corn and realising. The market soon rallied, however, on buying by commission houses, export business, covering of shorts and on reports that the European shortage is serious, and the closing was firm, 3⅛c. to 3c. up. Spot steady. No. 2 hard winter spot, 130¾; No. 3 hard winter spot, 129¾. Futures—Opening options—September, 129; December, 132⅜. Closing options—September, 131⅜; December, 141. Receipts—Western points—To-day, 3,466,000 bushels; same day last year, 1,544,000; this season, 195,815,000; last season, 139,318,000.

MAIZE opened easy, 1⅛c. to ⅛c. lower, and was depressed for a while owing to larger receipts, more favourable weather, liquidation of September option, better crop news and lower cash markets. A reaction set in later, influenced by small stocks, covering of shorts, commission house buying and bull support. The market closed irregular, with September 1½c. down, but later positions 1⅛c. to 1⅛c. up. Spot No. 2 mixed, 107¼. Closing options—September, 110; December, 105¼; May, 106⅛. Receipts—Western points—To-day, 1,018,000 bushels; same day last year, 694,000; this season, 53,475,000; last season, 54,538,000.

OATS irregular, ⅛c. lower to ⅛c. higher. Future closing options—September, 47⅛; December, 51⅛; May, 55⅛.

PROVISIONS opened quiet. Lard advanced owing to the firm hog market, light receipts and a fair cash demand on local selling, but again rose; then weakened in sympathy with corn and on shorts covering and foreign buying. Ribs receded owing to light liquidation. The market closed irregular, with lard 10 to 15 points up and ribs 5 to 7½ points down. Lard—Closing options—September, 13.37½; December, 13.32½; January, 13.17½. Ribs—Closing options—September, 12.00; December, 11.87½; January, unquoted.

BACON barely steady at 12½ points loss.

HOGS firm and unchanged to 20 points higher for light descriptions and 10 to 5 points up for heavy sorts. Receipts—Western Cities—To-day, 70,000; last year, 132,000. Chicago Cities—To-day, 15,000; last year, 25,000. MEDALS IN THE BALLOT.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S GRIEVANCE.

Ex-Service men in the British Civil Service are taking a ballot before deciding definitely whether they should return their war decorations if they are not placed in the permanent grade without being compelled to pass the official examination.

The men claim that they have already shown themselves qualified for the posts they hold.

An announcement by the Association of ex-Service Civil Servants states:—

"Before taking such a drastic step it was decided by the executive committee to ballot all members.

"That ballot is now in progress, and the indications at present point to an approval of such a policy, but the return of war decorations would only take place in the event of the failure of all other methods to secure redress of our grievances.

"At the moment the general support we are receiving leads us to hope that we shall not have to adopt such a painful measure."

THE LANGUAGE CURE.

"Adult education will make no solid progress until its branches and efforts concentrate on the study of languages," said Professor Conway at the conference of the British Institute of Adult Education at Manchester.

"So long," he added, "as you are dependent on English for your studies you are dependent on knowledge at second hand, and that is a contradiction to the whole university idea. The study of languages would deliver people from the provincialism which in England is the fault from which above all we suffer."

ATHLONE NURSE-CHILD CASE.

A £100 FEE.

At the Athlone District Court, before Mr. C. J. Beatty, Mrs. Mary O'Rourke, a district maternity nurse, residing at Bridge street, Athlone, was prosecuted by the National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children for the alleged neglect of a nurse child named John Reilly, in such a manner as to cause injury to its health. A woman named Delia Molloy was similarly charged in respect of her child, Teresa Molloy.

In reply to Mr. Murtagh, solicitor, who appeared for the society, Inspector Browne, of the society, stated that he visited Mrs O'Rourke's house on the 11th inst., and in a room, which he described as a cellar, he found two children and the woman, Delia Molloy, who was the mother of one of them. The cellar was four feet by six feet, and was badly lighted, having only a little window, which was closed. It contained an old iron bed, on which was an old mattress, on which the child Molloy was lying. The other child, Reilly, was standing in a box. It was in a filthy condition. He brought in Sergeant Duffy, of the Civic Guard, and both of them examined the bodies of the children. They were in a filthy state. The atmosphere of the place was very foul, and the witness had to have the little window opened. Mrs. O'Rourke was not at home. She came to his office on the following morning, and stated that she had taken the child Reilly from its mother, and had received £100 to rear it until it would reach the age of two years.

Replying to Mr. Walker, solicitor for the defendant, the inspector said that the child Reilly looked perfectly healthy.

Sergeant Duffy corroborated as to the condition in which Inspector Browne found the children.

Doctors T. P. Chapman and T. P. MacDonnell were called for the defence. They had been called in by Mrs. O'Rourke to examine the child Reilly. It was a normal child, about a year old, perfectly healthy, and did not present any indications of having been neglected. It appeared to be well cared.

Mrs. Alice Low and Mrs. Mary Lynch, who were patients in the defendant's care, also testified to the healthy condition of the boy, Reilly.

Mrs. Mary O'Rourke, the defendant, stated that she had been a nurse in Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, Dublin, and had a nursing home of her own at present. She had been a district nurse for twenty-six years, and there was never a complaint against her during that time. She cared the child Reilly as if it had been her own child. She denied that it was filthy, and it was not in a box, but in a cradle. The room was well ventilated, and had been recently repaired and papered. The bed was a new one. Her daughter had charge of the child, and on the morning Inspector Browne called she was absent from home.

The Justice said that the question that he had to consider was whether there was neglect which would warrant him in convicting. He found that there had been no such neglect. He was satisfied with the defendant's explanation, and accordingly dismissed the case, which was properly brought by Inspector Browne, who was an excellent officer.

The parties then left the court.

INSPECTOR ASSAULTED.

Inspector Browne returned subsequently, and complained to the Justice that he had been assaulted by Mrs. O'Rourke's son, Joseph. The inspector was bleeding from a cut under the right eye.

The Justice ordered O'Rourke to be placed under arrest, adding, "I will teach people that they will not treat this court with contempt."

The accused admitted having assaulted the inspector, adding, "I wish I had the pleasure of giving him another one, your worship, and he will get it, too."

The Justice ordered the accused to be imprisoned for seven days for contempt of court.

PARLIAMENT HOUSE ACCIDENT.

£100 AWARDED IN BELFAST CASE.

A fatal accident at the site of the Northern House of Commons at Stormont, Belfast, had a sequel in Belfast Recorder's Court yesterday, when Kate Gordon, Eli Larcombe and Mary Ann Larcombe and other members of the family, of the Glebe, Carnmoney, sued the Concrete Piling Co., Ltd., contractors, Royal avenue, Belfast, for £1,000 for the loss they had sustained by the death of Harold Larcombe (son of Eli Larcombe), which was the result of injuries he received while in the employment of the defendants at Stormont. The plaintiffs alleged that the accident was due to the defective condition of the machinery and plant used by the defendants.

Mr. George B. Hanna, M.P. (instructed by Mr. James Boston) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. James A. Pringle, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. C. and H. Jefferson) for the defendants.

Mr. Pringle contended that there was no defect in the machine, and no negligence on the part of the defendants. If the deceased had stood where he should have been the accident would not have occurred.

His Honor found for the plaintiffs, and gave a decree for £120, to be divided equally between the deceased man's father and mother.

ARMY CHAMPIONSHIPS.

TO-DAY'S TOURNAMENT IN PHŒNIX PARK.

In connection with the All-Army Championships a military tournament will be held in the Fifteen Acres, Phœnix Park, this afternoon, starting at 2.30. Conducted by Colonel Fritz Brasè the three bands from the Army School of Music will give a series of selections, concluding with a massed performance of Colonel Brasè's popular arrangement of Irish airs.

At 3 o'clock the artillery, under Major P. Mulcahy, will give a display of horsemanship, and this will be followed by an exhibition by a picked combination from the Curragh School of Gymnastics. The big event of the afternoon will be a display by the pilots of the Army Air Corps, including Captain F. S. Crossley. Only the fast Martynside Scouts will be used.

The tournament will conclude with a "battle," giving the spectators a demonstration of a frontal attack on a fortified position, carried out by a composite force of all arms, including the airmen and the cavalry.

We are asked to state that blank cartridges only will be used, and those who hear the firing need not, therefore, be alarmed.

WOMAN'S LOADED REVOLVER.

A JOURNEY TO KILL THE FRENCH PREMIER.

SURRENDER TO POLICE.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Tuesday.

At the moment M. Herriot, the French Premier, left the Ministerial Council at Rambouillet to-day, a woman, who apeared to be greatly excited, entered the police station at the Castle, and handed to a detective a revolver containing five loaded cartridges.

On being questioned, the woman declared that she had come to Rambouillet determined to take the life of the Premier, but that at the last moment her courage had failed her. The police could not obtain from her any further statement of her motives.

She was questioned by M. Leroux, the Inspector of Police attached to the Elysée, and said her name was Mme. Bigot Pemjean, aged 54, and that she lived in Paris. She was brought from Rambouillet back to the capital this afternoon, and made a number of statements of a vague political character.

It would now appear that her mind is unbalanced. She stated that her husband, from whom she is separated, wished her to assassinate M. Briand in 1912, but that she preferred to kill M. Herriot, because he had given his suport to M. Caillaux and M. Malvy. She had intended to shoot him during a railway journey to Lyons, and also when he last attended a Ministerial Council at Rambouillet, but when she saw him he looked so nice that she had not the heart to do so.

THE PRINCE IN CANADA.

RECEIVED BY THE PREMIER.

OTTAWA, Tuesday.

On his arrival in the outskirts of the city, where the train stopped for fifteen minutes to change engines, the Prince of Wales was met by the Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, and other representatives of the Government. Several hundred people were present, but the Prince of Wales's desire for privacy was strictly regarded. His Royal Highness's features bore the ruddy hue of health, despite his somewhat strenuous time in the United States.

Discussing his visit with the Prime Minister, the Prince said that he was glad to get back to Canada and feel at home again. He had, he declared, had a pleasant stay in the United States, where everybody had extended the finest hospitality.

As the train pulled out to continue its journey to Alberta, the crowd gave three hearty cheers, the Prince standing with his hat in his hand, bowing in all directions with a slight smile.

On his return from his ranch in Alberta, the Prince of Wales will be the guest of Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Byng, at the Government House, from October 16 to 19. Ottawa society is planning a fitting welcome, and functions of the first magnitude are being arranged for His Royal Highness's entertainment. On the evening of his arrival, the Prince of Wales will be the guest at an official reception at Government House, when representatives of the Government and other prominent persons will be present. There will be another reception on the following evening, when the younger people of the capital will be given the opportunity of renewing their acquaintance with him. The Prince is likely to spend a few days in Montreal and Toronto before sailing for England.—(Reuter.)

JUDGE CONNER IN CORK.

CONGRATULATED BY LEGAL PROFESSION.

Congratulations were tendered in Cork yesterday by both branches of the legal profession to Judge H. D. Conner on taking his seat on the bench for the first time as Circuit Judge for Cork City and County.

Mr. George Daly, on behalf of the members of the Munster Bar practising in court, congratulated Judge Conner most heartily on his appointment to such an important position. The news of his appointment came to the public and the members of the profession as a matter of sincere gratification. His appointment had produced the most extraordinary satisfaction amongst the commercial community of Cork. They all realised that in Judge Conner they had an experienced judge, and one who had been intimately connected with the profession in Cork City and County for a great many years.

Mr. A. H. Julian, on behalf of the members of the solicitors' profession, joined in these congratulations, and said that they considered they were extremely fortunate in getting a judge of Judge Conner's eminence and experience to preside over that Court.

Sir John H. Scott, High Sheriff, said that he desired officially to join in the hearty welcome which had been very properly extended to Judge Conner, and personally he desired to welcome him to Cork. He could safely say, on behalf of the citizens, that they were pleased and delighted to find one of their own residents appointed to such a high position.

Mr. Wallis, solicitor, also joined in the welcome.

Judge Conner, in reply, said that he felt very deeply, indeed, the kindness of their welcome. It was a great pleasure to him to come amongst so many old friends, and to think that in the forty years that he had been employed in the former courthouse, and in that courthouse, he had never had the slightest disagreement with any member of the profession in Cork. It was very unusual to compliment judges until they had been for some time on the bench, but he could only say that he would always try to do his duty towards the profession and the public.

FISHING INDUSTRY.

ORGANISED DEVELOPMENT SCHEME.

The recently-established Irish National Fishermen's Association, organised to build and develop, on a business basis, the country's fishing industry, has now virtually completed a scheme which is amply financed, the object of which is to extend and stimulate the industry and introduce Irish fish to the markets of the world. Full details of the scheme will be announced in a short time.

In the meantime the fishing centres in the country are to be organised, and organisers will be sent to assist local men in every way possible. The Association realises that the possibilities of the fishing industry may be lost through neglect or secured by up-to-date business methods.

U.S. AND THE LEAGUE.

MR. M'ADOO FAVOURS PARTICIPATION.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Mr. William McAdoo, ex-Secretary of the United States Treasury, has returned to New York from his European trip.

Mr. McAdoo talked freely concerning the Geneva Assembly sessions and the question of America's entry into the League of Nations.

The League of Nations, he declared, will endure, because the world must be organised for peace. There is nbither reason nor room for another organisation similar to the League. My conviction that the United States should be a member of the League, and join wholeheartedly in an effort to prevent wars and secure general disarmament is unaltered, but it is strengthened by what I saw in Europe.

SINN FEIN AIMS.

"In this generation we are determined to break finally and for ever the connection with England, which to-day, as in the past, is the only source of all trouble in Ireland," was one of the statements made by Mr. George Daly, the Hon. Secretary of Sinn Sein, at a meeting at Walterstown, near Navan. "Without complete freedom there could be no real peace nor economic prosperity," he declared, and added that he was sorry that in August, 1923, Meath did not return a single Republican candidate.

MORE POWER WANTED.

these cities the possible centres at which the bulk supply could be utilised would be so scattered, and the quantity of electricity used at these centres would relatively be of such very small dimensions, that the total revenues obtained would be totally inadequate. To put the matter in a few words, the prevailing conditions are distinctly unfavourable to the promotion of the Shannon scheme.

PROBLEM OF THE FUTURE.

To my mind, the problem of the immediate future is the opening up of an electricity supply undertaking at every provincial town where such an undertaking is not already in operation, and where reasonable prospects of the concern being self-supporting can be anticipated. In this manner electricity would be available in a short time to supply a greatly increased number of users, and as each local undertaking develops its output year by year, the field of electrical operations will be more and more developed through the country, so that in the course of time, say, ten years, it may be found an economical proposition to formulate a comprehensive scheme for linking up these local centres and supply most, if not all, of them from one common source of natural power development scheme, such as the Shannon. Possibly, by that time also it may be feasible to develop the water power of the Liffey and the Barrow rivers as well, and to inter-link all three primary schemes so that they may co-operate in supplying the needs of electricity in the entire Free State, and thereby ensure greater efficiency of operation than would be possible from the Shannon scheme alone.

It is well worth while to bear in mind also that there are some three millions of acres of peat in Ireland, and that the future may provide a practical solution of the economical winning of this peat. In such event, large peat-driven electricity works might be introduced with the hydro-electric schemes, and form a very serviceable adjunct to them, especially in times of drought.

To revert to the Shannon scheme, one may safely prophesy that, even if the experts' report on this scheme should be favourable, and that the Government agree to the proposals being carried out, the construction of the necessary works, and the erection of the various transmission lines will probably take ten or even fifteen years to complete. Because of this long delay, if for no other reason, municipal authorities in the provincial towns should go right ahead with their local electricity schemes. They have everything to gain and nothing to lose by doing so; for one thing they will then be in a stronger position to negotiate favourable terms for a bulk supply from the Shannon scheme if this should ever mature. It can be demonstrated that, even in the smallest towns, it should be possible to generate a local supply of electricity by means of a Diesel oil engine plant at an approximate cost of only one penny per unit at the switchboard. This may be taken as the basis figure against which the promoters of the Shannon scheme will have to compete; therefore, unless the supply from this scheme can be distributed generally throughout the country at something less than one penny per unit, the scheme could serve no useful purpose, and its development would not be justified.

Having discussed the site and lay out of works, choice of plant, system of generation, distribution of supply and finances of scheme, Mr. Spalding concluded by saying that there exists a potential demand in the provinces for electricity; secondly, that this demand may be catered for as an economically sound business proposition; thirdly, that the application of electricity should be advocated, not only for lighting, but for every service essential to the welfare of industry and commerce and of the home. Finally, that the immediate promotion of local electricity schemes will materially assist, rather than detract from, the prospects of future development of the natural resources of the country by creating a much greater intensity of distribution of electricity than is possible under present conditions.

The Chairman, complimenting Mr. Spalding on his able paper, characterised it as eminently clear and sound, and said that it did not recommend any wild-cat schemes.

Mr. W. Field also congratulated Mr. Spalding, and expressed his agreement with the view that any scheme promoted in the public interest should not be in the hands of private individuals.

Mr. McCabe, Chairman of the Blackrock Urban Council, said that the Government was responsible for holding up the scheme for electric lighting in Blackrock. If the Government had studied the interests of the people Blackrock would not be without electric light to-day.

Mr. Shackleton (Carlow) expressed disapproval of small local councils starting electricity schemes.

Mr. W. Forsythe said that he thought that it would be a mad course to adopt to go to the Shannon for an electricity supply when they had the Liffey at their doors to supply them.

The discussion was taken part in also by Messrs. Magee (Dundalk), Haslip (Tralee), Kelly (Kingstown), Dowling (Howth), Duggan (Carlow).

THE ELECTIONS.

Alderman George Hadden (Wexford) was elected President of the Association for the ensuing year.

The following were elected Vice-Presidents:—Mr. J. P. McCabe (Leinster), Mr. A. L. McClelland (Ulster), Dr. White (Munster), Dr. Walsh (Connaught).

It was decided to hold the next conference in Cork.

It was announced that to-day Mr. E. A. Aston would read a paper on "Local Government in the City and County of Dublin."

VISIT TO BLACKROCK.

In the afternoon, by invitation of Mr. J. P. McCabe (Chairman) and members of the Blackrock Urban Council, the delegates inspected the housing schemes recently carried out by that body. The total amount of money available for the scheme was £229,172, of which £19,488 was Government grant. The balance was made up of one shilling rate and a bank loan of £7,295. The cost of each of the forty houses complete amounted to £755. The intention of the scheme was to supply houses for middle-class workers; and though they cost £755 to build they were sold to the occupiers at prices varying from £480 to £495, the reason for the difference in price being that some of the houses are smaller than others. The purchasers got the benefit of the Government grant, which made up the difference between the purchase price and the actual cost per house to the Council. The only asset accruing to the Urban District Council was the ground rent, which varied from £5 to £6 a year. All the houses were already sold and occupied, and the Council had disposed of 20 sites to people who intended to build their own houses.

The delegates were welcomed in the Town Hall by Mr. McCabe, who, referring to the Blackrock housing scheme, said that it was the only scheme carried out in all Ireland. Some people criticised the scheme, as the houses were not built for the working class, but he reminded such critics that Blackrock had provided 300 artisans' dwellings in the township, and said that he thought that was a good record for one district. It was intended to erect more artisans' dwellings in Booterstown. He advocated as a good principle the ownership of all working-class houses by those who occupied them.

Dr. Walsh, on behalf of the delegates, returned thanks to Mr. McCabe and the members of the Blackrock Urban Council for their kindness.

NEW SCHEMES COMPARED.

ELECTRICAL SUPPLY ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE.

The Electrical Supply Association of Ireland entered on its annual conference engagements in Dublin yesterday. In the afternoon a business meeting was held at the Mansion House, and at night the members dined at the Dolphin Hotel. To-day they will visit the sites of the Liffey hydro-electric schemes.

The report presented at the annual general meeting stated that the economic condition of the country was not at present such as would encourage rapid industrial development, and the power supply industry had not shown any great tendency to expand. Nevertheless, some quiet progress had been made and several new schemes had been inaugurated.

In a reference to the two large hydro-electric schemes—the Liffey and the Siemens Shannon scheme—at present under investigation, the report said:—"It is to be hoped that the proposed Siemens all-Ireland power monopoly will not have the effect of stopping power progress, as there will undoubtedly be a tendency to hold up local schemes in order to see what steps the Free State Government propose to take. This super-power proposal is bound to have an adverse effect in the Liffey development plans; and this is to be regretted, inasmuch as the latter scheme seems ripe for development and the necessary money is stated to be available, whereas the Shannon proposal seems to be rather in the air. It is difficult to resist the conclusion that the power supply industry would be developed more naturally, safely and economically by the carrying out of sound local schemes by local people where the customers are available, rather than by waiting to have a super-scheme worked by outsiders."

Mr. W. Hewat, T.D. (President of the Association), who occupied the chair, said that the work before the Association was likely to be more important than that which had been done hitherto. They had expected that legislation would have been brought forward dealing with the question of electricity as a whole. There seemed to be some delay in bringing forward the bill which they knew to be already in existence regulating the industry. When that bill came forward it would undoubtedly be the subject of considerable criticism amongst the industry, and the Association should try to secure that the legislation, before it was passed, got full examination.

That in itself would be a work of very considerable importance. They all recognised that there was a very great need in the country for the extension of electrical schemes, and that if electricity could be developed on the fullest lines it would be an advantage not only to the industry itself, but to the community as a whole.

In the course of a discussion on the annual report, Mr. P. A. Spalding (Dundalk) expressed agreement with the remarks on the Shannon scheme, and urged that all local authorities which had not electrical schemes already should not waste time, but go ahead. The promotion of local schemes all over the country would assist larger national schemes when the time was ripe for them by developing the market for electricity. There was no use in having a big scheme for electricity supply unless there was a market.

Mr. William A. Ryan (Killarney) concurred in that view. He said that they had water power at Killarney, and offered a supply at a penny per unit, but there was no demand.

Mr. Laurence Raul (Dublin) said the Dublin Corporation should be credited with bringing the question of the hydro-electric schemes to their present position. The Liffey power scheme was in such stage that, if gone on with now, it could be in practical working order in two years. The Corporation's idea was to ask the Government to set aside a sum of money for the purpose of subsidising the electrical undertaking. If that were done, they could sell electricity to future consumers as well as present consumers at a price at which probably no other country in the world could sell the article. A comparatively small annual amount would be required in the first five years.

The Corporation's engineers had informed them that after the Liffey had been dealt with for the supply of the large consumers in Dublin and neighbourhood, the two other rivers could be harnessed—he thought the Nore and the Barrow were those mentioned. After that the Shannon would probably be a practical proposition. It would probably be about ten years before the area which the Shannon could supply would be a practical one with regard to the consumers.

Nothing had been heard to upset that statement by the Corporation, and they were amazed when that project, the Shannon, was flashed across them at a time when they had bills before Parliament seeking powers to carry out their schemes whether by Government grant or by ordinary law. He contended that unless the Free State Government gave proof that there was a sufficient number of consumers in the Shannon area to make the project a practical one as regards probable purchasers, the thing should die a natural death. In the opinion of those whom he represented, somebody had been bluffed.

The honorary officers of the Association were re-elected as follows:—President, Mr. W. Hewat; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. D. McDowell Grosart, and G. Marshall Harris; Treasurer, Mr. G. F. Pilditch, and Secretary, Mr. Laurence J. Kettle. The out-going council was re-elected, with some additional members.

MR. BLYTHE'S VIEW.

ELECTRICITY TO HELP INCREASED PRODUCTION.

Among the company at the annual dinner of the Association, held last night at the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin, were: Mr. William Hewat, T.D. (President); Mr. Ernest Blythe (Minister for Finance), Mr. John O'Byrne, K.C. (Attorney-General); Mr. Gordon Campbell (Secretary, Ministry of Industry and Commerce), Professor P. F. Purcell, Dr. W. Lombard Murphy (President of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce), Dr. D. J. Coffey, Sir John Purser Griffith, Mr. Darrell Figgis, Mr. G. P. Sheridan, and Mr. J. Hubbard Clark (High Sheriff).

The Minister for Finance, in responding to the toast: "Prosperity to Ireland" (proposed by Mr. Hewat), said that they could not have the country going ahead merely by reducing their expenditure to the size of their income. That was necessary, but it was still more necessary that the productivity of the country be increased. By such increase they might expect relief from taxation, employment for the people, and opportunities for people of talent here at home, so that they would not have to go to other lands. There was no doubt that the question of the supply of electricity would be found to have a great deal to do with the increase of the productivity of the country.

Ireland was an undeveloped country, and there must be effort on all hands to develop it. It was not necessary to look at things from a revolutionary point of view; but it must be realised that they were dealing with a virgin field, that new problems must be faced, that it would not serve to carry on the country in the new conditions as it might have been carried on but for the changes which had taken place. They must endeavour to strengthen national feeling.

The basis of Denmark's prosperity was the teaching of patriotism to the people and pride in their own country.

Dr. Coffey and Dr. Lombard Murphy also responded. Dr. Murphy said that electricity supply was a sort of barometer of prosperity for a country. Backward countries had not electricity. Progressive and prosperous countries have always a plentiful and cheap supply of electricity. One of the absolute necessities for the prosperity of Ireland was a cheap and plentiful supply of electricity.

Sir John P. Griffith, proposing the toast "The Power Supply Industry," said that he was obsessed, as his friends said, with the proposition that one of the chief safeguards for Ireland consisted in cheap power. The solution of the wage problem was in increase of output. He looked forward to a great future for Ireland in that direction. They had the means at their disposal if they followed the right course of developing the various resources of Nature in Ireland. He looked forward especially to the development of the water power resources of Ireland as a primary need. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. G. Marshall Harris and Colonel J. O'Brien responded.

The Attorney-General, responding for the guests, whose health was proposed by the Chairman, said he thought they were at the beginning of a new era in Ireland. They had passed through a great many troubles, and came through them successfully, and they were now beginning to look forward to brighter things for the future. The country was certainly under-developed. He saw no lines upon which prosperity could be advanced so quickly and so far as along the lines of electrical development. He thought, therefore, that the Electricity Supply Users' Association could do a great deal for the prosperity of the country. (Applause.)

Professor Purcell, who also responded, said that many electricity supply schemes were in the air at the moment, notably those relating to supply from the Shannon and from the Liffey. He thought it was the sincere wish of everybody connected with the industry that those schemes, if they would be shown to be economic and sound, should be carried out for the greater good and benefit of the country; and their equally sincere wish that if those schemes were not sound and economic they should not be carried out.

When any of them were being carried out he hoped that Irish engineers would not be forgotten. When the British Government wished to have a considered report on one of the biggest power schemes ever proposed in England—the Severn barrage scheme—Irishmen were proud to see two names well known in that company—Sir Maurice FitzGerald, Knight of Kerry, one of the finest engineers Ireland had produced, and Sir John Griffith. (Applause.)

NATIONALISATION SCHEME.

BRITISH LABOUR PARTY'S PROPOSALS FOR BULK ELECTRICITY.

The agenda for the Labour Party Conference, to be opened at the Queen's Hall, London, on October 7th, includes a resolution advocating the passing by Parliament, at the earliest possible date, of a carefully considered and complete measure for the nationalisation of the mining, coke, and by-product industries (including the production of bulk electric power), ensuring an adequate minimum wage to all workers engaged therein, with all the proper safeguards of the national finances.

THE UNWRITTEN LAW OF THE BAR.

SHOULD COUNSEL APPEAR WITHOUT SOLICITOR?

MAGISTRATE'S VIEW.

The question whether a counsel should appear in court without a solicitor was raised again in the Dublin District Court yesterday.

Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, said that he had written on the subject to Mr. Russell, Secretary of the Bar Council, and had received the following reply:—

"There is no written rule on the subject you refer to, but it is a question of the unwritten law of the Bar that Counsel should not appear in any Court unless attended by the solicitor who instructs him or his assistant; and any Counsel who makes a practice of appearing alone would be severely censured by the Bar Council."

The letter went on to say that it was Mr. Burne's duty to forward the names of any counsel who might appear alone, so that the Council might deal with the matter.

Mr. Cooper, the magistrate, said that, in his opinion, the matter was entirely between the members of the Bar and the Bar Council. He could not refuse any counsel who appeared without his solicitor the right of audience. It was a matter for the counsel to report the solicitor.

Mr. Burne said that his worship was an old member of the Bar, and it was said that "once a member of the Bar, always a member of the Bar"; and it would be his duty for the protection of the Bar to stop the practice.

Mr. Cooper—I will not exclude any member of the Bar from appearing in this Court, even though he may violate the rules of the Council.

Mr. Burne—That is your considered view?

Mr. Cooper—Yes.

VICTIM OF THE STORM.

MAN FATALLY INJURED BY FALLING TREE.

An inquest was held yesterday at Mercer's Hospital, Dublin, on the body of John Alfred Ayres, aged 48 years, who resided at Old Connaught Hill, Bray, County Wicklow. Ayres was struck by a falling branch of a tree during the storm on Saturday night, and died on Monday in the hospital.

Mrs. Mary Ayres, the widow, said that she was in Dublin with her husband on Saturday afternoon. They arrived back at Shankill at 10.40 p.m., and went towards their home by a "short cut." As they approached the house, Lordella, they saw a branch of a tree hanging from a telegraph wire. At the same time a large bough overhead was torn away by the wind, and fell on her husband, rendering him unconscious.

The medical evidence stated that the deceased man was admitted to Mercer's Hospital on Sunday afternoon. There was an extensive fracture of the dome of the skull. Death was due to shock and hemorrhage, caused by laceration of the brain.

A verdict to this effect was returned by the jury, who also passed a vote of sympathy to the relatives of the deceased man.

COMPROMISE BY THE GERMAN CABINET.

NO APPLICATION TO ENTER THE LEAGUE.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Tuesday.

The anticipated compromise on the League of Nations yesterday was reached at to-day's German Cabinet meeting.

Germany agrees in principle with the idea of League membership, but has no intention at present of applying for it. Such, stripped of verbiage, is the sense of an official communique on the subject issued after the meeting.

As was clearly the Cabinet's intention in reaching the decision, all parties in Germany to-night are satisfied or dissatisfied. Friends and supporters of the League in public and in the Press are delighted at the tribute of homage paid to the League by the Government, and annoyed that no formal application is to be made. Opponents of the League, overjoyed that no application is to be made, are incensed at the Government's genuflexion to the League idea.

Various grounds explain the reluctance of Germany to enter through the door which the Powers, large and small, have opened for her at Geneva, the chief of them being a desire to manifest before the world a spirit of independence and self-assurance, which is now the dominant feature of Germany's foreign policy.

Minor reasons are failure to get guarantees from the League in the matter of a Council seat, war guilt repudiation, military control, and a share of administration in the Saar.

APPEAL TO GERMANS ABROAD.

PRESIDENT EBERT ASKS FOR SUPPORT.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

President Ebert was present at a reception given this evening at the Hotel Esplanade in honour of the representatives of the German Chambers of Commerce abroad.

He made a speech, in which he said that every German living abroad must feel the obligation to show by his conduct that the Germany of to-day, despite its need, was justified in claiming confidence. Such confidence was necessary abroad to alleviate the heavy task involved by the execution of the London agreement. The fulfilment of these obligations required that Germany should again participate in the world's trade.

Dr. Stresseman, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, declared that the war had resulted in many thousands of Germans living abroad losing their property. They had not hitherto succeeded in reaching an agreement for making good these losses. Unfortunately, the settlement of this question did not depend upon the Imperial Government, but upon their opponents. Their efforts in this direction, however, would be steadfastly continued.

Germany, he added, had accepted the London agreement in order to provide a sound basis for her economic life, and the co-operation of Germans living abroad was necessary if Germany was to bear these burdens.—(Reuter.)

For flannels, Lux—of course

It's as easy to wash flannels and sweaters with Lux as to wash your hands. You simply toss the filmy Lux diamonds into hot water. They dissolve into a rich, pure foam, gentle to woollens, silks, crêpes—all your precious possessions—to your hands as well.

Flannels washed with Lux do not shrink or stiffen however often, however quickly they have to be cleansed.

Be sure you get LUX—in the familiar carton. So-called substitutes, sold loose, are thick shreds of ordinary soap. Lux is unique; make sure you get Lux. Lever Brothers Limited, Port Sunlight.

SOLICITOR'S SUICIDE.

MAN WITH UNGOVERNABLE TEMPER.

At the inquest yesterday on a Richmond solicitor, Walter Edmund Irvine Mourilyan, who was found dead from gas-poisoning in his Putney flat, a verdict of suicide while of unsound mind was recorded. It was stated that he was three times married. His first wife divorced him, the second wife being the co-respondent. The second wife also divorced him, and his third wife was divorced by her husband, who made the deceased co-respondent. He was married to the third wife on August 16.

The widow stated that the deceased had an ungovernable temper, when a woman in black sitting in the court burst out, amid sobs: "Don't run him down, you wicked woman." She was immediately escorted from the court. Proceeding, the witness said that the day before her husband's death there was a quarrel and a fearful struggle. He threatened to end her life, and the witness ran out of the flat and went to a hotel.

The Coroner read a letter which the deceased man wrote shortly before he took his life. In this he said that his wife had made his life unendurable, and that a more wicked woman never breathed.

Summing up, the Coroner said that he had come to the conclusion that the widow ought not to be blamed in the terrible way that the letters said. His own clerk had said that he had an ungovernable temper, which, until he controlled himself, made him an impossible person. The widow left the flat to avoid his assaults, and he, no doubt, being inflamed, wrote the letters and took his life in a fit of temper.

HUSBAND AND WIFE DEAD.

SHOCKING AFFAIR IN COLLIERY VILLAGE.

At Stonebroom, a colliery village near Claycross, Derbyshire, yesterday, Joseph Davidson, aged 70, and his wife, Clara, 63, were found lying in the kitchen of their home with terrible wounds in their throats. Davidson was a pit surface foreman, and the woman, the widow of a publican, was his third wife. They were married as recently as Whitsuntide, and it is stated that the two had frequently quarrelled.

The woman had fearful gashes on the arms, hands, and face, which were apparently inflicted with an old sword, two feet long, which was found by her side; and the man's throat was cut. A blood-stained razor was clenched in his hand. The assumption is that the woman tried to escape, and was struck down by a blow which severed the arteries of her neck.

FOR GOUT, RHEUMATISM AND ACUTE KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Alice Landles, Certified Nurse, explains a natural and permanent cure at home by the same treatment as used in hospitals.

When even slight kidney derangement is neglected there is not only the risk of Bright's disease, dropsy, or other practically incurable maladies, but the certainty that rheumatic disorders must eventually result. I know from years of hospital experience that rheumatism, gout, lumbago, sciatica, neuritis, bladder disorders, or gallstones, etc., are all simply the penalties of neglecting kidneys which have become weakened so that they cease to excrete the constantly accumulating uric acid and other impurities. However, no one need be a martyr to these complaints for a single day. Simply flush, cleanse and purify the kidneys occasionally by drinking a tumbler of water to which a level teaspoonful of pure refined Alkia Saltrates has been added. Any chemist can supply this pleasant-tasting compound at slight cost, and it dissolves sharp uric acid crystals as hot water dissolves sugar. When dissolved they cannot be painful, nor lodge in joints and muscles; also, the acid is then quickly filtered out and expelled by the kidneys. The saltrated water will also stimulate a torpid liver or clogged intestines, clearing them and the entire system of poisonous impurities or acids, sour bile, mucous, and bacteria.—A.L.

CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED MURDER

Timothy O'Donnell, a young man of the farming class, of Ballybrood, Co. Limerick, was remanded at Limerick yesterday on a charge of attempting to murder Digby Hussey Burgh at Drumkeen.

Mr. de Burgh was attacked with revolvers by three masked men. After the shooting, O'Donnell was found in a house in the Drumkeen district seriously wounded in the abdomen, and was taken to Barrington's Hospital, Limerick, where a bullet was extracted from the wound. Since then he had been in the institution. Yesterday evening he was removed to the county prison at Limerick, pending his appearance at the next Bruff District Sessions.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

A CESAREWITCH TRIAL TO-DAY.

YELLOW UNDERWING SCORES AT LEICESTER.

ARGENTINE DISAPPOINTS.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday Night.

Quite the most interesting Cesarewitch trial that we are likely to see before the big handicap itself will be the race for the Stayers' Handicap at Gatwick to-morrow afternoon. As this event is worth less than £450 to the winner he escapes a penalty, and so many owners have decided that it affords a good chance of a two mile gallop for their horses, on a testing course. Among the arrivals are three of the most fancied Cesarewitch candidates — Miwani, Ceylonese and Bolet Satan, with the addition of Savernake, Flint Jack, Boddam, Tharros, False Alarm and Rosemead. I only give a chance to the quartette first named, Miwani, Ceylonese, Bolet Satan and Savernake.

Ceylonese is 6lbs. better handicapped here with Miwani and Bolet Satan, and 2lbs. better handicapped with Savernake, than in the Cesarewitch. The tip of Mr. Dawkins, who made the Cesarewitch handicap, is, therefore, Ceylonese, who, on the strength of his weight at Newmarket, should be a good thing for this event. I am not sure, however, that his defeat by Keror last Saturday at Lingfield came as a surprise to his connections, whose hopes of winning with him next month were damped to some extent.

To have a favourable chance in the Cesarewitch, Ceylonese must win this afternoon, and the race should tell us whether he is the horse he was last year. It is a very close thing between Miwani and Bolet Satan, who are handicapped on the same terms as in the Cesarewitch. At Doncaster, Miwani lost by a neck to the Frenchman, and is allowed a pound for the beating. The distance is about Miwani's best, and I fully expect him to turn the tables on Bolet Satan.

A BRILLIANT IRISH-BRED HURDLER.

Savernake, the brilliant Irish-bred hurdler, was very unlucky in the same race at Doncaster, and meets Bolet Satan on 5lbs. better terms. I fully expect him to do well, and, should he win, he will come forward as a likely candidate for Cesarewitch honours. Altogether, it is a very interesting and very open race, in which I make MIWANI my selection.

ULVA FERRY missed an engagement at Leicester this afternoon to run for the Redhill Mid-Weight Handicap, and has a good chance of winning here. EAGLESTONE is likely to win the September Stakes, and in an open race for the Crawter Nursery I choose VAINQUEUR, who, in the Prince of Wales's Nursery at Doncaster, where he was second to Free and Easy, showed his capacity to get the testing seven furlongs here. In his possible absence I would choose the PERFETTA colt.

MODERATE RACING AT LEICESTER.

We saw racing that was moderate in character at Leicester this afternoon. The field for the chief event, the Leicester County Handicap, dwindled to only four, and Harpist was automatically a good favourite. He got a most decisive three lengths' beating, however, from Yellow Underwing, from Mr. Davies Scourfield's stable, for whom there was a good deal of quiet support. Argentine, who had run so well at Doncaster, disappointed badly.

If the market was an accurate guide, Frank Hartigan had no fancy for the chance of Katie in the Bradford Handicap, as compared with that of Harpist in the other event. All the same, Katie, who started at 100 to 8, made all the running and won by three parts of a length from Dalnamein, who started joint favourite with Bengal and Dragoon at 5 to 1. Dragoon was left at the post, and Bengal could never get on terms with Katie. Lord Glanely gained one of his rare victories when his Treasurer just ran the favourite, the Bright Rays filly, out of the Kegworth Nursery Handicap. The rest of the racing hardly calls for comment.

Lord Dalmeny has been appointed Chairman of Tattersall's Committee, and Major-General the Hon. Sir Cecil Bingham, Vice-Chairman.

The death has occurred in France of the Irish-bred stallion, Armant, by Fariman—Camille, who won several races in England and sired a fairly large number of winners in France.

Charles Webb, a competitor in the athletic events at the opening of the new Stadium at Le Touquet yesterday, broke his right arm while putting the weight.

Early Bird, who was awarded the Stand Plate at Limerick Junction August Meeting, on the disqualification of Bluette, will be offered for sale immediately after the first race at Limerick Junction to-morrow.

There is gossip in racing circles (says the Sportsman) to the effect that Mr. J. A. Coen, owner of Bluette, may test the validity of the decision of the Stewards of the Turf Club in the law courts in disqualifying that filly for the three races she won.

GATWICK.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

Quite an interesting programme is provided for Gatwick, where some good sport is promised. The Stayers' Handicap should prove particularly interesting, as several Cesarewitch horses will be in the field. Ceylonese is to run, but I did not like his way of running at Lingfield at all, and, in my opinion, he deliberately turned it up when asked for an effort. I fancy that Miwani will turn the tables on Bolet Satan, for with a little further to go the first-named would have won at Doncaster instead of being beaten a neck. Rosemead ran a good race against Jackdaw of Rheims over a mile and a half of this course, and I fancy that should have brought her on. Savernake, I fear, is unreliable, and in choosing between Rosemead and Miwani I give the former my vote. For the Redhill Handicap I like Devonshire and Rockville. The last-named ran well at Doncaster, which form has since been enhanced by the running of Shambles, and so Rockville must be my selection. Selections:—

Willow Plate—Noctifer.
Ifield Plate—Green Islet.
Stayers' Handicap—Rosemead.
Crawter Plate—Swinfen gelding.
Redhill Plate—Rockville.
September Stakes—Watford.

EDINBURGH.

PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

Though rain has been general in this district it will have less effect on the light soil and turf of the Musselborough course, where Lothians Racing Club take up the concluding stage of the Scottish flat circuit to-day, and the results of the races may be more in line with form than they have been at Lanark. The principal event on the card is the Lothians Handicap. Of the eight probables Legend, Ribblesdale, Sweet Clematis, and Vonna will command most support. The best I take to be Ribblesdale and Sweet Clematis, and my vote goes to the former. Selections:—

Montrose Handicap—Spratadale.
Pinkie Plate—Fiddleback.
Lothians Handicap—Ribblesdale.
Prestonpans Handicap—Nigel.
Buccleuch Handicap—Too Eager.

RUGBY.

BRITISH XV. IN SOUTH AFRICA.

TOURISTS' IMPROVED FORM.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

KIMBERLEY, August 31.

The Kimberley ground, which was expected to prove the most likely to bury any hopes there might have been of a highly successful tour, has turned out to be the most satisfactory of all the enclosures upon which the British Rugby tourists have yet appeared.

It was here that the famed and dreaded Griqualand West fifteen were met immediately after leaving Cape Town, and where they yielded the biggest triumph of the tour. It was here yesterday that the Cape Province side, reputed to be as powerful a lot, as originally chosen, as the tourists were likely to run up against, were beaten even more heavily than the score indicated, and ended a series of disappointments that had started at the beginning of August, and were not designed to finish until almost the last day of the month.

Nothing could have come along at a happier moment than the 13 points to 3 victory which fell to the British team. The inability to win one of the eight matches that had just been played, the unfortunate results of the invasion of the Orange Free State, the failure to beat either one of the three Transvaal sides met during the month, and the two losses in the Test Games, had resulted in a natural loss of confidence and in the quite mistaken, but understandable, belief on the part of the South Africans that Rugby in the British Isles must be on a somewhat low plane if this was the best that an apparently representative side could do.

It has not been an easy matter to argue otherwise in the face of results, and the columns of some of the South African papers have been filled during the last few days with letters and articles, mostly written by South African enthusiasts, all showing a strong disinclination to accept the explanation that the British defeats were due in the main to causes other than meeting better players. No suggestions on this score have been made by the players themselves, but those of us who have followed the team around the country, and who have seen all the games played, have felt compelled to draw repeated attention to factors, such as injuries and referees, which have played important parts in the majority of the matches played.

Of the two matches played since the last mail, neither the one against Pretoria nor the one against the Cape Province were affected in any way by the referee. The Pretoria game was lost by the British mainly because the team put into the field was not a strong one, and because force of circumstances made it necessary to play seven forwards to eight backs. Unfortunately, the extra back was wasted, inasmuch as it did not seem as though Waddell or Griffiths, were quite sure as to who was supposed to be the rover and who the outside half. At no time during the whole of the match was the extra back so utilised that there was one man over in attack.

Pretoria, with a side made up mainly of Transvaal players, with a useful sprinkling of internationals, made no attempt to follow the British formation, but kept their eight forwards intact, with the result that their pack had quite the best of matters, and the British team were deservedly beaten.

Now, Mr. Hubner handled this match with a skill far more in keeping with his reputation as a first-class referee, and he came on down to Kimberley to take charge of the match against the Cape Province. All the members of the South African Selection Committee were present, because it was thought that if any changes were to be made in the next Test side the Cape Province might add to their representation. I mention this fact, because it indicates the nature of the opposition, and, therefore, adds to the credit of the British victory.

It is difficult to convey the extraordinary improvement of the whole British side. I am inclined to think that the lower altitude had some effect, but certainly there were three other factors which played a vital part.

In the first case, the presence of W. Cunningham, the former Irish international half-back, who is now a dentist in Pretoria, acted in something the same way that an infusion of blood has upon an anæmic patient; in the second, there was no attempt on the part of the halves to "beat the referee," and, in the third, the British determination to end the long series of reverses was accompanied by the ability to play football in keeping with their reputation.

Every man played up to the top of his form—that is, those men who were playing in their accustomed positions, for Voyce, as a full-back, is rather a different proposition from Voyce as a forward. The foundation of the British victory was laid by the British forwards. Free to hook in an orthodox way, and apparently faced by a side that did not contain a skilled hooker, the British eight got the ball out with extraordinary consistency. My own records show that the ball came out on the British side of the scrum no fewer than nineteen times in the first half, as compared with the three that the Cape Province got it, while in the second half the proportion was nineteen times to eleven in Britain's favour. Bradley, the Irish forward, came into the side at the last moment, and proved to be one of the best men in either pack.

The opportunities were made the most of by the men behind. Whitley, with all that pluck which has marked his play in each match in which he has figured, served Cunningham admirably. Cunningham, in his turn, showed the finest discrimination in his kicking, or his service to the three-quarters, and the three-quarters opened up the game in the most delightful way. The two centres, Kinnear and Davies, ran well and passed well. Stanley Harris, better served than has always been the case, out here, played his best game of the tour on the left wing, and Wallace, if he failed to reproduce the form which gave him five tries when he was last on the ground, was always sound. He did get one try, but it was really made through the opportunism of Douglas Davies, the forward, who ran up to Johnston, the full-back, before he passed out to the wing man.

Altogether there was no mistaking the superiority of the British team, neither was there much doubt of the appreciation of the spectators at the class of play that was served up. It was mainly open and bright, and, so far as the British team is concerned, the display was in very welcome contrast to the somewhat tired exhibitions which have been served up in too many of the preceding matches.

HANDBALL.

ARMY CHAMPIONSHIP FINALS.

The All-Army handball finals were played off yesterday in Ballymun. The play was of a higher standard than the first day, the hard-ball singles being a great exhibition. G.H.Q. and Curragh Commands shared the honours, the former winning the Soft-ball Championships and the latter the Hard-ball Championships.

A/Corporal Scanlan won the soft-ball singles for G.H.Q., defeating Private Haran (Western Command) by 2 games to 1. Although going down by 21-7 in the first game he forced the pace, and, with steady service, outplayed his opponent and won the next two games for the rubber. The hard-ball title changed hands, as Captain B. Whelan (Western Command) went under to Private J. Delaney (Curragh Command). Last year Captain Whelan won the singles, and, partnered by his opponent of yesterday, won the hard-ball doubles for the Curragh Command. The match was easily the best of the series. The way fast tosses were returned and finished was very good. Both men played in great form and Delaney, who showed great confidence, brought off some fine strokes, and it was his stamina that won for him after the second game.

Bandsman Keaveney and Piper Lyons (G.H.Q.) were too strong as a combination for Corporal Hayes and Private Dunphy (Southern Command). Lyons's tossing and Keaveney's volleying and killing yielded points, and the pair were two games ahead before the Southern men got going. The third game was even. Keaveney got ahead by 4 aces by volleying the returns and then killing. The Southerners went ahead and led 7-4. The G.H.Q. men could only make 2 aces in the hand, and in their next the Southerners went to 11. Hands went for love before G.H.G. went to 11-all on Lyons's tossing. Play was even at 13-all and 15-all, when Lyons and Keaveney went ahead and were within two aces of game when Hayes and Dempsey got them out, and, once in, took game. G.H.Q. had matters all their own way in the fourth, and after leading from the start 13-3, they won at 21-10. Private J. Delaney and Private J. Whitty (Curragh), after losing the first game by 19-21, had an easy journey against Captain Connolly and Corporal T. Delaney (Eastern Command). The winners played well together. For Eastern, Captain Connolly was the better, and although his partner did some good work tossing he lacked speed for the returns. Details:—

Hard-ball Singles—Final—Private J. Delaney (Curragh Command) beat Captain B. Whelan (Western Command)—21-9, 14-21, 21-12, 21-16, 21-5.

Hard-ball Doubles—Final—Private J. Delaney and Private Whitty (Curragh Command) beat Captain Connolly and Corporal T. Delaney (Eastern Command)—19-21, 21-10, 21-7.

Soft-ball Singles—Final—A/Corporal Scanlon (G.H.Q.) beat Private Haran (Western Command)—7-21, 21-11, 21-10.

Soft-ball Doubles—Final—Bandsman Keaveney and Piper Lyons (G.H.Q.) beat Corporal Hayes and Private Dempsey (Southern Command)—21-10, 21-5, 19-21, 21-10.

AMERICAN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

The thirty-two players who had survived the qualifying test for the American amateur championship met under match play conditions for the title on the Merion Club's course, Philadelphia, to-day. Each match was over 36 holes. Only three of the British team who competed in the Walker Cup contest—T. A. Torrance, Major Hezlet, and W. L. Hope—remained in the contest when play opened to-day. W. I. Hunter (Los Angeles), who won the British amateur championship in 1921, also survived the qualifying competition. The chief matches in the first round to-day were:—Major Charles Hezlet (Royal Portrush) v. Max Marston (Merion), holder; T. A. Torrance (Sandy Lodge) v. J. Wood-Platt (North Hills); W. L. Hope (Turnberry) v. Robert Gardner (Hinsdale); D. C. Cockran (Baltimore) v. O. H. Gardner (Agawam Hunt); R. T. Jones (Atlanta) v. J. Thompson (Mississangu); Francis Ouimet (Woodland) v. W. I. Hunter (Los Angeles); Charles Evans (Edgewater) v. R. E. Knepper (Sioux City).

When the players adjourned for lunch after the first 18 holes in the first round, the three British competitors were playing with great steadiness. W. L. Hope (Turnberry) was 4 up on Robert Gardner (Hinsdale); Major C. O. Hezlet (Royal Portrush) had gained a 1 hole lead over Max Marston (Merion), the holder, and T. A. Torrance (Sandy Lodge) finished level against J. Wood Platt (North Hills). A great surprise was caused when R. E. Knepper (Sioux City) came in leading Charles Evans (Edgewater) 7 up.

Charles ("Chick") Evans received the worst defeat of his career, R. E. Knepper beating him by the colossal margin of 9 and 7. First round results:—

R. E. Knepper (Sioux City) beat Charles Evans (Edgewater), 9 and 7; R. T. Jones (Atlanta) beat W. J. Thompson (Toronto), 6 and 5; Max Marston (Merion) beat Major C. O. Heazlet (Royal Portrush), 3 and 1; W. L. Hope (Turnberry) beat Robert Gardner (Hinsdale), 1 up; Jesse Guilford (Woodland) beat Wintringer (U.S.A.), 8 and 6; E. Augustus (Cleveland) beat M. M. Jack (Merion), 5 and 3; Francis Ouimet (Woodland) beat W. I. Hunter (Britain), 2 and 1; Yates (U.S.A.) beat C. J. Dunphy (Washington), 1 up; L. M. Watts (St. Louis) beat A. C. Ulmer (Florida), 6 and 5; Triggs (U.S.A.) beat H. Chandler Egan (Exmoor), 7 and 6; E. Held (St. Louis) beat F. J. Wright (Albemarle), 3 and 2; J. Wood Platt (North Hills) beat T. A. Torrance (Britain), 3 and 2; Paul (U.S.A.) beat Lowry (U.S.A.), 3 and 1; G. Von Elm (Salt Lake City) beat A. R. Mackenzie (Columbia), at 37th; D. C. Corkran (Baltimore) beat C. E. Gradner (Agawam Hunt), 4 and 2; D. Cummings (Antwentsia) beat Mosser (U.S.A.), 10 and 8.

NEXT YEAR'S CHAMPIONSHIPS.

INDEFINITE BALL TESTS.

The business meeting of the Royal and Ancient Club, which precedes the autumn meeting, was held at St. Andrews last evening, when some important business was discussed under the chairmanship of Colonel Sir Alex. Sprot. The match between England and Scotland next year will be held on the Royal North Devon links, at Westward Ho, on Saturday, May 23rd, and the Amateur Championship will begin on Monday, May 25th, on the same course. The Open Championship will start at Prestwick, on June 22nd.

The Sub-committee appointed to consider the ball position submitted a report, in which it was stated that a number of experiments had been tried, with the object of finding a ball that would restore the balance between the length of the holes and the power of the ball. An experiment had been tried with a ball of solid centre, but it was driven as far as the balls at present in use, and an experiment with floating balls, manufactured by present-day methods, showed that these balls were too resilient and lively, and did not commend themselves to adoption. Extended experiments were tried with a larger and lighter ball than the present, but these had not proved sufficient to restrain the distance, or to appreciably lessen the acreage required for first-class clubs. The Committee is to continue its experiments.

IRISH LADIES' UNION.

NORTHERN SECTION STROKE COMPETITION.

Despite torrential rain, forty competitors took part in a stroke competition under the auspices of the Northern Section of the Irish Ladies' Golfing Union at St. Helen's Bay, Co. Down, yesterday. So saturated were the greens that experienced players used mashies instead of putters. Mrs. Forrester (Ormeau), with 98, won the prize for the best gross. Mrs. Black (Knock) secured the prize for the best net with 89, while Miss Brown (Donaghadee) and Miss Hill (Helen's Bay) tied for second prize with 94 net.

ARMY IN ULSTER CHAMPIONSHIP.

CAPTAIN MILLER'S SECOND WIN.

For the second year in succession, Captain Miller (Seaforth Highlanders), a scratch player of the Nairn Club, Scotland, won the Army in Ulster Golf Championship at Newcastle yesterday, defeating Major Fitz A. Drayson (Royal Corps of Signals) in the final after an exciting struggle in a downpour of rain and a stiff north-westerly breeze. Miller was 2 up at the turn. The 10th was halved. Miller won the 11th. The 12th was halved, and Miller won the 13th. The 14th was halved, Miller being dormy 4. Drayson rallied, winning the next two holes, but Miller secured the half at the 17th for the match by 2 and 1. Miller's score for the second nine was 38 to Drayson's 36, the respective scores of the winner and runner-up being 76 and 78.

Semi-final—Capt. Miller (Seaforth Highlanders) beat Captain Faris (Inniskilling Fusiliers)—5 and 4; Major Fitz A. Drayson (Royal Corps of Signals) beat Lieutenant Cadogan (Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry)—7 and 5.

Final—Capt. Miller beat Major Fitz A. Drayson—2 and 1.

POLO.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON.

(By H. G. M.)

The Irish polo season, which will be brought to a close to-morrow (Thursday), has been a remarkable one in many ways. In the first place, the appearance of the Irish Army in the field has been an event of great importance. The Army may not be able to boast of "crack" players—in fact, they are all novices more or less—but they are full of ambition and enthusiasm for the game, and quite pleased with the way in which they have been looked after by the club. It was late in the season when the Army men took to the game, and consequently no special programme was arranged for them. As learners they were quite content to go on practising, taking part in a match now and then, and making the most of the opportunities afforded them for improvement. One of their most enthusiastic players is Captain Harty. He is an excellent horseman, he tackles well, and with a little more practice should mould into a good player. Major-General Hogan has been out very often, and seems to improve with every day's polo. Properly mounted, I have no doubt the Army players would give a good account of themselves, and it is to be hoped that next year they will be better equipped in the matter of ponies, and thus be able to give of their best.

The pony, after all, is half the battle in polo. The best player in the world would be absolutely lost without a decent mount. During the season I have seen a few of the best English international players badly mounted, and the result, I must say, has been very disappointing. For instance, Major Kirkwood, who is at present in America with the English team, struck me as quite a novice, for the simple reason that he was playing strange and rather "green" ponies. Some of the moderates on a good mount played much better.

From the financial point of view, I am afraid the club had a rather lean season, but, then, any season has never been what one might call a big financial success. The attendances have been small generally, due, no doubt, to the inclemency of the weather, while the upkeep of the premises and work attached thereto would be a big item, indeed. The season was devoted mostly to friendly four-chukkar games, and these proved most popular with all concerned. A few tournaments were worked off successfully, but these, I think, did not produce the best polo. In the four period match you see the player and pony "all out," so to speak, whereas over the longer distance the player and his mount are obliged to spare themselves to a certain extent.

The majority of the players have shown remarkably consistent form throughout the season. Mr. J. A. B. Trench, in particular, is still about the best player in the country at the present day. He is one of our highest-rated players, and has certainly lived up to his reputation. As a horseman, he is hardly equalised, while his stick work is splendid. Captain Goulding has not played as much as usual, but any time he played he impressed very much. Mr. John McCann has also had a lean season, and has not been seen at his best. His brother, Mr. Arthur McCann, who is so devoted to racing, was not seen on the polo field very often. Mr. T. Arnott, who was only playing here for a portion of the season, showed excellent form, his play being characterised by dash and fine judgment, and both in attack and defence was seen to advantage. One of the most improving players is Mr. J. P. A. Larminie. Throughout the season he has been "in the thick of it," and he has never once played a poor game. He is a good horseman, a clean hitter, and a useful tackler.

The brothers, Messrs. Albert, Henry, and Major Herbert O'Reilly, are staunch supporters of the club, and to them must be given much of the credit for the success of the season. They are all very good players, and sportsmen, too. Captain Daly, who has been playing longer than any other member, has had the distinction of introducing the youngest player in the person of his son, Brian. This young player is distinctly promising. Other young players of promise are Messrs. J. A. and T. R. Leonard, and P. Cullinan. The first-named has a grand style, both for riding and striking, and should develop into a first-class player.

One of the club's best supporters is Mr. Maxwell Arnott, but he has not been seen out so very often this year, but his form nevertheless was very good. Mr. J. W. Shackleton's play has impressed me very much. The old Kildare back does not show the slightest sign of staleness. Mr. E. S. Slocock has lost none of his dash, and he has played many good games. Mr. Frank Lillis, Mr. R. H. Ussher, and Mr. W. Fitzgerald have all given good support to the club.

Before closing this short review, I would like to say that during the twelve years I have been reporting the A.I.P.C. matches I have received nothing but courtesy and kindness from every member of the club.

ALL IRELAND CLUB.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather there was no play yesterday.

The following are the fixtures and teams for to-morrow:—

The Army—Capt. Heffernan, Commandant Mason, Major-General Hogan, Capt. Harty; v. A.I.P.C.—Mr. R. H. Usher, Mr. B. Daly, Capt. Daly, Mr J. Johnson, at 4 o'clock.

These matches will bring the season to an end, and a full attendance of members is requested.

BILLIARDS.

INMAN V. DUNCAN.

The match between Inman and Duncan, in which the former is conceding the Irish professional champion 6,000 in a game of 18,000, was continued yesterday in the Catholic Club before good attendances. Inman was somewhat off colour in the early part of the afternoon session, but Duncan was in best form, and had runs of 104 and 155. In the latter break he kept the balls under great control, and made many pretty shots. Inman was seen to best advantage later on, and in a grand break of 155 had a long sequence of nursery cannons. Subsequently he made runs of 67, 65, 149, while Duncan scored 45 and 63.

Both players were in form at the night session, Duncan was the first to get going, with runs of 43, 38, 39, and 57, while later he gave a brilliant display of all round table play in an excellent break of 136. The ex-English champion was not long finding his game, and after capital runs of 160 and 104, finished up with a delightful break of 204, unfinished. Closing scores:—

Duncan (receives 6,000) 13,233
Inman (in play) 11,617

SMITH V. NEWMAN.

At yesterday afternoon's session at Birmingham Newman increased his lead over Smith to 700, recording 826 points against his opponent's 660. His chief breaks were 173, 226, 168, and 89. Smith compiled 67, 62, 136, 137, and 160, unfinished. Interval scores:—Newman, 9,930; Smith, 9,230.

At the evening session Smith overhauled the champion after converting his incomplete break into 176. He put together a clever 273. Newman's best meanwhile being 92. Adding 397 and 140 Smith led again, but with 132 and 75 Newman wound up in front. Closing scores:—Newman (in play), 10,326; Smith, 10,248.

HUNTING.

THE KILDARE HOUNDS.

Since the commencement of the cub-hunting on the 9th of September at Coolcarrigan, when lots of foxes were found, and one of a brace of cubs put to ground, bolted and killed; the preliminaries to the season proper have been carried on, and prospects good. The following districts have been visited on the dates against them, viz.:—Thursday 11th, Martinstown; Saturday 13th, Dunfierth; Tuesday 16th, Tinode; Thursday 17th, Dunmurray, and last Saturday, Betaghstown. The supply of foxes seemed quite good everywhere, and the total pack of 44½ couples looked in the best of condition. Major W. Dease (who has gone to live at Turbetstown, his place in Westmeath) will be replaced as one of the joint Masters by Colonel Higginson, D.S.O., with Colonel Blacker, D.S.O., and Mr. Odlum. The staff otherwise remains the same, viz., A. Hoare (huntsman), with R. Hartigan and P. Whelan as his whippers-in.

It is intended to hunt three days a week, though no doubt, the country would stand four.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

In auction two catalogues were offered jointly, totalling 12,393 bales, including 4,668 bales New South Wales and Queensland, 767 Victorian, 969 South Australian, 636 West do., 43 Tasmanian, 4,194 New Zealand, 359 English Slipes, and 21 Puntas Arenas. The above proved an attractive selection, and met with animated competition from a full attendance of buyers, and a very firm tone prevailed, with prices tending in sellers favour for all the better classes of merino. New South Wales and Queensland scoured merino combing 54d. to 67½d., clothing 37d. to 64d., pieces 40d. to 46½d., lambs 30d. to 51d., greasy merino combing 28½d. to 46½d., fleece 31d. to 35d., bellies 24d. to 28d., necks 29½d. to 39d., pieces 29d. to 32½d., broken 32d. to 39d., cross-bred 30d. to 33½d. New Zealand scoured merino combing 68d. to 68½d., bred do. 57½d. to 61d., pieces 37½d. to 54½d., greasy half-bred 22d. to 34d., cross-bred 19d. to 30d., do. lambs 25d. to 31d., slipe merino clothing 38d. to 42½d., bred lambs 25½d., three-quarter bred do. 18d. to 31½d., cross-bred do. 17½d. to 36½d. Cape snow white 52½d., greasy merino combing 17d. to 31d., bellies 18d. per lb.

LONDON STOCKS IRREGULAR.

BRITISH FUNDS FIRM.

An irregular tendency was noticeable on the Stock markets yesterday. British Funds were slightly better where any change was recorded. In Gilt-edged Securities, Consols remained at 57⅞, while Victory Bonds were also without alteration. Conversion Loans were steady, the 3½ p.c. repeating 78, while the 4½ p.c. were also unchanged at 98⅛. Funding Loan finished ½ higher on the day at 80⅞, while 5½ p.c. Treasury Bonds were ¼ up at 103½. 3½ and 4½ p.c. War Loans were both unaltered at 96 and 97½ respectively, but the 4 p.c. gained ⅛ to 100⅛ x.d. The Fives repeated their overnight quotation. Indias were steady, as were Local Loans.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were dull and uninteresting. French Loans both closed lower in sympathy with the decrease in the exchange. The Fives dropped ½ to 24¼, while the Fours were also ½ lower at 18¾ x.d. German Threes were quiet and unaltered on the day, but the 3½ and 4 p.c. were both slightly lower on the day. Argentines were steady, and Brazilians were without material alteration. Chinese 5 p.c. (1896) were unchanged at 92, as were the 4½ (1898) and the 5 p.c. (1912) at 77 and 68 respectively. Egyptian Unified held their gain of the previous day, and closed unchanged at 75¼. Japanese were steady, and at the close showed no change from their previous quotation. Mexicans were quiet and unchanged, while Peruvians were also steady at overnight levels. Portuguese 3 p.c. held their gain of the previous day, and finished without alteration at 27. Uruguay 3½ p.c. repeated 58.

HOME RAILS were dull, and most of the Ord. Shares were marked lower. Great Westerns lost a point to 106, while Midlands were also a point lower at 97. North-Eastern Pref.-Ord. remained at 79½, but the Def.-Ord. showed a decrease of ¼ on the day to 28¼. Metropolitans gave way, the Cons. finishing ½ down at 76½. Districts were held at 50½. Southern Pref.-Ord. lost ½ to 82, as did the "A" Shares to 38. The Def.-Ord. at 40½, and the "B" Shares at 9½ were both unchanged.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN RAILS were quiet, and at the finish were, without exception, repeated.

OIL SHARES ACTIVE.

SPURT IN MEXICAN EAGLES.

A revival of active dealings in Mexican Eagles provided the outstanding feature of the Oil share market yesterday, and the return to favour of these shares had a beneficial effect upon other leading issues, with the result that advances were general at the close of the House, while the upward movement made further headway in the "street," where lively dealings were continued until a late hour. While nothing of a definite character transpired to account for the strength of Mexican Eagles, vague rumours of favourable developments accompanied the dealings. Following an active business in the House, where the shares left off at about 19s., they continued in strong request in the "street" dealings, and at one time touched 21s. 3d. buyers, while the final price of 20s. 7½d. left them 3s. 4½d. up on the day. The 8 p.c. Part. Pref. rose 3s. 3d. to 19s. 6d., and the 7 p.c. First Prefs. gained 1s. at 15s. 10½d. In addition to local buying, a keen demand was reported on Paris account, operators in that centre having apparently oversold. As regards others of the recognised leaders, Shells developed strength and recovered ⅛ to 3⅞, and Royal Dutch came into renewed demand both on local and Amsterdam account and advanced ⅞ to 28¼. Anglo-Persians had a dull start, but rallied to the overnight level of 2⅜, at which they were rather buyers in the "street" dealings. Shell 7 p.c. Prefs. left off slightly easier at 24s. 4½d., and Anglo-Persian 8 p.c. Prefs. weakened to 22s. 3d. Burmahs were a better market, improving 1/16 to 4⅞ on the news that the fire started by lightning on September 19 in one of the company's crude oil tanks was confined to its source and has now burned itself out. Anglo-Americans advanced 1/16 to 3⅜. Among Rumanians Phœnix were a firm market throughout the day, finishing 3d. up at 22s. 9d. It was stated that dealings took place in the 1s. shares of the Phœnix Oil and Transport Co. at 5s. and 5s. 3d. Permission to deal in these shares was granted on August 22 last, but while transactions may be marked they are not recorded. Steaua Romana (British) lost 3d. at 8s. 1½d., and Maisels Petroleum Trust weakened to 4s. 10½d. Although a few transactions were recorded among Trinidad issues, a steady tone prevailed, and Apex and Leaseholds hardened 1/16 to 2⅛ and 1⅞ respectively. As regards Venezuelans, V.O.C. Holdings continued to display firmness, further advancing 1/16, the Ord. to 2⅜ and the Prefs. to 2⅜. British Controlled remained quiet and closed unchanged. Lobitos came into renewed demand and rose 1/16 to 10⅛, and Anglo-Ecuadorians were a better market, gaining 1/16 at 2⅛. Eagle Oil Transport 7 p.c. Notes advanced ⅛, the registered closing at 100⅛ and the bearer at 101⅛. Kern Rivers were bid for in the "street" and closed showing an improvement of 4½d. at 15s. 4½d. British Borneos rose 1/16 to ⅞, and slightly higher prices ruled for Caltex, Tankers Pref. and Uroz Oilfields. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET STEADY.

KAFFIRS NOT IN FAVOUR.

Quietness ruled in most departments of the Stock Exchange yesterday, and business was interfered with to some extent by the incidence of the carry-over in general securities. The tone, however, kept steady, and there was again a certain amount of excitement in some of the speculative favourites. In the Mining market, for instance, one or two counters stood out prominently, but it cannot be said that Kaffirs were much in favour. Anglo-Americans were being picked up, and Randfontein continued in favour, while Knights and Consolidated Main Reefs were also on the upgrade. "Johnnies" were easier on profit-taking, and Robinson Deep B, Mozambique, and one or two others receded. Once more the Rhodesian department was dominated by Cam and Motor. Sherwood Starr were a harder market, but Tanganyika and Zambesia Exploring lacked support, and both fell away rather sharply. Chartered remained in a state of inanition. In the absence of Paris interest, Diamonds were allowed to look after themselves, and the De Beers issues receded. A modest recovery to £228 per ton occurred in the price of tin, and the share market, though still far from active, was inclined to harden. The Eastern descriptions were in some request, particularly Siamese, Malayan, and Tronoh, but Nigerians were little dealt in. West Africans were left to themselves, but in the Australian section, Horseshoes came into request, and moved up. Among Coppers, Rio Tinto fell away on Paris advices. Closing prices:—

RUBBER SHARES SMALL.

PRICE MOVEMENTS IRREGULAR.

The amount of business in the Rubber market yesterday was small and price changes were few. An irregular tone was noticeable, but alterations were, perhaps, slightly higher on balance. Glenbervie gained 2s. to 22s., while Anglo-Malay at 21s. 3d. showed an increase of 1s. 3d. Anglo-Dutch at 41s. 7½d. and Linggi at 25s. were both 4½d. better. Java Amalgamated rose 3d. to 24s. 3d., while Bertram Consolidated at 3s. 9d. showed an improvement of 1½d. Malayam at 34s. 6d., United Temiang at 2s. 7½d., and Vallambrosa at 12s. 6d. were each 3d. to the good. Rubber Trust closed 2¼d. better at 28s. 5¼d. Batu Tiga, on the other hand, dropped 1s. 3d. to 30s., while Grand Central at 19s. 4½d. were 7½d. lower. Ledbury at 25s. were also 1s. 3d. lower. Kepong lost 3¾d. to 3s. 7½d., while Bukit Rajah at 18s. were 1½d. down. Castlefield at 4s., Kamuning at 2s. 4d., and Selangor at 3s. 9d. were all 1½d. lower on the day. The price of rubber fell to 14¼d. per lb. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

The "Street" market in Oil Shares in London last night became a scene of great excitement, with the incessant bidding for Mexican Eagle Shares. The shares had been steadily rising all day in the House from 17/3 to 19/-, and in the street the price went up in rapid spurts, amid much shouting, to 21/4½. A slight setback to 21/1½ left the price 3/10½ up on the day. These sensational movements were accompanied by many rumours as to new wells being brought into production and new fields being developed successfully, but in the absence of any official statement it would be well to treat all such reports with reserve.

The September issue of W. H. Rickinson and Sons' "Tea Companies' Position" has just been issued from 3 Great Winchester street, London Wall, E.C. 2. Everything necessary to a buyer or speculator in Tea shares will be found in this volume, in addition to a quantity of useful information about Stock Exchange transactions, which is not usually found in these little handbooks.

The latest figures to hand regarding the American tyre trade show that the position was substantially improved during July:—

	Covers.	Inner tubes.
On hand 30th June	6,368,200	8,166,200
,, 31st July	4,625,480	5,925,924
Decrease	1,742,720	2,240,276

Estimates for August and September indicate that a big increase has taken place in both sales and production, and no surprise, therefore, has been occasioned by the recent increased buying of rubber in London on American account.

A cable from the Transvaal Chamber of Mines at Johannesburg states that the total estimated working profit of the gold mines of the Transvaal for the month of August, 1924, amounted to £1,186,208 for the Witwatersrand district, and £12,956 for the outside districts, a total of £1,199,164. The estimated working profit in July, 1924, was £1,258,115 for the Witwatersrand district and £10,370 for the outside districts, a total of £1,268,485.

In connection with Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company 6 per cent. Second Mortgage Bonds to Bearer, the British, Foreign and Colonial Corporation announces that on and after October 1 it is prepared to receive provisional scrip certificate to bearer of £50 and £100 each, fully paid, for exchange into definitive bonds to bearer. It is recommended that the exchange be made either personally or through a banker, as bonds will only be transmitted by post at the risk of the owner.

The accounts of the Union Cold Storage Company for 1923 show net profits amounting to £513,749, against £364,696 for 1922. As from July 1, 1923, however, the company acquired the control of the British and Argentine Meat Company, Eastmans, Ltd., and several other undertakings. In the prospectus issued when £4,000,000 of new capital was placed in connection with these big purchases, it was stated that the combined profits for the latest financial year of the businesses acquired amounted to £693,517. The profits of the Union Cold Storage Company show an increase of £149,053 on the year. Half the preceding year's profits of the newly-acquired businesses would be £346,758. The company's assets appear in the balance sheet at a total of £22,314,307.

The shares of the Great Western of Brazil Railway Company are a harder market in the London Stock Exchange, hopes of the company's affairs taking a decided turn for the better, being strengthened by the news that a substantial increase in tariffs has been agreed to in principle, although it has not yet been definitely sanctioned.

The London secretaries of the Rezende Mines, Ltd., have received the following cable:—In view of money required to finance exploratory work below No. 10 Level, necessity to renew odzani flume, and necessity to write off Kent option, directors anticipate dividend only of 15 per cent decrease in order to maintain satisfactory financial position. (For 1923 40 per cent. was paid, 20 per cent. interim, and 20 per cent. final.)

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANABLE CREDITS NOT SO PLENTIFUL.

EXCHANGES DEPRECIATING.

Some surprise was expressed in Lombard street at the fact that a small amount had been borrowed from the Bank of England on Monday, but it is regarded as a precautionary measure, in view of the approaching end of the month, as well as of the quarter. In the outside market money was occasionally worth 3½ per cent., but as a rule short loans were obtainable at 3 per cent., with renewals going on at 2¾ to 3 per cent. Weekly fixtures were 2¾ per cent. Discount rates were rather easier, more especially for the longer dated bills, four months' maturities being quoted 3½-3⅞ per cent., and six months 3⅞-4 per cent. There was a good demand for second-hand Treasuries at a shade under 3⅜ per cent., while fine three months' Bank paper was steady at 3⅛ per cent.

Gold was 3d. per ounce higher at 92s. 9d. Silver rose 1/16d. per ounce further to 35⅛d. for both spot and forward delivery.

EXCHANGES WEAKER.

The tone of the foreign exchange market continued heavy on New York selling, and further depreciation occurred in inter-Allied currencies. Sterling on New York gave way to 4.45¾-4.45⅞, and French francs were again cheaper at 84.50-84.60. Belgian francs deteriorating to 91.50-91.60. A feature was the continued demand for Danish kroner, which further appreciated to 26.00-26.05, while Holland was also firmer at 11.56½-11.57 florins. Italian lire were unchanged at 101.75-101.85. In the South American group, Buenos Ayres reacted to 43⅜-43½, while Rio was a shade harder at 5⅛-5⅜. Rupees further strengthened to 1s. 5⅛d.-1s. 5⅛d., but Japanese yen continued weak, with a further fall to 1s. 9⅛d.-1s. 9⅛d. China rates were firmer. The following are closing quotations:—

INDUSTRIALS CHEERFUL.

WHISKEY ISSUES POPULAR.

Cheerful conditions prevailed throughout the Industrial and Miscellaneous markets yesterday. Business for the new account was brisk, a feature being the renewed inquiry for Iron, Coal and Steel shares. Confidence has been restored in this quarter and good buying was reported from provincial centres. Guest Keens proved a bright spot with a rise of 1s. 3d. to 34s. 3d., and other leading shares closed higher. The routine of the carry-over was arranged smoothly, the general rate ruling unchanged at 5½ to 6½ p.c. In no instance is the open position very large, the growth of "bulls" of Courtaulds being the most notable feature. In the early hours the quotation rose to 54s., but later gave way to 53s. 3d., leaving them the turn better on balance. Bradford Dyers were also in request and spurted 9 to 73, although the remainder of the Textile group had a ragged appearance. Bleachers fell to 55s. 9d. and both the British Dyestuffs issues shed a few pence. Grouts closed firm at 40s. 6d. Celanese were rather a harder market at 8s. 3d., and the Pref. improved to 10s. 3d. A bright spot in the Newspaper group was "Daily Sketch" Debs., which in response to good buying advanced sharply to 3¼ premium, or 2 higher on balance. "Daily Mail" Debs. were quoted ex-rights at 106, but the older counters in this section were not prominent. Associated Defd. held steady at 5⅛, but the Ordinaries lost 6d. to 21s. 3d., and "Daily Mirrors" shed 1/16 to 5⅛. An inquiry for George Newnes was responsible for a rise of 1s. 6d. to 20s. Changes among Motors were few and unimportant, Austin Debs. proving the firmest spot and putting on ½ to 80½. Interest in Miscellaneous issues largely centred in Cements, which changed hands freely, and on balance gained the turn to 17s. 1½d. Wall Papers were moderately active and Columbia Gramophones continued in demand, closing steady at 35s. after having been better, bonus talk being much in the air.

Brewery stocks kept firm without registering any movements of consequence. For the moment they would appear to be overshadowed by the whiskey issues, an enormous turnover in John Walkers being recorded. Opening at the improved level of 55s. they quickly rose to 56s., at which figure, however, a few shares came out. Business was on a large scale right up to the close, the final quotation of 55s. 3d. leaving them a strong market. Buchanan Dewars marked up to 58s. 9d. Persistent inquiry for Schweppes Deferred lifted the price a further 6d. to 25s. 6d., other Refreshment and Foodstuff descriptions showing only minor alterations. Nelsons at 51s. 3d. were a good spot, as also were Manbre Deferred at 10¼. United Tobacco Souths were in strong request after hours at 18s. 6d. A fall of 9d. was seen in Albert Bakers to 29s. 9d., although, on the other hand, Godfrey Phillips and the B Pref. were bid up to 14s. and 18s. respectively. Shipping and Insurance Shares were devoid of interest, but Banking issues were again off colour. Barclays and National Provincials gave way slightly in the home section, while Australasias and Standard of South Africas both lost ground among Colonials. Exceptionally, London and South Americas rose ⅛ to 8. Wireless counters did not participate in the activity among Cable issues. Recent issues call for little remark. Dealings commenced in Scottish United investors at ⅛ premium.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—WHEAT—Better American cables were counteracted somewhat by easier Argentine advices, but, with continued favourable weather in this country, forward deliveries of wheat were the turn dearer at the outset, and further improved to a late extent owing to scarcity of sellers, and though not finishing at best, showed a fair gain on the day, afternoon cables not being encouraging. C.i.f. parcels No. 1 Manitoba October-November sold at 58/3 to 58/4½, No. 2 September 27 59/6, No. 2 hard winter 15th September 54/6, October 54/10 to 55/-, Australian afloat 58/9, December-January 58/3 to Liverpool, and No. 2 hard winter October 54/10 to Manchester. PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—BACON—Irish steadily held and Danish fairly active at fully late rates. Canadian Wiltshires quietly steady and unaltered. Holders of American bacon were firm for most selections, and prices of backs are raised to 89/- to 97/-, and bellies 90/- to 96/- per cwt., with rather more inquiry, though trading, on the whole, is of a moderate character. HAMS steady, with buyers operating more freely, and late prices are steadily maintained. Shoulders quiet for squares, but picnics attract fair attention at higher prices of 57/- to 65/- per cwt. LARD on the spot is steady at late rates for prime steam, but American refined is offered at 6d. per cwt. decline owing to easier Chicago cables and quiet demand, being now quoted 81/6 to 82/6 per cwt. CHEESE firm and dearer owing to better Canadian advices, finest white and coloured being held at 93/- to 95/- per cwt. BUTTER scarce and prices still tend upwards, Danish being raised to 232/- to 234/- per cwt., though demand restricted by the high prices now ruling. EGGS steady at 12/- to 19/6 for ordinary Irish hen and for best selected up to 22/- per 120 quoted.

LONDON (BOROUGH), Tuesday.—EGGS—Market remains firm for finest selections, but buyers appear reluctant to follow the recent advance. A large supply to deal with, and prices were as follow:—York cabbage 30/- to 80/- per load, bags 3/-, Swedes 1/6 to 1/9 per cwt. Turnips 8d. to 10d. per bunch, and parsnips 6d. to 1/5 per bunch and 2/- to 3/- per bag. Beet 1/6 per dozen bunches; carrots 4/6 a bag, 1/6 a dozen; marrows 3/6 each for best, 13/- a dozen. DUBLIN EGG AND BUTTER, Tuesday.—Following on the sharp advance in Danish butter last week, the market here for finest grade native creams has become much firmer, to-day's figure for tip-top Irish creams being 1/11½ to 2/- per lb. However, a lot of good quality creams sold yesterday at 1/11 per lb. The high prices now existent have had a somewhat dulling effect on trade. Factory butter 1/5 to 1/6½ per lb. Farmers' butter much as previously, rating from 1/5 to 1/7; the latter price, however, would only concern very finest grade separators. Good ordinary classes of butter and rough from 1/2 to 1/4. A slow trade for secondary butter. The supply of strictly fresh eggs is rapidly diminishing. There is a good business for best quality stuff, but a great deal of trouble is still being experienced in face of the continuance of arrivals of stale and unsaleable eggs. It is only a waste of time and money forwarding anything of stale and doubtful quality; this we have repeatedly brought to the notice of country folk. Best fresh hen eggs from reliable senders make 19/6 to 22/- per 120; selected, heavily picked retail lots from 23/- to 24/-; good Dublin seconds and ordinary 17/6 to 18/6; country smalls 15/- to 15/6. Supply of duck eggs nominal and demand improved.

CORK BUTTER, Tuesday.—The market is steady, with prices firm. Choicest salted 214/- per cwt., creameries 210/-, farmers' fresh parcels 148/-.

DUBLIN FISH, Tuesday.—A very short supply of fish on market to-day in view of the existing labour trouble, trawler arrivals being conspicuous by their absence. The market mainly comprised 3 chests lobsters, 15 pkgs. herrings, 3 of mackerel, 70 boxes mixed catch from Balbriggan, and a small consignment from Galway, Howth, etc. An easy clearance was made around following rates:—Large lobsters 13/- to 20/-, seconds 10/- to 12/6, and smalls 5/- to 7/6 per lot of 13. Large soles 25/- to 30/-, mediums 10/- to 15/- and slips 2/6 to 5/- per 9 pairs. Turbot 6d. to 1/- and brill 6d. to 2/- each. Plaice, per half-box 20/- to 30/-; red ray 10/- to 15/-.
